Richmond University Historian To Make Principal Talk Monday

Procession Will Begin In Front Of South At 10:25

Starting with a formal academic procession, University Day services will get under way in Memorial hall at 10:45 Monday morning.

The principal speaker of the day, which will celebrate the 143rd anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the first building at the University, will be Dr. Samuel Chiles Mitchell, of the University of Richmond.

In Memoriam

In addition to Dr. Mitchell's address, which will answer the question, "What is a State University?" with "It is the State thinking," the exercises at Memorial hall will include a brief memorial service to University alumni who have died during the past year.

Classes will be held as usual, until 10:30 but after the exercises the rest of Monday will be a holiday in honor of the founders of the University. Chapel attendance will be taken at the exercises.

The faculty, arrayed in academic regalia, will meet at South building at 10:25, and will march in formal procession to Memorial hall.

Reception

President and Mrs. Graham and Dean and Mrs. House are to be hosts at Graham Memorial from 4 to 6 o'clock Monday afternoon to the faculty, townspeople and visitors, in honor of the new members of the faculty and their wives.

Souvenir programs, containing campus pictures and a historical sketch of the first University Day, will be distributed at the exercises Monday morning.

KOCH ADDRESSES DRAMATIC GROUP

Director Relates Work Of Federal Theater

Speaking before the fall conference of the directors of the Carolina Dramatic association, Dr. Frederick H. Koch last night told of the work being done throughout the state and country by the Federal Theater Projects.

"Many of us have dreamed for a long time," said Dr. Koch, "of the establishment of an American National Theater, subsidized, as in the older continental countries, by the state. Now, out of the catastrophe of nationwide unemployment, this dream has become an actuality. Designed primarily as an emergency measure, it has become a true theater of the people; a theater which embraces 28 states, employs 1200 workers, and commands a total audience of a half million people every week.

Federal Theater

"Heretofore," Dr. Koch continued, "the government has been almost wholly concerned with our economic progress. Now, for the first time in our history, the government has taken official cognizance of the spiritual life of the people in the establishment of a federal theater project as a recreational and educational instrument in the making of our national culture."

Concluding his remarks, Dr. Koch expressed the hope that this movement will bring about a dramatic revival.

University Day

According to Registrar Wilson, the half-holiday on Monday, commemorating University Day, will include all afternoon labs. Work of every type will be suspended from 10:30 a. m. through the rest of the day.

GRAHAM EXTENDS WELCOMING HAND TO HILLEL GROUP

President Stresses Old Hebrew Tradition At Reception

"We are in the presence this evening of the great Hebraic tradition, the oldest in the western world," said President Frank P. Graham at the opening of the Hillel foundation in the Carolina Inn last night.

"The University is deeply grateful for the fact that you connect it with this great heritage. The streams of life that merge in this University do not lose their distinctive values, for through variety comes a greater vigor of life," he continued.

Silver Strands

President Graham then called upon the Jewish students to keep the connections with their racial, spiritual, and intellectual heritage, in order that through them the rest of the University might be enriched.

Congratulations

"The University is happy," he concluded, "to extend its wholehearted welcome to the Hillel foundation and to congratulate the students on the presence here of Rabbi Bernard Zeiger."

After the ritual service conducted by Rabbi Freund of Goldsboro, and Rabbi Zeiger, a reception was held for those present. Mr. John E. Toms sang the ritual responses, accompanied by Mrs. Toms.

Bull's Head Talk

Mrs. Hope Summerell Chamberlain, author of "Old Days in Chapel Hill," will be the speaker for the Bull's Head tea to be held in the tea room Tuesday afternoon at 4:15. The public is cordially invited to be present.

Alumni Association To Entertain "Second Generation" Carolinians

100 Alumni Offsprings Are Enrolled Here This Quarter

"When I'm an old alumnus, with a baby on my knee, I'll teach him that the alphabet begins with U. N. C."

These were the opening words of a song that was popular on the campus back 30 or 40 years ago.

