Nobel Winner Harold Urey Here On Visit

Heavy Hydrogen Seeker Working With Ruark On New Book

Dr. Harold Clayton Urey, professor at Columbia university and Nobel prize winner, is now in Chapel Hill to prepare with Dr. A. E. Ruark, head of the physics department, a revised edition of their book, "Atoms, Molecules, and Quanta."

The Nobel prize was awarded to Dr. Urey in 1934 for his discovery of "heavy water." He is the discoverer of the hydrogen atom of atomic weight 2.

Working On Carbon

Dr. Urey has just developed an apparatus which will separate the isotopes of carbon and other light elements. This process separates the light atoms from the heavy ones. The separated atoms can then be used in chemical and bio-chemical experiments.

A half year's leave was granted Dr. Urey by Columbia in order that he and Dr. Ruark might make the revised edition of their book.

Poetic Drama Will Be Read

Mrs. Holmes To Read Play Tonight, 8:30

A new poetic dramatization of the Medea legend, "The Wingless Victory," by Maxwell Anderson will be read by Mrs. Urban T. Holmes this evening at 8:30 in the Playmaker theater as one of the Playmakers' regular Sunday evening play-readings.

Instead of Greece, Mr. Anderson has laid his scene in a New England seaport of a century ago. Nathaniel McQuestion, a roving sea-captain is the Jason of the modern version, and his ship, "The Wingless Victory," is the golden fleece he brings back from the Celebes.

Oparre, the Oriental princess whom McQuestion brings back as his wife is the modern Medea, a woman of primitive hates and loves. Katherine Cornell is now playing this role on Broadway.

Mrs. Holmes has read many plays at the Playmakers' readings in the past, her most recent being "Ethan Frome," read last quarter.

Di Senate Meeting
