BANK OF FRANCE SUSPENDS TRANSACTIONS

Paris, Jan. 14—All exchange transactions were ordered suspended "until further notice" today by the Bank of France when conferences to find a new government to replace the fallen People's Front cabinet of Camille Chautemps were begun by President Albert Lebrun this morning.

Chautemps resigned early today because of the increasing restlessness of labor, fall of the franc, and the resignation of Socialist members from his cabinet.

Resigning finance minister, George Bonnet, remained to direct government finances until a new cabinet is named, and to manage the Bank of France instruction to exchange dealers prohibited dealings in all foreign currencies for an indefinite period.

The orders of financial sources stated that there were to be "no exchange dealings whatsoever." The command will even keep tourists from changing money.

There were some persons who expressed the belief that the new cabinet would hold policies somewhere between those of the Leftist People's front of Communist, Socialist, and radical socialistic doctrines; and the conservative Right.

Although Chautemps was mentioned as a prospect to succeed himself, observers indicated that this would hardly be probable. Others considered were: former premier Herriot, radical Socialist; former Premier Albert Sarraut, and Edouard Daladier, the resigned defense minister.

The People's Front party cast blame on Chautemps for making "a declaration hostile to the working classes."

They claimed "he said nothing against those responsible for financial panic and those who sabotaged social laws."

Among the group of autograph hounds that pressed around Norman Thomas the other night after his speech in Memorial hall, was sober-faced Dr. Ruark, head of the Physics department, who, like the rest of the group, clutched a small slip of paper. After pushing his way to the Socialist leader's side, Ruark presented his slip. Thomas, starting to sign, was brought up short when he saw clearly on the paper in Dr. Ruark's hand writing:

With best wishes to Norman Thomas,
ARTHUR E. RUARK.

FRESHMEN DEFER ACTION OF YEAR BOOK PHOTOGRAPH

Poor Chapel Attendance Causes Delay Of Vote On Issue

Because of a poor attendance at chapel, freshmen yesterday deferred action until Tuesday morning on the question of having 32 individual or group pictures of the class in the 1938 Yackety-Yack.

The special meeting was called by Christian Siewers, freshman class president, to discuss and vote on the form in which the pictures are to be put in the annual.

Siewers opened the program by explaining the two proposals. They are: (1) the form used in previous years, of having group pictures of the entire class; and (2) informal snapshots of 32 prominent first year men. The

Committee To Pick New Method Of Handling Senior Contracts

Plans Suggested

The Student council last night postponed any definite action concerning a proposal that the power to select contracts and set retail prices for senior commencement invitations be taken from the senior class president and the invitations committee.

A committee, composed of President Bob Magill, Warren Haddaway, and Joe Patterson, senior class president, was appointed to form a proposal which will be presented and acted upon at another special meeting Monday night.

"Mull Over" Proposal

Magill said the council "mull over" the suggestion made by Willis Harrison in a letter which revealed the possibility of graft under the present system, for some time. "Opinions expressed at the meeting will be the essence of the committee's proposal Monday night," he said.

Several new plans for selecting the engraving contract, handling local tasks necessary and setting the retail price were discussed. Chief among these were that the Publications board handle all transactions, that the actions be carried on as at present, but that all transactions be audited and published, and that the University Purchasing agent select contracts and NYA students do local tasks.

Present Plan

Under the present plan, the senior class president and the invitations committee select the contract and set the retail price. In the past, no audit or record was made of any transactions.

In a letter presented to the council Monday night, Harrison revealed that under this system there was an open opportunity for graft. He showed the probability that excessive profits had been made in the past, and warned that unless the system

Graham Memorial Director Would Rather Give New Dance A Chance First

Mae West was barred from the radio because she talked about the apple. The Grail and the German club bar anyone from their dances who does the Little Apple. But Pete Ivey, Graham Memorial director, is undecided.

The Little Napoleon will give the Little Apple a chance before he bars it. He plans to have a couple who asked to be allowed to present the "fruit dance" on the stage in his gala amateur show Sunday night at 8:30 in Hill hall demonstrate their ability in his office.

If he thinks their performance is satisfactory, the diminutive director will allow them to present their dance in his show.

Sedalia Singers

Aside from the Little Apple, the highlight in entertainment should be the presentation of the Sedalia Singers, noted Negro choral group, which has been enthusiastically received here previously on the Student En-
