PETE IVEY, director of Graham Memorial, has just petitioned the University administration to provide for the maintenance of the Student union building. At present funds for repairs, painting, janitor services come from students' fees; Ivey wants all student fees to contribute to the program of the memorial.

The policy of the administration has been to let student fees pay for maintenance of buildings which are for student activities. For example, the gym, infirmary and Graham Memorial.

But on the ground that the Y. M. C. A. building houses the Book Exchange (an administrative agency), the University provides for the upkeep of the "Y" building. Arguing that the Playmakers hall is used as a classroom (in addition to its student activity purposes), the administration provides maintenance of the theater. And on the ground that the infirmary gives campus services, the administration has placed no little money recently into hospital building improvements.

The rooms of Graham Memorial, of course, are never employed for classroom purposes. Not even the Grail room where one course meets regularly. And of course the faculty (an administrative agency) never uses the union for receptions or anything. Neither is Ivey's program a campus service . . .

• Something Else

RESIGNATION of Robert Sherrill, five years auditor of the Activities fund, was accepted Saturday.

Behind that Audit board's acceptance there was considerably more than "salary difficulties," as reportorial presentation implied. Mr. Sherrill is accounting instructor in the commerce school, as well as student auditor, and he recently found it impossible to perform the work required to keep tract of all the Activities fund in time limits which would justify the auditing fees he's been receiving. He had to teach, too . . .

Considering the matter from the Audit board's stand, there were the assistants, working for Mr. Sherrill, besides the auditor himself. In conference with prominent state accounting authorities, the Audit board considered Mr. Sherrill's time difficulties and decided upon this arrangement: instead of having a student auditor, a half-time bookkeeper and the auditor's assistants, you'd have a full time bookkeeper who'd book all transactions and when accounting time arrived an "outside" auditor would be called in.

It is readily clear what happened therefore: Sherrill, auditing, teaching and supervising lieutenants couldn't make his time and salary requirements check. The Audit board went deep into the matter and emerged with a new set-up which ought to meet the situation more exactly than, and as effectively, as before.

Alton Utley and Fred Berdan, pledges of Phi Kappa Sigma, were over at Duke recently looking for a bit of feminine pulchritude. A fraternity brother, Phil Link, seeing the boys' distress, asked Dot, the girl with him, if she could fix them up with a date. Dot, evidently not wishing to give the matter much of her valuable time, told the boys a name to look up in the next dormitory. The freshmen did as instructed.

Soon footsteps sounded on the steps. Alton very anxiously observed the approaching girl. She was, in his own words, "two-foot high and ten feet broad."

"Hello," the girl said. "Are you the boys who called me?" Alton thought quickly.

"We only came to tell you that Dot wanted you to come to dinner tomorrow," Alton said.

The boys have not ventured back to discover the outcome of their dastardly act.

While Bob Gordon, one of Everett's Brooklyn freshmen, was attending his biology class under Dr. Costello last week his attention was called to an interesting incident going on outside. When he saw what was happening he immediately went into a violent tantrum, jumped up and shouted, "Dr. Costello, may I go out there? I'm getting a ticket!"

Dr. Costello calmly glanced out of the window and instructed Bob to resume his seat, adding, "You deserve a ticket for parking in a no parking zone."

Although his reprimand was only verbal at the police station, Bob has not brought his car to class since.

Igor Gorin has a nomination to make for the most practical fan writer. The CBS "Hollywood Hotel" baritone received a set of initialed handkerchiefs with this note: "I am sending these kerchiefs in appreciation of the enjoyment you have given me on the air. I know you will appreciate them but I also realize that you are probably too busy to write a note of appreciation. Therefore I am enclosing a letter of thanks which needs only your signature!" Igor signed it.

When Professor Wolf had concluded a lengthy talk on the subject of trade names, an inquisitive voice from the rear of the room asked, "And what do the economists say about that?" Professor Wolf immediately informed this so-called student of economics that he was listed in the catalogue as an economist and that his word would have to be accepted.

