Parade Will Open Inauguration Program

Trustees Bar Local Women Coming Here

Freshmen, Sophomores Cannot Enter Chapel Hill Unit

One of the major campus questions during the past year which has caused state-wide comment was finally decided yesterday afternoon when the executive committee of the board of trustees of the Greater University stood by the previous ruling that Chapel Hill girls may not enter the first and second year classes of the Chapel Hill unit.

At the winter meeting of the full board in Raleigh the matter of allowing or not allowing the Chapel Hill girls, including the daughters of faculty members, to enter this unit was left in the hands of the executive committee.

Little Discussion

At yesterday's meeting with Governor Hoey in his office, Jack Frink, University senior and former president of the American Student union, presented the question before the executive committee. It was reported that the committee, having full power, made its decision with very

Council Picks Holdover Men In Final Act

Craighill And Eutsler Will Serve Again Next Year

In the last official session of its administration last night, the Student council elected James Craighill and Keith Eutsler as holdover members to work with the new council which takes office today.

Traditionally the council president decides the number of men who will be held over by the incoming administration. Parker followed a precedent set in the last few years by selecting two men.

Final Official Act

As its last official act, the incumbent council authorized a campus-wide discussion campaign on the proposed legislation which was recently brought to the foreground by a council

'God' Tells Former Employee Take Over UNC Power Plant

Gets Message After 12 Years Of Praying Persistently

His pistol leveled at two men in charge of the University of North Carolina power plant, the six foot, 180 pound figure moved forward.

"I've been praying to God for the past 12 years for a message, and last night he told me to come down here and take over this plant. He also told me to bring a pistol along!" he said.

It was after 11 o'clock Sunday night and there was no chance of anyone coming in from outside. The two men looked at the pistol, the determined, fanatic gleam of the man's eyes, and stood still.

"Get back," he said. They got.

Just then Police Officer J. D. Blake's bulky weight bulged in the door. Blake had seen the man on the street, recognized him as a former employee of the plant some 14 years before, and asked him where he was going.

The man had told him he was starting to work at the power plant. He was carrying a pistol, so Blake had followed him.

"Don't you try to stop me," he said, as he faced Blake. He explained that he was taking over the power plant by "God's order" and was going to run it.

By Their Works Ye Shall Know Them

These men Sunday night were selected by the Golden Fleece as the outstanding juniors and seniors of the University. They are Mac Smith, editor of the Daily Tar Heel; Frank McGlenn, president of the C. P. U.; Bob Magill, new president of the student body; Ramsay Potts, basketball and tennis star; Andy Bershak, basketball and football hi-light; Albert Ellis, father of the University dormitory council; Louis Schaffner, president of Phi Beta Kappa; Bob duFour, Playmaker star; John Parker, outgoing student body president; and Stuart Rabb, Daily Tar Heel columnist. For outstanding service and leadership to the student body the Golden Fleece bestowed the highest honor this University can give to these men.

Newly Chosen Leaders Take Offices Today

Memorial Hall Scene Of Installation Ceremonies

Beginning At 10:30

Students and faculty members will march in the grand parade to Memorial hall this morning at 10:30 to hear the newly elected campus leaders take their posts as next year's officers in the annual Spring inauguration ceremony.

The procession, headed by John Parker and Dr. Graham, will file into the inauguration building where the officers-elect will take positions on the stage.

The University band, stationed on the steps of Memorial hall, will accompany the marching with inaugural music.

John Parker will make a farewell address as president of the student body and then yield to president-elect Bob Magill, who will make his inaugural salutory.

Nancy Nesbit, who succeeds Margaret Jordan as president of the Woman's Association, will follow with an acceptance of her

Potts Given Joseph Lewis 1937 Award

Phi Delt Tennis Star Granted $400 Prize By Faculty

Ramsay Potts has received the $400 Joseph Lewis Graham Memorial award in commerce for 1937-38.

Considered on the points of scholarship, character, personality, activity in school affairs and promise of efficient leadership, Potts was the overwhelming preference of the faculty of the economics and commerce school, for the four-year-old award.

Largest Offered

The cash award is the largest offered a University undergraduate and will be available during Pott's last year.

It was established by John S. Graham of Charlottesville, Virginia, as a memorial to his father. Those who have previously won the award are Frank Abernathy, 1934-35; R. L. Barron and Nesbit Holland, 1935-36;

"Dad" Just A Little Bit Off

Dicky Bradshaw, son of the lanky dean of students, leaned against his bicycle outside Graham Memorial Sunday night, and disgustingly observed his environment.

"Where is that Golden Fleece tapping going on?" he yelled to a passer-by. His voice was impatient.

"Up at Memorial hall, Dicky," the passer-by informed the dean's son. "You better hurry."

"Memorial hall!" shouted Dicky. "Darn it, my dad told me it was Graham Memorial, the dirty devil."

Honorary Society Selects Leaders For Achievements

Weaver Speaks

The Order of the Golden Fleece, the University's leading honorary society, in their annual "tapping" ceremony Sunday night branded as the 10 outstanding campus leaders of the year Bob Magill, Ramsay Potts, Albert Ellis, Andy Bershak, Bob duFour, Frank McGlenn, Stuart Rabb, Louis Schaffner, Mac Smith, and John Parker.

These men were selected from a combined junior and senior class of a little more than 800 students.

Ceremony

The ceremony began around 8:20 p. m. when the chattering spectators, concentrated in the rear half of the building, were quieted by dimming lights and the weird musical strains of the Rebikoff from the organ played by Dr. Jan Phillip Schinhan.

A spot from the rafters of the deserted stage flashed on the figure of a golden sheep suspended on the rear drape, while an amplified voice from backstage recounted the story of Jason and his search for the Golden Fleece.

These are the official instructions for the inauguration procession: "All students in the University shall meet in front of South building at Chapel period. Each dormitory and fraternity shall march together. Pla-cards bearing the name of your fraternity or dormitory will be placed at some point between Gerrard hall and the Playmakers theatre. The processions from South building to Memorial hall will begin promptly at 10:30 a. m. Please be on time.

Fleece Meets Difficulties Getting DuFour To Ritual

Tar Heel News Editor Almost Shuns Invitation To Receive Highest Campus Honor

This is the story of how Bob duFour almost turned down an invitation to join the Golden Fleece.

Walter Spearman, professor of journalism and a past Jason of the honorary organization, stepped into the DAILY TAR HEEL office where duFour works as a news editor. He called the managing editor into a confidential session. "I want you to be sure that Bob duFour attends the Fleece tapping Sunday night," he said. "Do anything you want, but be sure he gets there."

Human Interest

The managing editor acted. "Bob," he said, "I want you to go to the Fleece tapping and get a story on it. Look out for human interest, expressions on the faces and all that."
