Campus To Vote On Election Issue Pending Petitions

Board To Ask For Vote If 100 Students Make Request

Move Is Impartial

The Publications Union board announced after a meeting yesterday that if 100 students so petition, it will propose for campus vote an amendment to its constitution relative to staff elections of editors, to be voted on at the general spring election next month.

Its decision was made as a result of the appeal made Friday by Don McKee and Reid Sarratt of the DAILY TAR HEEL, that the board call for a campus approval of recent staff elections of the DAILY TAR HEEL and Yackety-Yack editors, which were declared illegal by the student council.

Motion

The board's motion reads, "Upon the signing of a petition by 100 students requesting the Publications Union board to propose an amendment to its constitution relative to staff elections of editors, the board will propose such an amendment, to be voted upon at the spring, 1937, student election, and, if adopted, to go into effect in the spring of 1938."

In commenting on the hope of students who favor immediate legalization of the recent staff elections, Board President Allen said yesterday, "The board feels that in the regular spring election it can get real student opinion more effectively than at a special election."

He further stressed that, "The P. U. board is strictly impartial in the matter of a constitutional amendment, and is calling for the petition so as to be assured of a creditable student feeling for a change in the election of editors. It is to be understood that the board is not necessarily endorsing the amendment even though it is asked to present it to the student body."

Students Named As UNC Choice For Swiss Meet

Mac Smith, Mark Orr Nominated to Represent University at International Meet

University students Mac Smith and Mark Orr were nominated by a faculty committee yesterday without distinction of preference to represent the University at the eight weeks international relations seminar in Geneva, Switzerland, this summer.

The faculty committee composed of Chairman J. C. Lyons, W. A. Olsen, and K. C. Frazer, will submit the names of Smith and Orr to the New York committee of the Student's International union, who may select one of the two men for the appointment.

Invitations

The University was invited in February to nominate a candidate.

Until Then

With this issue, the DAILY TAR HEEL ceases publication for the winter quarter. The next issue will appear Wednesday, March 17; and the staff will start work at 2 o'clock March 16.

Rogerson Plans To Refund Publication Fee Reduction

Investigation Promised Of Overcharging By Office

Explanation Asked

L. B. Rogerson, assistant controller of the University, said yesterday that on Monday he will make plans for a refund to each student enrolled for the spring quarter of the 50 cents reduction promised by the Publications Union board.

He also said that he will investigate the failure of the business office to reduce the fee from $2.30 to $1.80, as it was allegedly instructed by Professor J. M. Lear, faculty adviser of the board in January.

Mistake

Mr. Rogerson said that he recalled the plans for reducing the fee on student bills, and thought that they had been carried through. Just back from a three-day conference of university business administrators at Davidson, he did not have an opportunity to see if a written memorandum on the reduction had been filed in his office.

Mr. Lear stated Friday that

Carolina Possessed First Astronomical Observatory

Erection of Building in 1831 Preceded One Historically Attributed to Williams

By Mac Smith

Carolina had the first astronomical observatory in America. Historians too long gave Yale college the credit for the first purchase of a telescope, and Williams the honor of erecting the first observatory building.

But Carolina bought instruments before Yale, and built an observatory before Williams.

The local $430 building, erected by President Caldwell in 1831-32 on the spot where the tennis courts now are, preceded the Williams building by four

Wigue, Masque Club Will Issue Call For Talent

Fistel Releases Plot of Musical Comedy to Be Produced in Spring Quarter

To the campus, immediately after examinations, will go a call for talent to be used in the Wigue and Masque musical comedy to be produced in Memorial hall this spring.

President Carl Fistel emphasized that the production is not to be a "musical revue" of unrelated scenes, but a musical comedy with a definite plot checked by Paul Green, scenario expert.

No Co-eds

Action in the musical comedy begins on the campus of a university from which co-eds are barred. All student efforts to get them in fail. Meanwhile the university falls upon evil days and faces the prospect of bankruptcy and having its doors closed.

