

Campus Balanced In Opinion Of Supreme Court Changes; Vote Opposes Early Classes

First Day Of Balloting Gives Revision Small Plurality

C. P. U. Holds Poll

Complete returns from the first day's voting in the C. P. U.'s poll to determine campus opinion on President Roosevelt's recent judicial proposal yielded a vote of 152 for the plan with 147 against and 28 undecided.

Opinion among students seemed to be almost evenly balanced, the ballots revealing 126 students for the measure and 128 against. Twenty-four voted "undecided."

Faculty Opinion

Faculty opinion was more pronounced, 13 voting for the proposal and 6 against it with only one indecision. Ballots cast by townspeople revealed 13 for the measure and 13 against with one indecision.

Of the votes cast against the proposal, 96 were from those who favored Roosevelt in the recent election—only 3 votes were cast in favor of the plan by Landon supporters.

Vote On Classes

If the first day's voting is any indication of campus opinion, classes at 8:30 are decidedly preferred over classes at 8 o'clock. Only 80 voted for 8 o'clock classes while 240 voted for 8:30.

The poll is sponsored by the Carolina Political union under the supervision of President Frank McGinn and will continue for the remainder of the week. All students, faculty members and townspeople are urged to go to the "Y" and cast their vote.

MacFarland Acts As Club Delegate To Auburn Meet

"Y" President Represents Foreign Policy League, L. N. A. at Conference

George MacFarland, Y. M. C. A. president, returned Sunday from a weekend conference of Southeastern International clubs at Auburn, Alabama, where he represented the Foreign Policy league and the campus League of Nations association.

Serving as the official representative of the University, MacFarland addressed the group on "The League of Nations and International Labor Organization."

Other Delegates

While there he contacted other delegates from other southern schools in the interest of spreading the work of the League of Nations associations of America, which have their southeastern headquarters here.

MacFarland returned with Dr. K. C. Frazer, professor of political science, who attended several sessions of the conference.

Burlage To Speak

Dr. Henry M. Burlage of the Pharmacy department will deliver an illustrated lecture on "Historical Background and Trends of Pharmacopoeias and Formulations," tonight at 7:30 in Howell hall.

This lecture is sponsored by the University of North Carolina Students' Branch of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association.

Story Of South's "Brass Ankles" Told By Durham

Carolina Playmakers to Produce One-Act Folk Play for Presentation Thursday

The strange, rhythmic voo-doo chant of a primitive form of Christianity is an interesting feature of "Fire of the Lord," a one-act play of the South Carolina "brass ankles," by Frank Durham, which will be produced by the Carolina Playmakers in their theater tomorrow, Friday, and Saturday.

Mr. Durham wrote the play in Dr. Koch's playwrighting course last spring, and since has sold it to Samuel French and Company of New York for publication in the near future.

Mr. Durham has pictured the "brass ankles," a strange race in which Indian, Negro, and white blood blend to make a people embodying the superstition, stolidity, and intelligence of all three.

They live in isolated communities in various secluded sections of South Carolina, and their knowledge of the modern world comes only from the few who venture from their homes.

The play is filled with rich folk materials in the poetic language of the primitive man. It is believed that "Fire of the Lord" is the first attempt to depict the culture of these folk in terms of drama.

In addition to "Fire of the Lord," there will be three other one-act plays on the Playmaker's public bill this weekend. These are "Sleep on, Lemuel," by John W. Parker, "Leavin's" by Jamie Britt, and "Funeral Flowers for the Bride," by Beverley Hamer.

Vocalists Will Give Song Cycles Tonight In Hill Music Hall

String Quartet to Accompany Soloists in Rendition of Two Numbers

This evening at 8:30 in Hill Music hall, the music department will present two song cycles: "In a Persian Garden" by Liza Lehmann and "On Wenlock Edge," by R. Vaughan Williams.

"In a Persian Garden," the words selected from the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, is a song cycle for four solo voices, soprano, contralto, tenor and bass, with violin accompaniment.

Vaughan Williams' "On Wenlock Edge" will be rendered by the vocalists.

Leagues Will Hold Joint Open Forum

Visitors welcome to Graham Memorial Tonight

The League of Nations association and the Foreign Policy league will sponsor jointly an open forum tonight at 8:30 in the small lounge of Graham Memorial.

Both professors and students will speak on the topic "The Stake of the South in Neutrality and Foreign Trade."

John Kendrick, President of the Di senate, will discuss the political implications of this subject. Professor Green of the History department will give the historical background, and Professor Buchanan of the Economics department will emphasize the South and foreign trade.

Council Warns Fraternities To Heed Hazing Regulation

'Y' Development Since 1844 Origin Given By Graham

President Speaks to Group in Episcopal Parish House on Last Monday

University President Frank P. Graham, before a group of members of the International club and a combination of all the "Y" cabinets, Monday night in the Episcopal parish house, traced the development of the Y. M. C. A. from its origination in Germany to the present day in America and all foreign lands.

Speaking as a spectator to the members of the club, Dr. Graham said that the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. had displayed more courage in the cities and colleges of our country than any other religious force. He said that he believed the youth movement to be religiously inclined, and not politically as most of our organizations are today.

