Fletcher Gregory, Kappa Alpha, won the post of secretary, and Jack Blythe, Beta Theta Pi, was elected treasurer. Charley Reid, of the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, was made the Council's representative on the University Dance Committee.

An article written by Bob Magill and dealing with the proposed campus legislature plan was distributed to the members of the council to be read at the next chapter meeting of the various fraternal groups. Six Students Sentenced In Court Trials

Senator's Son Nabbed For Photographing Court Scene

Following the trend of Hugo's tale of Jean Valjean was the case of the people vs. R. A. Howell, tried Monday night in recorder's court here.

Howell, University freshman, was charged by Chapel Hill Policeman Yergen with stealing a box of strawberries from a produce truck early Saturday morning. The young man admitted his guilt, and placed himself at the mercy of the court.

Judge Phipps meditated a moment, and sentenced the student to two months on the Orange county chain gang. The entire court room, packed with spectators, gasped in horror at the severity of the sentence.

Howell, pale but unshaken, returned to his seat to await the end of the court session.

After the judge heard a few more cases, he called the student to the bar, and suspended the jail term upon payment of $15 and the court costs. He also placed Howell under a year's period of good behavior.

Five other students appeared

Dixon Enlivens CPU's Initial Birthday Party

Prominent Southern Author Orates Against Current Anti-Lynching Laws

When the grey-browed giant Mr. Thomas Dixon starts an oration on the Negro, the South, and the lynching laws, you've got color.

Last night's first birthday party for the C. P. U., attended by more than 150 state political leaders, students, and faculty members, provided no mean opportunity for special guests Ralph Brewster of Maine, Maury Maverick of Texas, and Author of "The Birth of a Nation" Dixon of this state to enjoy Carolina banquet hospitality with string music, soft lights, and flowers to spare.

Reads Telegrams

Chairman of the Union Frank McGlenn presided over the Carolina affair, read the steady flow of congratulatory telegrams, introduced the numerous notables present, and at the end made his "sad" valedictory. Newly-elect Alec Heard assumed the chairmanship at the close of the two hour banquet.

Brewster, on a ten-minute informal spiel, cracked jokes about his Republican party, paid tribute to the Union's reputation in the nation, spread casual rumors about a coalition between Tammany and John L. Lewis, and reaffirmed his faith in America to come safely through the immediate transition period.

Shows Mistakes

Flare-haired and chubby-cheeked Mr. Maverick of Texas recanted his Southern heritage, pointed out several mistakes his "good ole Southland" had made from the beginning of time, and expressed his stand on the recent Wagner Anti-Lynching

Climaxes CPU Year

Political Enthusiasts Turn Ears Toward Chapel Hill

New Englander, Texan Thrash Roosevelt's Proposal In Eyes Of Two Parties

Political enthusiasts turned their ears toward Chapel Hill last night when two congressmen met for the first time on record to clash tongues over President Roosevelt's proposal for supreme court revision.

In a non-decision debate which seemed to resolve to the question of the Supreme Court's right of judiciary review, Maury Maverick, a democrat, a Southerner, and a liberal, thrashed the court issue against the negative opposition of Maine's ex-Governor Ralph O. Brewster, a republican, a New Englander, and a conservative.

The short, heavily-built Congressman Maverick of Texas, called the most colorful figure in Washington, walked bull-like onto the arena on Hill hall's de-