The tradition among University alumni of sending their sons, and in more recent years their daughters, to Chapel Hill, is one of long standing. In 1889 at the centennial celebration of the granting of the University's charter, one class presented a beautiful cup to its member having the eldest son. Much to do was made over the fact that the boy would follow his father's footsteps to Chapel Hill.

Maryland University Represents Merger Of Small Colleges

Present College Organized 16 Years Ago Well-Known

The young men who arrive at Chapel Hill today from the University of Maryland are representing a well-known college, and one which they might well be proud to represent.

The present University of Maryland, being only 16 years old, is practically an infant school as compared with our own. The old university was composed of the schools of law, medicine, pharmacy and dentistry at Baltimore, and was founded in 1807.

Funds denied

Up until the time of its affiliation with St. John's College, one of the oldest schools in America, the University of Maryland was denied all university endowment funds on the ground that it was simply a professional school managed by the faculties, not by the trustees, and thus was not a university.

In 1920 this was merged with the Maryland State College at College Park, and the eastern branch of the university for colored students at Princess Anne, to form the present university. The state board of agriculture and the state horticultural department are also connected with the university, thus giving it a greater variety of interests and opportunities for students.

Alumni Association To Entertain "Second Generation" Carolinians

class there are approximately 80 sons of alumni registered. Altogether, including transfer students, there are about 100 sons or daughters of alumni enrolled in the University this fall for the first time.

These "second generation" University students are to be guests of the University Alumni association tomorrow afternoon at the Carolina Inn for a get-together at 4:30. A unique feature of the occasion will be the presence at the meeting of members of the University faculty who taught the fathers of the new students.

Response

Last week Alumni Secretary J. Maryon Saunders asked all alumni fathers of the new students to nominate present members of the faculty and administration, who were also their own teachers a generation ago.

CPU TO PRESENT NATIVE ORATOR HERE NEXT WEEK

Thomas Dixon To Speak For Jeffersonian Democrats

Thomas Dixon, North Carolina orator, will appear in Memorial hall Wednesday night as the third political luminary to be presented this fall by the Carolina Political union.

Following Col. Frank Knox by one day, Dixon will represent Jeffersonian Democrats in his address on "America at the Cross Roads."

Advance Review

An advance review of his speech states, "The threat of Radicalism against America is handled without gloves, in the deep conviction of our own Revolutionary ideal of the equal rights of man."

Leading Lecturer

Dixon's appearance here will be the third in a series that is taking him throughout the state. For 10 years he was considered a leading lecturer of the country.

He has temporarily suspended his writings, which in years past have included the famous novel, "The Clansmen," which was adapted into the famous silent film, "The Birth of a Nation."

The other speaker presented by the Carolina Political union this fall was Bishop Paul Jones, socialist, who appeared in Memorial hall last Monday night.

LONG PROCESSION WILL MEET KNOX

Out Of State Students To Welcome Party

To add a cosmopolitan air to Frank Knox's reception here next Tuesday, Frank McGlenn yesterday completed arrangements for 15 out-of-state students to drive their cars in the procession that will greet the Republican vice-presidential candidate at the Pittsboro street railway siding.

At the same time, the Carolina Political union president announced that he was invited to ride with Col. Knox on his special train to Asheville, following the address here.

Col. Knox, it was understood yesterday, has changed his plans and will make his appearance in Asheville as originally scheduled.

In anticipation of an overflow crowd at Memorial hall next Tuesday, the C. P. U. has arranged for the erection of two amplifiers in front of the building during the address.

Football Ushers

The following men have been selected to work at today's game. They must report at the north gate at 12:45 sharp. It will be necessary to have student pass-books to gain admission.

E. P. Wolfe, E. Bullard, A. P. Carlton, W. C. Curlee, H. G. Webb, F. C. Zimmerman, E. Stevens, J. M. Davenport, E. S. Bullins, J. H. Blalock, J. C. Bateman, V. S. Sparrow.

