Boojum Visits Tar Heel Staff

Black Scotty Investigates Offices of "Yellow Journal" and Leaves in Disdain

By BOB PERKINS

Nell Booker, Dr. Johnny's artist daughter, has a black scottie named Boojum which has been the subject of many of her cartoons.

The other day she left him in the care of the DAILY TAR HEEL office while she attended a meeting of the Woman's association. Boojum became bored with the unlitary company he was keeping, decided that Dr. Booker's opinions of the "yellow journal" were true and went home.

Later, Nell was much distressed at not finding Boojum in the office. A reporter suggested that Boojum might be in the Grail room attending a staff meeting. Nell opened the door quietly, and not wishing to interrupt the great minds at work bent down, snapped her fingers and whistled. There was no dog in the room. The staff stared at Nell in astonishment until one member suggested, "It's Bismarck."

Olsen Speaks To Freshmen

16 Ways Given To Keep From Being "Bore"

"Sixteen Ways to Keep Yourself from being a Bore or a Bore," was Professor W. A. Olsen's subject as he spoke to the freshmen yesterday morning.

"In your conversation," said Olsen, "avoid being a pompous strutter, a crusty egotist, or a condescending snob. Keep away from too many wisecracks, false modesty, or fishing for compliments. Don't be a pedant or a sophist who is training to be a shyster lawyer. Steer away from being too dirty-minded, or taking the conversation from its track. You have seen the mental flyweight, the dumbbell, and the roaring lion who is ready to fight at the drop of a hat. You have also seen the fog machine, and the gusher."

Ideas

Olsen went on to describe speech activities here, and to