Tau Epsilon Phi entertained at a dance Saturday night in the ballroom of the Carolina Inn. Freddie Johnson completely won over the crowd with his toe-tickling melodies. Helen Bentley who formerly sang with Art Kassel gave a number. About 125 people attended the function.

Polly Pollock, Chi-O coed, makes the following unofficial comment on the Carolina-Duke game: "Why, they made at least 50 yards on their pants!" According to Polly, the satin-trousered Devils could slide out of a tackle better than the famous eels because of their sissy uniforms.

Jim Hutchins is one of the sweetest boys on the campus. At least that is the opinion of the lucky people who received samples of a confection which "Handsome Jim" is distributing.

★ REQUEST

To the Editor,
 The DAILY TAR HEEL:
 The Secretary of District Number Three of the Order of Ahepa directed a letter to President Graham under date of November 20 in which the University was requested to furnish the names and local addresses of all students of Greek descent who are now enrolled with us here.

Our records are not sufficient to serve this purpose. I am wondering, therefore, if you will not be kind enough to give us space in which to request all students of Greek descent who are now enrolled here to come to this office, 101 South, and register their names and local addresses with Miss Harris or me. We are eager to serve the Order of Ahepa but without the active cooperation of students of Greek descent we cannot help in this instance.

BEN HUSBANDS.

★ PICKPOCKETS

To the Editor,
 The DAILY TAR HEEL:
 It seems as if the pickpockets, being foiled by so many of our brave policemen, have taken other means of having their fun.

Two visitors, Saturday, were walking near the Tin Can, where the German club was giving a dance, when two men walked up and told them to stick up their hands. The boys, thinking it a joke, took their time. Not until they felt the barrel of an automatic stick in their side did they realize the act was not a joke. One of the visitor's pocket book was taken but luckily enough there was nothing in it except his driver's license. The other one was not quite so lucky. The bandit that searched him relieved him of 80 cents.

Moral: Never take serious things as a joke!

Bernie Abrams.

★ GO ON HOME AND STRUM

To the Editor,
 The DAILY TAR HEEL:
 The author of the article [in Sunday's DAILY TAR HEEL] . . . has evidently forgotten Dean Bradshaw's statement that all assembly programs cannot please all listeners. If this person be human, as he says he is in his letter, his mental potentialities are apparently nihil; for he fails to realize that the human beings who appear in assembly also have their weaknesses.

It is indeed a pity that these assembly programs are too far above the head of this mental infant. He should, however, concentrate all his efforts on trying to get some small bit of satisfaction from the better things which the University has to offer. Otherwise, he should return to his home, where he can sit and chat with his associates about the weather and strum on his guitar with his untutored fingers while his only love bawls "It Ain't Goin' to Rain no More," or "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round."

Behind The Wheels

Ernest Vanderburgh

By ERIKA ZIMMERMANN

Ernest Vanderburgh, founder of the Playmaker "Agonizers" and chairman of the campus committee of the student League of Nations association, lived in China for 14 years without tasting chop suey once.

The baritone peace-maker can't give a detailed account of his trip to the Orient—he was three months old at the time. All he remembers about China is that there were an "awful lot of funny people."

All from China

The "Agonizers" are four boys from China who harmonize—just "one of those things that grewed like Topsy," explains Vanderburgh. Harry Davis, Playmaker-professor, thought up the title and it has stuck ever quartets in that there are three baritones and one tenor.

A political science major in his senior year, Vanderburgh spent his first two years of college at Cornell where he was active in campus affairs. Incidentally, he sang the role of Pish-Tush in the "Mikado." "Van" likes "Carolina very much" and finds it a lot more comfortable than Cornell.

Carving out ship models is this Chinese-speaking student's favorite hobby. He's carved two so far, but has "only started." Vanderburgh also likes to play tennis but confesses that he plays "a lousy game." When he is happy he is lazy—or vice versa.

Present plans of the League of Nations committee call for a speech by National League of Nations Director Eichelberger in December. This committee, says Vanderburgh, is trying to "educate itself and the public."

When "Van" gets out of college, he wants a job—any kind of a job, but preferably one that pays $10 a week or more.
