Olsen, Johnson To Play For Fraternities' Social Event

The ninth annual May Frolics, said to be one of the outstanding college dance sets of the South, will this year be held on April 9-10 in the Tin Can with the orchestras of George Olsen and Johnny Johnson playing for the five dances.

Sponsored each year by seven fraternities of the University, Sigma Nu, S. A. E., D. K. Several fraternities and honorary organizations have already planned to have house parties and banquets.

"Music Of Tomorrow"

George Olsen will bring his "Music of Tomorrow" band from the Edgewater Beach hotel in Chicago where he has frequently been heard broadcasting and substituting on the Ben Bernie program. Johnny Johnson's orchestra will come directly from an extended engagement in St. Paul.

An informal tea dance will open the festivities Friday afternoon, followed by a formal dance Friday night. Saturday's luncheon dance will be held at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham. The second tea dance will be on Saturday afternoon with another formal dance concluding.

By RAYMOND LOWERY

With a white, all-wool coat sweater bearing the emblem U. N. C. '37 on the left pocket, University seniors will this year clothe themselves somewhat differently from previous graduating classes during the annual Senior week in April.

For the past two years outgoing classes have worn polo shirt made of thin toweling material. This year the regalia committee has chosen a wool sweater.
