Urey To Talk To Physicists

Nobel Winner To Speak At Duke Tonight

Harold C. Urey, Nobel prize winner and professor at Columbia university, will address the Duke-Carolina joint physics colloquium tomorrow night at 8:00 in room 114 of the Duke university physics building on "Isotopes."

Professor Urey is known to scientists all over the world as the discoverer of heavy hydrogen and heavy water, for which he received the Nobel prize in 1934. At present he is attempting to separate the isotopes or different kinds of atoms which are contained in carbon, nitrogen, and oxygen.

Results

The experiments are now meeting with partial success although the yields of the different kinds of atoms are not yet entirely satisfactory to Dr. Urey and his colleagues.

Chemists and biologists will be able to incorporate these heavy atoms in molecules and to observe the effect of these substitutions on the properties of these molecules. It will be possible, for example, to give foods containing heavy carbon to experimental animals and to find out where the food materials containing heavy carbon go when they are digested and enter the blood stream.

Dr. Urey is at present on sabbatical leave from Columbia and will be at the University of North Carolina until June working on the second edition of his and Dr. A. E. Ruark's book, "Atoms, Molecules, and Quanta."

Davis Will Read Broadway Play

"You Can't Take It With You" Acclaimed By Critics

"You Can't Take It With You," a new American comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, will be read by Harry Davis in the Playmaker theater Sunday evening at 8:30.

Written by the authors of "Once in a Lifetime," "You Can't Take It With You" has been called by New York critics "a gargantuan absurdity" with "hilariously preposterous antics and the rumble of friendly laughter." Dealing with the mad activities of a middle class New York family, the play finds its authors in a genial, laugh-provoking mood.

Character

Among the characters is a mother who took up playwriting because someone left a typewriter in the house, and a grandfather who had himself declared legally dead in order to avoid paying income tax.

The reading will be one in the series sponsored by the Carolina Playmakers, and will be open to the public.

Ellis Quits Party On Failing To Get Joseph Patterson Named

Thousands Cheer

Tuesday night the University party's 18-man steering committee reversed an earlier decision to make Marvin Allen its candidate for the presidency of the student body and substituted in his place Ramsay Douglas Potts, in a move which threatens to split the party.

The week before examinations by a close vote of something like 8 to 7 the steering committee had selected Trackman Allen (Kappa Sigma) to head its slate; but in the reconsideration Wednesday night the supporters of Potts succeeded in giving him the party's support.

Allen's Qualifications

Allen has served this year as president of the Monogram club, University dance committee, senior honor council, track, Grail, vice president Athletic association. He has worked two years on the Student council, his sophomore and junior years. As a freshman, he won the cake race.

Potts' Qualifications High

Besides being captain of the tennis squad, a national ranking racket-wielder, and star of the basketball team, Potts is a member of the junior class honor council, board of directors Graham Memorial, dance committee, Grail, Amphoterthen.

Last year he was president of the sophomore class, on Phil Hammer's Honor committee, Yackety Yack, and winner of the Grail basketball scholarship award. In his first year he won the freshman cup for carrying off the highest scholarship record for any first-year athlete.

Party Might Split

The fight between Potts and Allen has thrown the steering committee in two factions and threatens to split the party.

This impending break-up is accentuated by the party's policy to allow the D. K. E.'s only one major candidate, although Frank McGlenn's fraternity has three potentialities: Staff-nominee Mac Smith for the DAILY TAR HEEL, Joe Patterson for the senior class presidency, and Staff-nominee Haydon Clement for the Buccaneer.

Smith For Tar Heel

The steering committee has adopted Smith as its candidate for the editorship of the DAILY TAR HEEL; and gave the senior class nomination to Randy Berg (S. A. E.) and the Buccaneer to Lawrence Hinkle (non-frat).

As staff nominee, Clement must run for the editorship of the Buccaneer.

Unconfirmed statements had it yesterday that the steering committee politicians were allowing only one major candidate for
