Edney, Morton Lead Guessers

Graham Memorial, often in the campus spotlight, has another award awaiting it.

For on one of his wanderings last week, your re-sporter took that place as the scene of his operations, and two of those questioned took top honors.

F. R. Edney, interrupted from peaceful reading in the lounge, turned in the top set of scores. If he wants to enter Graham Memorial again, he can come and get two passes to the Carolina theater at the TAR HEEL office.

And Sam Morton, who was operating the counter in the basement when questioned, can trot upstairs and get one pass

Edney didn't have any particular masterpiece in his scores, but was close to all of them. He missed the startling Pitt-Fordham tie by only six points, lost only three points on the Carolina-Wake Forest battle, and missed the Tulane-Colgate clash by only one point.

Morton came in second by virtue of his scores on the Tar Heel contest and the Tulane-Colgate setto.

One fellow who is seen sometimes around Graham Memorial didn't do so hot, though. Pete Ivey, jovial director, was so far off we stopped counting after 75 points.

Your re-sporter will wander about the campus this week getting previews on the following games: Carolina vs. Tulane; Duke vs. Colgate; Cornell vs. Yale; Fordham vs. Texas Christian; Notre Dame vs. Navy; Ohio State vs. Northwestern.

Harriers Point For Clash With Middies In Navy Stronghold

Ranson's Men To Run At Annapolis Saturday: Against Maryland On Monday

Taking it a bit easy after their overwhelming victory over Washington and Lee, the varsity harriers spent yesterday afternoon in jogging around the track, although several of them took the three miles on the road at an easy pace.

Pointing for the Navy meet Saturday, Coach Dale Ranson announced that he had made a tentative selection of the men scheduled to compete against the Midshipmen over their fourmile course. Barring accidents, the men competing against Navy will be Captain Andy Jones, Bill ing paid to the rough spots Hendrix, Jim Hall, Fred Hardy, Frank Wakely, Drewery Troutman, Jim Crockett, Joe Russell the fullback post in the absence and Bill Gordon.

Ditt Remains Idle

Carolina's Tar Heels wasted little time returning to action yesterday afternoon after their decisive win over Wake Forest by a 28-0 margin Saturday.

The squad with the exception of Art Ditt, first-string fullback who was out Saturday with a leg injury, turned to the forthcoming test with Tulane none the worse from its last encounter. Indications are that Ditt will be ready for action Saturday in the Homecoming tilt.
