Angna Enters At Memorial Hall Tonight

Student Series Presents Mime On Program Here at 8:30

Portraying an art, heralded as unique in the theatrical world, Angna Enters appears on the student entertainment series tonight at 8:30 in Memorial hall. "She has form," said Professor Phillips Russell, in recommending the American dance mime to his class yesterday morning.

Triple Broad Hint

Gilbert Seldes in Esquire, as a "triple broad hint to those producers who are missing a wow in the inexplicable Enters," says:

"You come away from one of her performances having seen a dozen human beings of all kinds and of all times at the moment when they express themselves with the highest intensity—the moment for which they have lived—so that you know them completely.

Revue

"She needs to be taken into some common form of entertainment like a revue, so that the people would have no fear that she was in any way arty, which she is not, and no fear that they would have any difficulty in enjoying her simple, subtle, and altogether satisfactory entertainment."

Angna Enters was born in New York City of French-Vien- (Continued on last page)

Congressman Lewis Speaks Here Monday

Future Of Constitution To Be Discussed By Legislator

"The Future of the Constitution" is the topic chosen for the address to be given by Congressman Davis J. Lewis of the sixth district of Maryland Monday night in Hill Music hall.

Lewis, who comes to Chapel Hill under the joint sponsorship of the Constitution Sesquicentennial committee and the Carolina Political union, has become one of the most outspoken critics in Congress of the power of judicial review of legislation. He views the Constitution from the standpoint of the legislator rather than that of the lawyer.

Special Welfare

In an address made some time ago on the relative rights and powers of Congress and the Supreme Court before the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, Lewis affirmed "not only has the court no present right to invalidate an act of Congress, but in reversing legislation pertaining to social welfare it is in conflict with a constitution provision which is intended as a special grant to Congress to enact such laws."

Social Security

In discussing the question of social security, recently in the political forefront, Lewis declared in a radio address that the states should raise their part of the old age pension fund through income and inheritance taxes and that the great merit of the income tax is that people pay only when they have incomes and then in proportion to their incomes.

Tommy Dorsey Will Play For Mid-Winter Dance Set

The Mime

Angna Enters, American mime, who presents an art said to be unique on the student entertainment series tonight at 8:30 in Memorial hall.

Law-Med Set This Weekend

Annual Dance Series In Bynum Gym

Bynum gymnasium will be the scene of a joint dance set given by law and medical school students tomorrow night from 9 to 1 o'clock. Saturday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock, and Saturday night, 9 to 12.

Bids have just been printed, and those wishing to attend the affair are asked to obtain them from the reading room in Manning hall any time this afternoon.

Music for the dances will be furnished by Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra.

Alpha Kappa Gamma To Give Bridge Party

Students and Townspeople Invited; Prizes Offered

A benefit bridge party will be given by Alpha Kappa Gamma Monday afternoon in the lounge of Graham Memorial from 3:30 to 6 o'clock.

"Students and townspeople are especially invited to come and play," said Jane Ross, president of A. K. G. yesterday. A sum of 25 cents will be charged for the afternoon's entertainment.

Prizes will be offered for high and low scores, and refreshments will be served. Anyone wishing to make up a table may do so by contacting any member of the fraternity.

Coed Sport Council Appoints Unit Heads

Basketball Schedule and Managers Are Announced

The Woman's Athletic council met recently and appointed the managers for the different units in the basketball schedule.

Virginia Burd will act as head manager, June and Jean Bush as managers of the town unit, Blanche Bullock will have charge of the Shack unit, Julia Folsom the Pi Phi unit, and Louise Davis the Chi O unit.

The town units will play every Tuesday and Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock, the Shack unit on Monday and Wednesday nights at 7:30, and the Pi Phi and the Chi O units on Monday and Tuesday nights at 7:30.

There will be a tournament (Continued on last page)

Radio Contract Keeps Shep Fields In New York

Bid Prices Reduced

Word has been received by the German club officers confirming the engagement of Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra to play for the club's Mid-winter dance set, February 12 and 13.

Dorsey, who will replace Shep Fields and his band, unable to appear here due to a radio engagement in New York, is not new to the Carolina campus. He and his orchestra furnished music for the Thanksgiving set in the fall of 1935.

Bynum Gym

Mid-winters will take place this year in Bynum gymnasium, and only a limited number of bids will be sold in order to accommodate the dancers. Bids have been reduced in price by the German club from $9 for the set to $7.50, with the initiation fees remaining the same—one dollar for seniors and $5 for all others.

The set will begin with a tea dance Friday afternoon, February 12, and a formal the same night, to be concluded with a tea dance the following day and another formal that night. Tickets for the set may be obtained from Randy Rowland, Louis Schaffner, Oscar Tyree, Morris Fitts, Jim Finlay, Bill Scott, Bill Lamm, Bill McClelland, Sam Neaves, Boylan Carr or Brad Tobey.

University Student Sells Story Twice

Leonard Rapport Has Work Printed In Two Magazines

Leonard Rapport, a student here, last year wrote a short story for which he has been paid double, an unusual happening in the short story world.

The story, "The Night the Bucket Fell," was written as a part of class work in Phillips Russell's creative writing class. Upon receiving favorable comment on the story Rapport sent it to the Virginia Quarterly Review who paid him and printed it.

In a recent issue of the Fiction Parade, successor to the Golden Book, the story appeared again and Rapport was once again paid, this time for reprint rights.

