LEN' YOUR EARS

By LEN RUBIN

Boston College vs. Boston U.—it is swell to read about Normie Quarles, former Carolina boxing sensation, but yesterday's paper carried his name close to the obituary column. He was setback by Leonard Del Genio at the New York hippodrome in a 10 rounder. Quarles had recently upset Chino Alvarez, Dixie lightweight champion, and had a grand opportunity to establish himself against Del Genio, but the Bronx lad was too good, dropping only three rounds. He also floored the Tar Heel for the count of nine in the first—TIE SCORE . . . say police . . . can only keep . . . the city peace!

Syracuse vs. Colgate—all you all-America selectors can relax a wee bit. Your task has been diminished no little by Larry Kelley, talkative Yale end, who recently said, "There can be no all-America without me." His next quotation will probably be, "When I graduate folks will be saying, 'There goes the end of the Yale team.'"—COLGATE . . . as last year . . . keep "orange-men" . . . far from near!

Notre Dame vs. Northwestern—at the Duke game: wonder how many folks noticed when Tom Burnette dashed off the field after the teams were lined up. We thought it was a fake sleeper as he headed for the sidelines but have since discovered that Tom observed 12 Tar Heels on the field and averted a penalty with his disappearance act—NOTRE DAME . . . with coat of green . . . paint "wild-cats" . . . from the scene!

Duquesne vs. Marquette—we were all informed that Pete Ivey was to "carry" Miss Kate Smith to the Duke tragedy. We now wonder how many were puzzled as to the contents of the huge box he lugged onto the field before game time. No one thought of taking Pete literally until that moment—MARQUETTE . . . with outlook 'rosy' . . . makes chances . . . still more cozy!

Manhattan vs. Villanova—if you are following the "United We Press" articles of the coming TarMag-YacketyBuc clash you will recall the starting plays ("comedy of errors," "strange interlude," etc.) we have in our repertoire. Sympathy toward!

Tar Babies Meet Blue Imps Today

Harriers Will Compete For Championships Here

Ranson Hill And Dalers Favored To Take Team Title

Meet Tomorrow

At 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the best harrier teams in the South will leave their marks to decide the winner of the 13th annual Southern conference cross country championship over the local five mile course.

Washington and Lee, Richmond, Davidson, N. C. State, Carolina and Duke have entered full teams while Furman has entered a lone representative.

Stars

Many individual battles are promised the spectators when Bill Lumpkin of Richmond, Bill Morse of Duke, Southern conference winner last year, Captain Graham Gammon and Bill Hendrix of Carolina and Bill Davis, N. C. State ace, come together in this annual tilt.

Lumpkin seems to be a slight favorite by virtue of his win over Morse earlier this season, but Morse has been coming along fast since that setback.

Coach Dale Ranson announced yesterday that the team which will represent Carolina in the meet will be selected from the following men: Gammon, Hendrix, Gardiner, Jones, Garland, Aderholt, Daniel, Hunter, Hall.

Reserve Meet

Preceding the race Saturday will be a return battle between the Guilford college harriers and the Carolina varsity reserves. The Quakers have a victory over the reserves under their belt by a close 27-30 margin, and the reserves will be out to even up matters.

The men from whom the reserves team will be selected are: F. Wakely, W. Wakely, C. Moore, J. Baden, M. Gewolb, P. Kind, W. Mauter, Steward, Knight, Sacrinty, Morgan, and Honeycutt.

the Yacketies prompts us to donate one of our secret plays to their coach, Fletcher "Junior" Ferguson. To him we give our play "Three Men on a Horse," with but one word of caution: "Don't let your three other backs take advantage of you on (Continued on last page)

BETAS PLAY S.A.E. FOR FRAT CROWN

Mural Football Leaders Meet At Fetzer

Probable lineups:

Beta Theta Pi	Pos.	S.A.E.
Tennille	l.e.	Carr, W.
McGaig	l.t.	Shaffner
Hines	l.g.	Carr, J.
Reid	c.	Cary
Richards	r.g.	Myers
Miller	r.t.	Daniel
Coan	r.e.	Poe
Davis	h.b.	Mickey
Cooper	h.b.	Stovall
Blythe	q.b.	Allen
Bass	f.b.	Fleming

This afternoon at 4:15 the Betas and S.A.E. will clash at Fetzer field to determine the fraternity division winner and to find the opponent for Grimes in the campus championship final which will be staged tomorrow.