Bureau Plans Opening This Morning In 'Y' At 9:30

Adopt Schedule

The Y. W. C. A. cabinet girls turned match makers yesterday afternoon, and today neither coeds nor the majority sex of the campus need worry about lack of dates, as far as the "Y" cabinet is concerned.

Launching what they hope to prove a permanent venture, the officers drew up plans and a constitution for the University's first date bureau. This morning at 9:30 will mark the opening of the organization.

This Morning

All men interested in obtaining dates for the Carolina-Maryland game or the Grail dance will be given the opportunity from 9:30 to 11:00 this morning in the Y. W. cabinet room on the second floor of the "Y."

As each boy files his request he will be allowed to make stipulations as to disposition, personal appearance, mannerisms, interests and general set-up of the desired young woman, and the "matchmakers" will try to fill his order accordingly.

"On a crowded campus such as ours there is a great need for some agency which will enable men and women to meet each other and become acquainted. If the Carolina men indicate that they wish the bureau to become permanent, opportunity will be made to sign up for dates for all

SORORITIES' BIDS GO OUT TUESDAY

Rushing Season Closes With Final Dinners

The Chi Omegas' formal dinner at the Washington Duke hotel last night concluded the rushing season for sororities at the University.

Sorority bids will be distributed through the office of Mrs. M. H. Stacy, dean of women, Tuesday, following a four day period of silence which opens today. Coeds receiving bids will go to their respective sorority houses Tuesday afternoon after they have pledged.

Rushing rules forbade open rushing this year. Each sorority gave four parties during which rushees were free to discuss sorority matters with members.

Entertain

The season opened October 5 when Pi Beta Phi entertained rushees at an informal tea at the Pi Phi house. Rushees were then entertained each afternoon and night until Thursday by one of the two sororities.

The "Chi Omega Night club" was opened Monday night. Tuesday afternoon Chi Omega asked rushees to "kum to skool and lern all about Chi O." Tuesday night Pi Beta Phi admitted rushees to the "Pi Phi Casino," and Wednesday afternoon the Pi Phi took all rushees to their circus. Wednesday night the Chi Omegas told the future of all rushees at their "Little Gypsy Tea Room."

The final rush party given by each sorority was a formal dinner. Pi Beta Phi entertained 22 rushees at the Hope Valley Country club Thursday night, and Chi Omega entertained 30 rushees last night at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham.

Deep-Sea Treasure Found By Student In Boarding House

Friendly Oyster Proves Old Adage That All Pearls Aren't In The Sea

Bob Browder, whose home is less than 50 miles from the ocean, had to come inland to find a pearl. Browder, third year student from Wallace, N. C., was eating supper last night at a local boarding house. Biting with gusto into a tempting oyster he encountered some hard substance, which turned out to be a pearl.

Said Browder, commenting on the incident, "Well, it looks like a pearl and it acts like a pearl, but I'm not so sure."

Fear was expressed that the pearl would prove valueless, because the oyster had been cooked, but the finder announced his intention of having it examined today by a local jeweler.

Grail Dance

The second in a series of four dances being given this quarter by the Grail will be held in the Tin Can tonight with Lew Gogerty and his orchestra furnishing the music.

According to Jim Finlay, president of the Grail, the change from Bynum Gym to the Tin Can was necessary to overcome the crowded conditions that have prevailed at dances in the past.

BAND TO INVADE NYU WITH TEAM

Negotiate NBC Hookup From Radio City

After days of anxious waiting, the University band received word yesterday that they will accompany Carolina's varsity football team when they invade Yankee stadium one week from today.

Already plans are being made for the band to put on a real performance between the halves. The band is also trying to negotiate for a program over the NBC hookup from Radio City.

Precedent

It is understood that every team visiting in Yankee stadium has brought their band. Carolina will continue this tradition.

The band will leave Chapel Hill by bus at 7 p. m. for Durham where they will transfer to the train for New York. After the game at Yankee stadium the band will have until 1 o'clock Sunday morning to see the sights of the big city.
