I SEE... By the PAPERS

By IRA SARASOHN

When this column first appeared it was intended that it would stick close to the literal meaning of its title; however other comment was often desired to be expressed and many times the contents of the column wandered from its original purpose. With two more times for it to appear this school year—today included—the column will be strictly what it was first meant to be and the paper seen will be past issues of the DAILY TAR HEEL. In other words these two last columns will be a review of the past sports year as compiled from the grand old college daily.

Every issue will be reviewed in successive order and three dots between thoughts will represent a different issue and so let's turn all eyes to the first issue of the current school year appearing Sunday, September 22, 1935.

Student body learns George Turbeville, freshman pitcher, is twirling for the A's. Duke beats Wake Forest in Greensboro 26-7... Anderson is only member of staff to say Louis will beat Baer. We placed an "if" in our prognostication and said Louis with qualifications. Freshman and varsity football teams sweat plenty... Teams continue practice. Intramural entries received... Varsity scores four markers in scrimmage against frosh... Gymnastics start. Snavelymen polish-off for Wake Forest... Chicago gets pennant. Day of Deacon game. Streamer says "Beat the Deacs—Vault the Vols—Take the South"... Hutchins scores twice as Tar Heels win first game 14-0.

First Rose Bowl talk. Streamer and story acclaims Tar Heels as "Outstanding machine on southern grid front"... Tom Evins twists shoulder. World Series begins... Practice for Vols continue. Tar Babies drill for opener... Team leaves for Tennessee. Sniscak acclaimed as Barclay's successor... Anderson's regular Saturday column appears picking Carolina to beat Vols "by close margin of victory"... Streamer "Mighty Tar Heels crush Vols 38-13... 'Talkin' Turkey" makes first appearance"... Coach Wolf, formerly Director of Athletics at Texas Christian University, says he, has already been acclimated into a Carolina man. Vaught is a former All-American guard at T. C. cess of the Noble hits. Al Bowlly, the former "Singing Barber" of Johannesburg, South Africa, has rapidly become a favorite of the American radio audience and a perfect adjunct to Ray Noble and his orchestra.

The two bands who will play for the finals are unusually large musical units. Joe Haymes, who will open the set Thursday evening with a formal script dance, has a band consisting of 15 pieces, while Noble's orchestra numbers 19 in personnel.

Two favorite popular singers will also make their appearances here in the persons of Loretta Lee with Haymes, and Bowlly with Noble.

The figure for the opening Thursday evening dance will be led by commencement marshals elected by the junior class last quarter. They are: chief, Roy Poole, Dick Hicks, Louise Davis, Allen Knott, Grover Murray, Emery Raper, John Farmer and Paul Troutman.

Ivey seemed to be much in demand after his new appointment yesterday afternoon and in closing, he said, "I would ask the Student Council to put on probation or suspend any student taking a magazine or tearing out portions of publications. That's the worst kind of cheating, it seems to me."

Both Ex-Tar Heel Stars Plan Campaign for Recognition During Next Weeks

By FLETCHER W. FERGUSON

Harry Williamson and Ralston LeGore, Carolina's candidates for places on the American Olympic track team, face quite a strenuous program of competition for the next few weeks.

Tomorrow afternoon the ex-Tar Heel brilliants begin their activities, Williamson competing in a special 1000-meter run at the IC4A meet at Franklin field, Philadelphia, and LeGore throwing in the javelin event at the District of Columbia A. A. U. meet in Washington.

Meets Rival

At Philadelphia, Williamson will renew his long rivalry with Chuck Hornbostel, former Tulane star. This past winter they faced each other in numerous middle distance events, with the count in victories about even.

On June 6, Williamson will run the 3/4-mile event in the New York Athletic Club games on Travers Island, N. Y. The following Saturday, he will return to the annual Princeton invitation meet to compete in the half-mile.

There he will have plenty of fast company for Ben Eastman, former Stanford and Olympic star and holder of the world record of 1:49.6, will furnish part of the opposition. Hornbostel will probably be in the race as well as Bethan, Ohio State's western conference champion.

Olympic Trials

The Harvard stadium at Cambridge, Mass., will be the scene of the Olympic semi-finals trials on June 26 and 27, and will find both Williamson and LeGore with numerous troubles—in the way of competition—facing them.

