Spurred on by prospects of a free social and picture show, free ice cream cones and cash prizes, residents of the University dormitories will compete tomorrow in decorating for Homecoming day.

SIX DAYS REMAIN FOR GYM ESSAYS

Wednesday, At 3 P. M. Set As Deadline

With only six more days to go, the DAILY TAR HEEL essay contest is swinging down the home stretch.

Student essays on "The Benefits To Be Derived from a New Gymnasium and Swimming Pool" are due at 3 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon when they will be turned over to the judges for selection of two winners to receive $15 in prizes.

According to authorities in charge of the PWA project, the essays will be valuable in raising the University's share of the allotment. Points which are brought out in the essays will be used as arguments in raising the funds.

The prizes will be awarded on pure merit of the benefits suggested, and not on excellence of writing.

The rules of the contest are:

A telephone call to Dr. Graham's office disclosed no knowledge of the visit. A reporter was dispatched to the President's office

BRADSHAW GIVES TALK IN CHAPEL

Dean Discusses Student Mortality In Detail

Discussing various aspects of student mortality at the University, Dean Francis Bradshaw addressed freshman assembly yesterday morning.

"Only about 27 per cent of those who enter the University receive degrees," he said. "Half of those who drop out are forced to do so because they receive low grades. Many reasons account for the other half, such as lack of money, lack of interest, falling in love, and just getting tired of school."

Regrets

"You are more likely to regret leaving too soon than leaving too late," he continued. "I recall no alumnus who has ever said that he wished he had left before he did. The main course of study here is planned for four years. Taking only a part of it is just like eating half a meal."

Dean Bradshaw made four suggestions to those who wish to stay in school. "Try to remain four years; plan those years well; meet the demands of your courses; and above all, start to do so right now," he said.

Student Types

The speaker brought out the fact that three types of students come here. One type comes for a general survey of knowledge, or a liberal arts course. The second type comes here for an introduction to some calling. The third is the type who finishes high school, don't have to work, and come here because of no other place to go.

Dame Fashion Parades In Glory At Alpha Kappa Gamma Pageant

Show will be Presented Again Tonight in Memorial Hall At 8 O'Clock

Following their initial performance last night, Alpha Kappa Gamma will again present their pageant of dress tonight at 8 o'clock in Memorial hall.

Dancing outmoded steps in outmoded costumes, 72 campus men and women brought the atmosphere of the old Southern plantation and the "Diamond Jim Gibson girl" days to Chapel Hill. Scenes displaying styles, dances, and songs of 1776, 1860, 1880, 1900, and 1936 showed the evolution of American social life for the past 160 years.

Second Part

The second part of the show featured 10 of the most stylish coeds on the campus parading advanced winter fashions. Elizabeth Keeler as Dame Fashion typified all styles as she reviewed the models displaying the newest creations. Music for the dances was furnished by Nancy Smith, pianist, and Albin Pikutis, violinist. Special refrains were sung by the Agonizers, a quartet composed of Frank and Gene Turner, Ernest Vanderburgh, and DeWitt Bartlett.

A special feature of the pageant was the personally autographed program. A number of names of prominent students and professors appeared on the program, signifying the endorsement of the project by them.

Assisting Alpha Kappa Gamma in presenting the show are the Y. W. C. A., Spencer Hall, town girls, Chi Omega and Pi Beta Phi. Each of these groups worked up one of the scenes. The seven members of Alpha Kappa Gamma headed committees arranging the event.

All costumes and gowns for the show were secured by the Betsy Ann shop of Chapel Hill. Admission to the pageant is 30 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.
