U. S. AND BRITISH AID REFUSED BY CHINESE

Shanghai, Oct. 28.—A doomed Chinese battalion tonight refused to accept aid from the United States marines and British troops who offered to lend a hand in the withdrawal from a Japanese trap in order to end the menace of stray bullets falling into Shanghai's international settlement.

Yesterday the remainder of the Chinese army abandoned the small area within Chinese Chapei because of raging flames and advancing Japanese, but this one battalion, doomed as it is, held grimly to the section and defied the Japanese forces.

When the American and British offer of aid was made, crowds of foreigners and Chinese gathered on rooftops, disregarding the shower of machine gun bullets to watch the battle along the settlement's northern border.

A major battle in progress around Hungjao, suburb in which are located many of the city's finest homes, brought danger on the western edges and along the French concession frontier of the international settlement.

The suggestion offered by the American and British commanders was that their troops be used to aid the Chinese in obtaining sanctuary south of Sochow creek.

Reminding Commander Chin-Yuan of the destruction that may be caused by Japanese planes only prompted the leader to say:

"We are not much worried by the Japanese planes and we're prepared for their infantry."

CPU ADDS COLE, CLARK, ASHBY TO MEMBERSHIP ROLE

Two First Year Men To Be Chosen Next Quarter

Three new members, Roy Clark, Dick Ashby, and Bill Cole, were voted in yesterday by the Carolina Political Union.

Clark is a sophomore from Chapel Hill, with Democratic party leanings. Ashby, a graduate student in sociology from Miami Beach, Florida, was termed by Alex Heard, chairman of the union, as a "left winger," more liberal than any other member of the organization. Bill Cole, a junior who hails from Indiana, is a liberal Republican, and is well known for his participation in campus politics. He is leader of the student party.

Non Fraternity All three of the new members are non-fraternity men. Since the majority of the old members are fraternity members, Heard feels that the addition of three more men who have no affiliation with fraternity groups will strengthen the union's policy of non-partisanship.

POP QUIZ

By Bob Perkins

There were three students (X, Y, and Z) arguing which had the greater reasoning ability. A fourth, wishing to end the argument so that he might study his psychology, offered to put their cerebral activity to a test.

He told them that he was going to blindfold each one and paint either a blue or red spot on their foreheads. After he had done so, he then said that he would remove the blindfold and the boy first able to identify the color of his spot would be of superior reasoning power.

However there were two stipulations. Each boy was to raise his hand on seeing a red spot on either of the other two heads, and was to speak out as soon as he had reasoned out his color. He painted a red spot on the heads of X, Y, and Z.

The blindfolds were removed. All three hands went up immediately. After a moment's silence, X declared that his spot was red.

How did he reason to get the correct color of his spot?

Answer to the English quiz: Jones, in his examination paper, where Smith had had "had," had had "had had;" "had had" had had the examiner's approval.