Student-Faculty "Circus" To Feature Local Wizard

Magician Richardson to Entertain Guests at Tin Can Carnival February 9

By MAC SMITH
Mountain Magician Howard Richardson—student genius who might some day have mystified both the masters, Harry Houdini and Howard Thurston, had they lived—last night agreed to appear here Wednesday afternoon at the Student-Faculty day carnival.

At birth Conjurer Richardson was given a Magii for God-mother; the next day he was wandering in the hills near Black Mountain when he discovered his famed "Bag of Tricks—Old and New."

Grades Topic Of ASU Meet

Union To Sponsor First Campus-Wide Forum

A number of professors and students have been requested by the American student union to participate in the first campus-wide discussion on the educational and grading system which will be held next Wednesday night at 8 in Graham Memorial lounge.

Among the professors who have agreed to make five minute speeches concerning the issue are Phillips Russell, E. W. Zimmermann, and A. M. Jordan. Others will be signed up to present their views this week.

Following the presentation of views by both professors and students, the meeting will be thrown open for general discussion.

Series Passbooks

Student Entertainment series passbooks are being issued today in the lobby of the cashier's office, first floor South building.

Students may get books between 9 a. m. and 1 p. m. and 2-5 p. m.

Mack Explains Rubber Theory To Scientists

Elisha Mitchell Society Hears Chemistry Head on "Why Rubber Stretches"

Dr. Edward Mack, head of the chemistry department, described to the Elisha Mitchell scientific society Tuesday night his original theory of why rubber stretches.

"Rubber is composed of hydrogen and carbon atoms," Dr. Mack stated, "and there is a regular occurrence of these atoms in a special formation. When rubber is stretched out these formations unravel, and when rubber contracts it is due to the C₂H₄ groups' attraction for each other."

Molecules

By means of atomic models Dr. Mack constructed part of a rubber molecule and showed how his theory could be responsible for the "snapping back" of rubber. The way that treated rubber stretches is easily explained, Dr. Mack said, "by showing how the molecules are able to unwind." It is the power rubber has to contract that has puzzled scientists.

Dr. Mack explained by diagrams the property which allows rubber to stretch eight times its original length. He showed that the force required to stretch rubber this much is 10 calories.

Adventure

"It is very difficult to explain anything so complicated as this property of rubber," Dr. Mack said. He added that he considered his theory just an "adventure in molecule mechanics."

Gardening Course To Be Given Here

Extension Division Will Begin Classes March 11, 12, 13

A course in gardening will be given by the University extension division in Chapel Hill March 11, 12, and 13.

Lectures, demonstrations, and round table discussions will form the sessions.

R. M. Grumman, chairman of the course's arrangement committee, has announced that until February 10 the enrollment will be $2 for State Garden club members, and $3 for non-members. After that time each fee will be raised fifty cents.

Hudson To Danville

Dr. A. P. Hudson, head of sophomore English, will go this afternoon to Danville, Va., to lecture to the Wednesday Club on his recent book "Humor of the Old Deep South."

Dr. Hudson will tell something about the book and read selections representative of the different types of humor treated in the book.

Elizabeth Keeler, Patty Penn Are Selected Maids-of-Honor

Voting Supervised

Virginia Lee, Chi Omega junior, was elected queen of the Student-Faculty day festivities. Her two maids-of-honor will be Elizabeth Keeler and Patty Penn.

The election yesterday was run off under the strict supervision of the Student-Faculty day committee, and any repetition of recent ballot box-stuffing was effectively prevented.

Woodhouse Elected

Dr. E. J. Woodhouse of the political science department was elected royal consort by popular vote, and student Albert Ellis will be the court jester.

Costumes for the coronation ceremony are being designed by Mrs. Harry Davis of the drama department to fit the personalities of the election winners.

Pageant

Nancy Schallert, chairman of the coronation committee, announced that Miss Ella Mae Daniels would start rehearsals for the coronation pageant as soon as possible. The queen and her court met last night in Graham Memorial for a conference on staging the affair.

The Student-Faculty day committee will have a final meeting today at 4 o'clock in Dean House's office to discuss last-minute plans for Tuesday's fete.

Tar Heel Editorial Policy Under Fire Of Debate Society

Phi Assembly to Conduct Open Forum Here on Editorial Policies of Campus Paper

At its weekly meeting Tuesday night the Phi assembly voted unanimously to hold an open forum on the editorial policies of the DAILY TAR HEEL at its next meeting February 14.

To this meeting, the Phi voted to invite the editor and editorial assistants of the DAILY TAR HEEL and the campus at large.

Tuition

Drew Martin, speaking on the bill for the night, Resolved: That tuition fees for out-of-state students be increased, stated that the greatest part of the financial burden was carried by the citizens of North Carolina and that the out-of-state students should contribute a larger share of the expenses of the university.

Opposition

Opposing raised fees for out-of-state students, Julius Hilfman stated that the University was maintained for the poor as well as the rich. He said that with a higher fee that some of the students who are here would not be able to come to school. When the vote was taken the assembly passed the bill 18 to 12.

Former speaker Albert Ellis made a short talk in which he praised the work of Speaker McGlenn. Eloise Broughton and Nancy Schallert were introduced as new members of the Phi. A motion was passed to hold the meeting of the Phi at 7 o'clock on basketball nights.
