

Court Decision Given On Shorts

Chapel Hill, New York Face Same Subject

The wearing of shorts on the street, which the aldermen were recently asked to prohibit in Chapel Hill, is the subject of a decision handed down by the New York court of appeals, the state's highest tribunal. The court holds invalid an anti-shorts ordinance of the city of Yonkers and reverses the conviction of Rose O'Gorman and William Matthias, arrested for violating it.

The charge stated that Miss O'Gorman wore white sandals, no stockings, yellow short pants and a colored halter, with a yellow jacket over it, and no hat, while Matthias had on white sneakers, white anklets, short socks, yellow trunks, a blue-and-white polo shirt, and no hat.

The opinion was written by Chief Judge Frederick E. Crane.

He says: "The Constitution still leaves some opportunity for people to be foolish, if they so desire. When it comes to the kind or sufficiency of clothes one must wear to appear decently in public, we of the law have generally left such matters to the good sense and force of public opinion. The law of the proper thing to do is not written in a book, but rules most of our living. To meet the cases of persons who insist upon being too conspicuous by exposing too much of their anatomy, it may be reasonable to prescribe that men and women cover themselves, at least when on the street."

Med School Gets New Home

(Continued from first page) calls for "the highest type of medical instruction in the fundamental branches of the medical curriculum. The various departments of the school are now in such a process of development that the medical school will build itself into the general fiber of the University, especially at the graduate level."

While at present offering short courses for public health officials and sanitary engineers, the division of public health looks forward to offering regular courses in such subjects on a University level of excellence.

Caldwell Future

Dean House stated further that the future use of the present medical school building, Caldwell hall, has not as yet been determined but that the structure would most probably be turned into a classroom unit.

Dr. MacNider, the new dean, will retain his Kenan research professorship, and Dr. Charles Mangum, the retiring dean, will be allowed to devote his full time to teaching at his own request. The faculty of the school will be almost doubled this fall.

Included in the expansion program for the medical school is the erection of a new wing to the University infirmary calling for a laboratory, additional beds, and a new member of the staff. Dean House said that it is significant that as the medical school develops it will become more closely affiliated with the infirmary.

830 Freshmen Accepted Here

(Continued on last page) since I have been in this office." "This is largely because we have organized a system of selection this year that is closely akin to college boards, and which system we hope to develop into regular college boards.

Alumni Aid

"This year, we had prominent alumni placed in strategic points between Boston and Miami and Chicago who conducted interviews with the various applicants living in these areas. All applicants were also required to take a college aptitude test before they were given any consideration.

"As a result of this new method of selection," concluded Husbands, "we have what I consider a top-ranking freshman class."