It is at this juncture that a wealthy citizen of the state dies, leaving $5,000,000 to the univer-

Major Networks To Carry Cabinet Member's Speech

Chapel Program To Be Presented By Councilmen

Billy Weil's Orchestra to Play Between Talks of First-Year Officials; Coeds to Sing

Under the sponsorship of the Freshman Honor council, led by Fred Weaver, adviser to the group, a special assembly program featuring members of the council and various other first-year students will be presented during the regular chapel period tomorrow morning.

Councilman DeWitt Barnett will act as master of ceremonies and will introduce Baxter Taylor, president of the freshman class, who will make an address. Each member of the council will make a brief speech on the honor system and plans for a class dance next month.

Motion

Billy Weil and his orchestra will be on hand to furnish music between talks. One of the high spots of the program will be a number of songs to be given by two of the only three freshman co-eds in the University. They are Anna Dean Burkes, and Elizabeth Weaver of the Pharmacy school. Altajane Holden was to have performed with them, but illness prevents her appearing.

Other speeches will be made by Ben Dilworth, recently elected captain of the freshman basketball team, and Bunk Anderson. Council adviser Fred Weaver promises that the program will be of special interest to every freshman and entertaining to any other members of the student body who wish to attend.

Gardening Course To Be Given Here

Series of Lectures Scheduled to Come March 11, 12, 13

A short course on gardening, horticulture, landscaping, and flower and table arrangement will be given at the University March 11, 12, 13.

The first session will open at 2 p. m. Thursday, March 11, with a talk on flower arrangements by Mrs. Dorothy Biddle Johnson, of New York, editor of the Garden Digest. Thursday evening a symposium on roses will be conducted by Dr. T. Allen Kirk, of Roanoke, Va., vice-president of the American Rose society; Prof. Glenn O. Randall, horticulturist of State College; L. E. Casey, Goldsboro nurseryman.

Staff Elections

Jim Daniel's committee on staff elections will meet tonight at 10 o'clock in the Grail room. The committee is composed of Lane Barksdale, Stuart Rabb, Mac Smith, Niles Bond, Henry Lewis, Reid Sarratt, Julian Bobbitt, Don McKee and Daniel.

Roosevelt Requests Judiciary Theme Of Postmaster

To Speak March 9

Word was received from Washington yesterday that Postmaster General James A. Farley will speak in favor of President Roosevelt's recent supreme court reform proposal over a nation-wide hook-up from Memorial hall Tuesday afternoon promptly at 3 o'clock.

The plan for supreme court revision as the subject for Farley's address came as the result of a personal request from President Roosevelt, and the Post-office department has secured both networks of the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system to radio the speech over the nation.

This will be both the first time that Farley has mentioned the plan for supreme court revision and that such a coast-to-coast broadcast has been made from Chapel Hill. The entire program is under the sponsorship of the Carolina Political union.

Dean House announced yesterday that the matter of students leaving their exams in order to hear Farley's address will be left entirely to the discretion of the individual professors.

A motor caravan with a special police escort will bring Farley and his party from Greensboro and a procession of automobiles will meet the party at the city limits of Chapel Hill. The Postmaster General is in the South in order to attend the dedication of a new postoffice building in Reidsville, N. C.

A group of prominent political figures from over the state are expected to be present for the program among whom are Governor and Mrs. Clyde Hoey and Miss Isabelle Hoey, Senator Josiah Bailey, Congressman Umstead, Mr. and Mrs. "Sandy" Graham, Lieutenant Governor Horton, Mrs. J. D. Spilman, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Winborne, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Folger, D. L. Ward, and Beatrice Cobb.

The program will be opened at 2:45 with a band concert by the University of North Carolina band and Farley will go on the air immediately at 3 o'clock.

Library Speaker

Dr. Helen Gordon Stewart, director of the Fraser Valley library demonstration in British Columbia from 1931 to 1936 will address the students of the School of Library Science and other interested persons on "Regional Library Planning" tomorrow morning at 11:30 in Hill Music hall.

Directly following the address, a luncheon will be held for Dr. Stewart in Graham Memorial. Reservations may still be obtained by anyone interested in the library school for 50 cents.