German Origin

"The Y. M. C. A. started in Germany," he said, "but when the Industrial Revolution hit England in 1844 it saw its greatest development. The youth who had left the farms to find em-

President John Parker Issues Statement on Campus Regulations Given

John J. Parker, Jr., president of the Student council, issued the following statement yesterday concerning hazing by fraternities:

"Since some doubt exists among a few fraternities with regard to hazing, the Student council feels that it should warn these fraternities that the rule prohibiting hazing is still in force.

"The council hopes that these fraternities will co-operate with it in observing the hazing rule. To have to try such violations would be as unpleasant to the council as it would be to the fraternity so violating.

"Violations of the rule may result in the revocation of their charter or in the denial of the right to rush during rushing season."

The Student council hazing rule reads: "The Student council hereby prohibits hazing in any form by any student or any student organization and will consider as a violation any phy-

Former Playmaker Directs Little Theater In Raleigh

Six Ex-University Students Assist Playwright Wilbur Dorsett in Work

Among the graduates who left the University last June, and have since entered the fields for which they received four years' training is Wilbur Dorsett, who now holds the post of director of the Raleigh Little Theater.

Dorsett was for four years an outstanding member of the Carolina Playmakers.

Plays Written

"Goldie," and "Third Verse," are among the plays written by him and produced by the Playmakers, and he has since written a three-act called "Pillar of Fire," which has been accepted by the Federal Theater Play bureau.

Last September Dorsett was appointed supervisor of the WPA Federal Theater unit in Raleigh, and at the same time became the director of the Little Theater organization, succeeding Marion Tatum, star actress of many Playmaker shows, who has since returned to her position of dramatic instructor at Hood college.

Other former Carolina students who are now connected with the Raleigh Little Theater are Joe Moye, Sam Leager, who graduated last year; Lynn Wilder, Jr., law school graduate of 1934; S. P. Blakenship, Curtis Muse, and Sybille Berwanger.

Jewish Authority To Speak Tonight

Opens Festival

Rabbi Edward Israel's appearance at the Carolina Inn tonight will mark the opening of the Jewish celebration of Purim.

Hillel Group Sponsors Lecture By Israel In Inn At 7:30

Democracy Theme

The Hillel foundation will present Rabbi Edward L. Israel, noted Jewish leader, in a public address in the ballroom of Carolina inn at 7:30 tonight.

Rabbi Israel will discuss "What Must the Jew Do for the Future of American Democracy?"

Open to Visitors

Rabbi Bernard Zeiger, director of the local Hillel foundation, said yesterday that all members of the Hillel group, as well as interested students, professors, and out-of-town visitors, are expected to hear the address.

Rabbi Israel has been prominent as an American Jewish worker since acquiring the position of rabbi at Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, in 1919.

Social Work

His social work has included memberships on the commission on social justice of the central conference of American Rabbis, the regional national labor board at the University of Virginia, the Baltimore branch of the League of Industrial Democracy, and the national conference of Jews and Christians.

Rabbi Israel lives in Baltimore, where he is president of the Baltimore branch of the American Jewish congress.

Tonight's talk is being given in connection with the Jewish festival of Purim. Refreshments will be served at the end of the program.

Swalin Talks This Morning To Freshmen

Professor To Lecture In Hill Music Hall During Chapel

The staff of the freshman social science courses have arranged a lecture by Dr. Benjamin F. Swalin this morning during chapel period in Hill Music hall on "The Evolution of Christian Music."

Dr. Swalin is the first speaker since Christmas in a series of lectures promoted by the social science professors and provided for the public as well as the freshmen.

History

In tracing the history of Christian music Professor Swalin will attempt to cover a hundred years per minute, beginning with hymnody and psalmody and working toward the era of Bach. The lecture will be accompanied by phonographic illustrations.

Historical aspects will be stressed and an effort made to correlate these early developments to later evolutions in modern music.

The early French troubadours and trouvères along with the minnesingers and meistersingers will figure in his talk.

Freshman Smoker To Come Friday

Varied Entertainment on Program in Swain Hall.

Freshmen will celebrate Friday night in Swain hall at their annual class smoker set for that time by Bob Doty and his committee on arrangements.

In addition to the usual cakes, drinks and smokes, Pete Ivey, who will act as master of ceremonies, has promised to have some of his amateurs on hand to furnish a little entertainment and Sam MacPherson and his orchestra will supply music.

Coaches Bunn Hearn and Johnny Morris will make short talks as will track captain Jim Finlay; Crowell Little and Andy Bershak, co-captains of football; and Earl Ruth.

Assembly Downs Court Revision; Di Hears Jenkins

Phi Follows Promise for Lively Argument; Senate Postpones Vote a Week

In accordance with the promise to hold a lively discussion on the policy of Roosevelt toward the Supreme court, the Phi Assembly last night decided 18-16 that it opposed the measure. At the same time the Di Senate, in session at Old West, postponed its discussion and vote on the bill until next week.

Dr. W. S. Jenkins of the University political science department explained to the senators at their meeting that something must be done in regard to the Supreme court but that President Roosevelt's proposal was wrong.

Proposals

"Many proposals have been suggested," he said, "for example, that congress should be given the power to override the court with a two-thirds vote. But that is not practical, because it is almost impossible to get that two thirds vote, and it does not do away with the longing of an individual in the nation wanting to know what the law is about."

As a solution to the problem, Dr. Jenkins continued, "There should be a higher court, such as a convention, with the best minds in America as its personnel. But it would take on an ob-
