Duke Boxers Win

(Continued from page three) and Polatti just before the final bell. It was a rough and tumble bout all the way with Schmitt's comeback gaining him the win.

Gamecock Win

South Carolina's only decision victory was in the 165-lb. class when Rex Williams defeated Al Mann, who had knocked him out in the 1936 meet. In the 115-lb. class Frank Jenkins of the Gamecocks was given a draw with Bobby Hoger in a bout that looked like a win for the South Carolinian.

Captain Harry Hilton won the other South Carolina draw by getting the split verdict with Wilton Mann in an evenly fought bout. Ray Matulewicz, Duke's other N. C. A. A. champ, received a forfeit from Jerry Hughes, when the latter could not appear because of "scholastic difficulties."

The 125-lb. decision went to Jim Little of Duke over Gilbert Colina in a hard fought bout. Both boys landed several good punches and the decision should have been a draw.

Fencing

"I'm all for it and I will certainly lend all the cooperation within my power to Coach Coffin and his assistants towards making fencing a permanent sport here," said Schnell Friday.

Student Coach Coffin is also very desirous of having fencing within the school. If the problem confronted Coffin of having to choose between intercollegiate and intramural fencing, he is sure that he would unhesitatingly prefer to eliminate outside competition and retain sword-play on the campus. Such a problem will probably never face the Tar Heel fencing instructor but it clearly shows his attitude towards mural fencing.

The Moving Finger

By C. W. Gilmore

Berlin, Jan. 9.—Waving the loan of 25,000 German troops in the faces of insurgent leaders, Adolf Hitler today gave "orders" for the capture of Madrid within two weeks.

Anxious for a showdown in the Spanish crisis which has reached international complications, the Nazi Number One Man is said to have demanded speedy success in the Madrid campaign from General Francisco Franco, rebel leader, who repeatedly has declared that he needs 70,000 more German troops to win. Germany has lent the Spanish rebels $180,000,000, and 10,000 machine-trained soldiers of the Reich. Benito Mussolini has supplemented Germany's donations with tanks, airplanes, pilots, and food supplies.

Meanwhile French officials ordered the troop strength of French Morocco increased 60,000 men as a threat to German occupation of Spanish Morocco, through which insurgents have smuggled Fascist soldiers and supplies.

It is believed by observers that Germany intends to occupy Spanish Morocco and hold the territory in order to bargain for other colonies.

As a result of an aerial bombing of Madrid in which two British subjects were wounded and four killed, the British government became increasingly involved in the crisis by censoring the insurgent government of Spain.

Raleigh, Jan. 9.—A bond issue amounting to $225,000 and intended to match a PWA appropriation for the construction of a new gymnasium and swimming pool for the University was sold today by the council of state.

The University revenue bonds were taken by Scott, Horner and Mason, Inc., of Lynchburg, Va., and by the Irving company of Cincinnati. The issues bear four per cent interest.

The federal appropriation for a gymnasium, swimming pool, and women's dormitory was made in the fall. According to PWA regulations, the institution receiving the funds must match them to meet the total estimated cost.

Peiping, Jan. 9.—As part of the program to stamp out drug addicts in China, Lu Ju-Hsin, 32-year-old narcotic peddler, was shot through the back of the head in a public ceremony held today near the municipal garbage dump.

Ju-Hsin was arrested with 60 ounces of narcotics in his possession. Sentenced to death under China's new law prohibiting the use of habit-forming drugs by addicts, he was dragged by soldiers to the execution place. There, half frozen from a long walk through Peiping's streets, he was forced to kneel and then shot before a crowd of 10,000 persons.

The drug addict was buried in the potter's field, which, in the next few weeks, will become the last resting place of thousands of Chinese narcotic users.

Police Chief

this sanctum of the law that moves Chief Sloan to yearn for new quarters. Not long ago he was sitting at his desk, writing out a report. The quiet of his retreat was rudely shattered when a large section of the ceiling came loose and fell to the floor with a crash. The plaster did not hit the Chief, but came close enough to startle him considerably.

Kittredge

(Continued from page two) correspondence for countless other scholars. He had inspired out of their indifference and frightened out of their skins two generations of Harvard undergraduates. He had taught Cambridge taxi-drivers to halt their cabs and idle at attention whenever he decided to cross the street, for he never condescended to stop, look and listen at the curb.