Both teams enter the playoff after having completed the intramural season without a defeat. S.A.E. has gone through a fairly easy schedule to reach their position while the Betas have been tested to the limit and have survived, going so far as to come back with only 35 seconds to play in their game with Phi Delta Theta to push over a touchdown which took the game out of the fire.

Veterans

However, when the two teams take the field this afternoon past records will be thrown to the winds and neither team will take the field the favorite. S.A.E. has the advantage in experience in that a number of the men played on last year's campus championship squad.

In Charley Poe and Ross Allen, S.A.E. possesses one of the greatest intramural passing and receiving combinations, Poe having made the all-campus team at end last year. The Betas will retaliate with Blythe and Tennille who have shown remarkable playing ability throughout the season. Both teams are about even in regards to height, weight, and reserves.

Z.B.T., Ruffin, Zeta Psi, and Law School completed the regularly scheduled intramural grid program with wins yesterday afternoon.

Captain Gammon

Pictured above is Graham Gammon, Tar Heel harrier who will be one of Carolina's representatives in the 13th annual Southern conference meet to be run here tomorrow. The local runners have lost only one meet and are undefeated in the conference.

Gamecocks Face Heels In Homecoming

The Tar Heel gridders leave early this evening for Columbia, S. C., for the battle of the Carolinas with the Gamecocks tomorrow in the University of South Carolina's Homecoming day festivities.

The Palmetto team held the Blue Devils scoreless for three quarters when the two teams met up some weeks ago though the Wademen rushed through three touchdowns in the final period. This will be the first and last time that senior Tar Heels have met up with the South Carolinians as the last game was in 1929, the Tar Heels winning 40-0.

Led by Captain Bob Johnson, the Gamecocks will present a potentially strong group of sophomore players well versed in the arts of running, passing and kicking.

Carolina Frosh Primed To Upset Little Devils

Frosh Invade Durham This Afternoon To Play Imps

Skidmore Doleful

The Tar Babies leave for Durham today at 12 o'clock to face the undefeated Blue Imps in the last game of the season for both teams.

Coach Skidmore is pessimistic about the outcome of the game in spite of the fact that all his backfield stars will be in uniform. He bemoans the fact that the members of his squad continually injure themselves off the field. Megson, a tackle who has only recently returned to practice, suffered an ankle injury while walking out to the field.

Carlton, regular center, kept himself out of the important game by turning his ankle Thursday night. Politics have kept Taylor, first-string end, out of drills all week, and Claude Sapp, 150-pounder, will start in his place. Ralston, watch-fob center, will start the game at Carlton's position.

Imp's Record

Duke's big line will greatly outweigh the Tar Babies, but the backfields will be about even. Woody and McAfee, Imp line-smashers, are not expected to play, but the Carolina frosh are definitely the underdogs. Coach Herschel Caldwell's charges downed the powerful Quantic

Marines in their last game by two touchdowns and boast wins over Davidson and Wake Forest. The only blotch on their record is a scoreless tie with N. C. State's freshmen—who routed the Tar Babies 41-0.

The game is always the most important of the year to both squads, and the opening whistle will begin a four-year rivalry between the players which will wind up in the Duke stadium in 1939. The first meeting of the boys always means a colorful scrap, as the feeling of rivalry existing between the varsities of the two schools is already rife among the yearlings.

Carolina's lineup today: Vail-lancourt and Sapp, ends; Megson and Desich, tackles; Smith and Blalock, guards; Ralston, center; Radman, Carver, Meighan, and Soufas, backs.