On the first Saturday in July, Williamson and LeGore will enter the National A. A. U. meet, which will be held at Princeton. The former will attempt to garner the title in his specialty—the 800-meter run, while the latter will seek the javelin honors.

The final Olympic trials on July 11 and 12 will find the Carolina pair entered—if they come through successfully in the semi-finals. This meet will be held at Randall Island stadium, N. Y.

Both Williamson and LeGore stand fairly good chances of making the team, although optimism should not be placed at too

Monogram Awards

Monogram and numeral certificates for all spring quarter sports, and heretofore unclaimed winter quarter certificates, will be available at the athletic office on Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

During the same hours, measurements for monogram sweaters will be taken for all varsity athletes making their first award in any sport during the spring quarter. If you are entitled to a sweater or a certificate do not fail to report on Tuesday at the times specified, the office urges.

NETMEN TO ENTER NATIONWIDE MEET

Potts, Fuller, Henderson and Shore Members of Tennis Team to Go to Tourney

It is an assured fact that Ramsay Potts, Eddy Fuller, Archie Henderson and Frank Shore will be sent to the national intercollegiate tournament scheduled at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., on June 22, according to an announcement yesterday.

No definite action has been arrived at as yet by the Athletic Council in regard to the expense money for the trip. A decision on this matter will be issued today.

Co-operation

The Athletic Council has given the tennis team full co-operation and is now deliberating the most logical expenditure of money. It appears that the sum will exceed the recommendation that was presented by Coach Kenfield. This was brought about by a special request at last Monday's meeting of the Athletic Council.

The respective players have been priming for the tourney and expect to reach their peak when the date rolls around. The tournament annually draws a select field and is widely recognized in tennis circles as a fine testing ground for budding stars. Wilbur Hess of Rice Institute, Texas, is defending champion.

Fraternity Finalists to Meet in Early Matches

FINALS AT 4 P. M.

Bob Ellison of Phi Delta Theta and Bucky Harris of S. A. E. will battle it out this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the final singles match between their respective teams to decide which will meet Ruffin No. 1 at 4 o'clock for the campus intramural tennis title.

Yesterday afternoon the strong Ruffin No. 1 team defeated Manly No. 1 for the dormitory crown by a 2-1 count, while the Phi Deltas and S. A. E. failed to complete their match, the count now standing at 2-all.

Ruffin Wins

Earl Ruth and Gerrard Podesta accounted for Ruffin's pair of wins in the singles, the former defeating Ellison 6-3, 6-3, and the latter winning over Ellis by 6-0, 6-1 scores. Joe Denmark and Ellis paired in the doubles to give Manly its one point, beating Austin and Derrickson 6-8, 6-4, 6-2. By mutual agreement only three matches were

Annual All-Star Baseball Game Scheduled For June 7

Players to Be Selected Again by Nationwide Vote of Fans and Team Managers

By RAY SIMON

America's annual craving for extravaganzas, especially that of the sporting world, will be partially satisfied on July 7 when picked representatives from both major leagues meet in the annual all-star game.

The idea for this annual game originated among the sports scribes and was inaugurated with the holding of the first all-star game a few years ago.

That first game attracted a great deal of attention from the fans and was a complete success from every angle viewed. Last year, though, enthusiasm cooled down because of the brilliant idea the "big shots" thought of—namely, to have the teams picked by the major league managers instead of by the fans.

Revised Plan

That the higher-ups have seen their mistake can be ascertained by the revised plan for selecting this year's team; the fans again are to have the major share in the selections.

Through the nation-wide polls now being run by the newspapers of the nation, 16 men are to be chosen. These 16 will represent the choice of the fans as to the best men in the major leagues.

The managers will also have a hand in the proceedings, selecting the remaining five players.

Thus, by the changes created this year, an equitable arrangement has been made, an arrangement that seems to have struck the fancy of the fans, judging by the votes rolling in already.

More Co-operation

In order for everything to run off smoothly, however, the managers will have to co-operate more than they did last year. The pitchers who are to play in the all-star game should be rested up a few days before the date of the game.

Of course the managers' argument is that the game is simply a one-day affair, so why save their star pitchers for a game which will have no bearing at all on their team's standing in the pennant race?

What they overlook, however, is the wider implications of the game. It arouses an enthusiasm in the fans which should be capitalized upon by the league clubs.

If the managers forget their narrow outlook this year's game will be successful. The fans will do their part; it will be up to the managers to do theirs.