Authority

Professor Kittredge as a Shakspeare lecturer has two essential complementary aspects, those of the teacher and of the scholar. Only the brave among Harvard collegians dared register for his English 2, in which four or five of Shakspeare's plays were studied intensively throughout a year, with the motto, "Find out what Shakspeare said and what he meant when he said it." The fabulous "Kitty," with his annihilating wit, his tall majesty and his Shavian beard, was terrible to the dull, the supercilious, the coughers and the hat-wearers. But the brave (and they were many; his large classrooms were always crowded) did find out what Shakespeare said and what he meant when he said it.

The Kittredge reputation for scholarship receives two-way illustration in this episode of the "Saga":

He had labored a long time on a riddle in the Great Bard's deeds. He was not fated to find answer. He sailed the sea, crossed the swan-road, came to Oxford. He called upon an Oxford don. He would weave words with him. This one did not know him; he had not heard his name over the handclasp.

He answered: "There is only one man alive who can tell you that. He is George Lyman Kittredge of Harvard."

"Are you certain he is the only one?"

"Absolutely," gave the other in answer.

"Thank you," said Professor Kittredge.

Ruth Crowell

(Continued from first page) of the publication. "A leadership fraternity for women should be the guiding influence for all women on college campuses where there is an Alpha Kappa Gamma circle," writes the editor.

Miss Crowell, along with being editor of The Torch Bearer, is the historian of the local chapter of the fraternity and one of the seven women initiated into the Athenian circle for outstanding service to the campus.

The local chapter has been active on this campus in establishing a Y. W. C. A., sponsoring May Day and a fashion pageant, and presenting several entertainments.

In her plea for progress, Miss Crowell writes, "We must be vital, dynamic, progressive, and inspired if we are to last. Shall we be trivial, old-fashioned, dull, and static, or shall we be Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity?"

Shirley Sings and Talks Chinese

The chief force in bringing them together, Shirley Temple holds Alice Faye and Robert Young that way in a scene from Twentieth Century-Fox's "Stowaway," in which Shirley even sings and talks Chinese in her most remarkable starring picture. Now playing at the Carolina.

"Cut" Privileges

students, and to force the individual instructors to keep very intricate daily records which should be transmitted to the central administrative offices of the schools. Unannounced was the fact that students might really "cut" five times; the catalog read: suspension from the University after unexcused absences exceed the number of times the class meets per week!

New Ruling

Five years Carolina ran on that arrangement; then last year the faculty acted again. Now all matters of class attendance regulation is left up to the individual instructors in the belief that some courses should require absolute attendance, others not . . . at the discretion of the instructor. Honor roll students are no longer so recognized blanketly by the University.

Results (say commentators): Increased flexibility, which flexibility should conform with the natures of the various courses; less detailed recording demanded of the instructor. Some departments were forced to make set rules for courses with many sections, as in elementary English and economics. General lack of a definite creed on which all students can act—consequent room for individual misunderstandings.

Wrestling

165-Pound Class

Bob Williams, a letterman, has the 165-pound class all to himself. Williams went to the finals in the Southern conference tournament last year and he should do equally as well this season.

Woodson, co-captain of last year's freshman team, Jordan and Strickler are all battling for the 175 pound slot. Coach Quinlan believes Woodson has remarkable possibilities. However, Jordan and Strickler are still in the running for the berth.

Heavyweight Class

Bob Crystal will probably get the call in the heavyweight class. He did well as a freshman last year, and his showing has been improving in practice this year.

The match with V. P. I. will take on added importance this year as there will be no Southern conference wrestling tournament. Instead the title will be awarded to the college with the best percentage at the end of the campaign. This will make every match as important as a title fray.

WANTED TO BUY — Used clarinets, trumpets, cornets, trombones, and saxophones. Any student having any of the above instruments to sell get in touch with Mr. Slocum, room 4, Hill Music hall.

It's As Good As Her Best!

Shirley comes back strong in a picture that stands out with her very best! Far-off Shanghai . . . music . . . laughter . . . romance warlord bandits . . . danger . . . excitement . . . thrills! A gay ne'er-do-well and a glamorous girl who fights his love.
