League Head Changes Date Of Addresses

Eichelberger Delayed; Will Arrive Here Next Week

Dr. Clark Eichelberger, national director of the League of Nations association, will not be able to speak here tonight as had been originally planned by the local League of Nations association.

Dr. Eichelberger, who has recently returned from observing the meetings of the League assembly in Geneva, was scheduled to speak at meetings here, at Duke, and at N. C. State.

Here Next Week

The postponed meetings will be held Wednesday and Thursday, December 9 and 10. On Wednesday the world affairs authority will speak in Memorial hall during assembly hour. Dr. Eichelberger will speak again at 3:30 p. m. in the main lounge of Graham Memorial on Thursday.

Unexpected visitors from Geneva unavoidably delayed the national director, but he is expected to arrive on the Carolina campus next Wednesday morning. Invitations have been sent to the students and faculty of 12 North Carolina schools inviting them to attend the meetings.

Officers of the association here have expressed the hope that Dr. Eichelberger will accompany the University delegation to the model assembly that will be held December 11 and 12 at Winthrop college, Rock Hill, S. C.

V. Cook, circulation librarian.

If the use of the library justifies this extension of Sunday hours the revision may become a part of the working schedule during the winter and spring quarters.

Dean of Students One of Many Victims of Two Youthful Durham Criminals

By MAC SMITH

Durhammen John O'Neill and Raymond Pickett were being held last night by Orange and Durham county police on assorted charges of murder, filling station breaking, automobile theft and the highway robbery of Dean Francis Bradshaw.

Murder charges against O'Neill followed the 18-year-old boy's attempted robbery and shooting at Jake Capps' service station near here on the Nelson road, Thursday night.

Pal Pickett, 21, had already been apprehended in Durham Tuesday when Chapel Hill police traced down the Bradshaw hold-up. Pickett was then charged with two recent filling station robberies in Chapel Hill, a pressing club breaking in Carrboro, and the theft of Joe Sparrow's automobile, in which car several of the Carrboro clothes were found.

Dean Bradshaw, walking out to his home on Gimghoul road after midnight Saturday, November 21, had just passed Graham dormitory when two men in "a black coupe, apparently heavy," stopped him and, at the point of a gun, took a pen-knife, chain and several dollars in cash.

The stick-up was hurriedly abandoned, Dean Bradshaw explains, on the approach of two other cars from the dormitory direction. They were headed for the Raleigh road and were forced to pass the highwaymen's car on the wrong side of the street. The robbers, back in their car, started off at a fast pace and all three cars crossed over the slight incline there, three abreast.

Mr. Bradshaw headed home through the Park woods, taking a definitely off-the-street path. No pencil, no paper, he kept repeating the number on the license!

Freddy Johnson and band, on coup by the junior executive committee, will play in Memorial hall Thursday at 10:30 especially for the members of the junior class.

Money Saved

Over 325 juniors must hear Johnson's swing music if the class budget is to be properly approved. Audit board confirmation of Student council rulings make it necessary that over half of the class' enrollment approve the budget before it can become effective.

The present junior class is the largest in the history of the University. Budget approval must come before December 10, President Rube Graham points out, since Yackety Yack discounts, of considerable amount, are impossible after that date.

Senior Class Is Unable To Have Smoker

Failure To Pass Budget Will Not Permit Annual Affair

When far below the number of seniors necessary to validate the senior class budget assembled last Tuesday in Bingham hall, Class President Niles Bond announced that as a result the customary December senior class smoker this year will not be held.

Tuesday's meeting was the second unsuccessful attempt by Bond to muster 250 seniors for approval of the class budget.

Yesterday he said that there would be no further attempt at a meeting for some time.

Activities

Bond told those present at last Tuesday's meeting that, as the result of a Student council ruling, the following class activities will not be possible until the budget is approved:

1. December class smoker.
2. Class dance.
3. Senior week.
4. Free movies.
5. Commencement week program.
6. Class gift.

Discouraged by the response to the first two attempted meetings, Bond will question the Student council this week as to possible means of legalizing the class budget other than by a class assembly.

Carnegie Fund To Help Bring Philosopher To University

Open Negotiations

Prospects of Philosopher John MacMurray's teaching here next spring brightened materially yesterday when the Carnegie Endowment Fund appropriated $1,000 to supplement local funds in securing the University of London professor.

Release from his London obligations must come before MacMurray's schedule can be definitely announced. The world renowned student of social philosophy, who created such clamor on his American tour, has expressed his willingness to come to the University next spring.

Endorsement

The Carnegie gift, coming from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, brought with it the foundation's endorsement of the professor's appearing here.

Local administrative officials have been eager in promoting the project, and Harry Comer's quick trip to New York last month in connection with the Human Relations Institute included contacting the Carnegie foundation. If plans do completely materialize, MacMurray will be one of the outstanding men on the Relations Institute program.

Formal communication between the University and the University of London for the release of MacMurray has already begun.

The Gilbert and Sullivan light opera will be given in the winter quarter, but it was thought that an early start would be advisable for such an undertaking. However, there will be no rehearsals until after the holidays.

Extensive musical training is not necessary, it was further announced. Those wishing to act and sing major roles are to go to the Playmaker theater in the afternoon; those trying out for the chorus will be heard this evening at Hill Music hall.
