WAR REFERENDUM BILL REVIVED IN SENATE

Washington, Jan. 18.—Recently shelved in the house of representatives after being denounced by President Roosevelt, the war referendum proposal was revived in the upper house by four senators today. Senator Nye (R-ND.) said that he and his three colleagues, Capper (R-Kans.), LaFollette (Prog-Wis.), and Clark (D-Mo.), would try to obtain a senate vote at this session.

Nye said that the new proposal would not require a popular vote on declaring war if a foreign nation invaded any part of the western hemisphere.

The house resolution introduced by Rep. Ludlow (R-Ind.) would have made a referendum necessary unless the United States was invaded. House sponsors said they would have accepted an amendment to include both North and South America.

Meanwhile, southern senators continued their filibuster against the anti-lynching bill with Senator Allen (D-La.) beginning his fourth day of speechmaking.

FASTING DEAN TELLS FOLLOWERS TO EAT

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 18.—Rev. Israel Harding Noe, on his sixteenth day of abstinence from certain foods, warned parishioners against following his example.

The Episcopal minister, who since January 2 has eaten nothing except communion wine and wafers, said that no one could survive in a like manner unless he has complete faith in what he is doing and a knowledge of sciences such as bio-chemistry.

The preacher began his fast in order to achieve earthly immortality. Since that time he has suffered a great loss in weight but has continued his church duties.

Pastor Addresses YWCA On Marriage At Meeting Here

Dr. O. T. Binkley Speaks As First In Series Of Lectures On Student Problems

"It takes intelligence, courage, and strength of character to make a successful marriage," stated Dr. O. T. Binkley, pastor of the Baptist church and professor of marriage, Monday night in a talk before the YWCA.

In discussing "The Family and the Student," Dr. Binkley pointed out the necessity for sane and thorough education in marriage problems. He stated further that there is a decided tendency toward more intelligent freedom prior to marriage, and added that "this change in code is to the good, involving honest facing of facts and more concern toward the right decision."

This is the first of a series of lectures being sponsored by the YWCA this quarter on the various problems the student faces today.

At the meeting Monday, Claire Whitmore was elected vice-president.

All State Papers Expected To Be Represented At Meet

Sulzberger To Deliver Opening Address Tomorrow

Vaughn To Speak

With a program which he considers instructive, entertaining and profitable, W. Curtis Russ, president of the North Carolina Press association, is expecting every progressive newspaper in the state to be represented when the association holds its 14th annual institute here and at Duke tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

Headlining the program will be the opening address by Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times. His address will be open to the public. This session will be held in Hill Music hall.

Other special features on the program include a discussion of the Chinese-Japanese war by Miles W. Vaughn, night editor of the United Press, who has spent much time in the East; a discussion of pictures in newspapers; and addresses by Arthur Robb, executive editor of Editor and Publisher, New York, and John Temple Graves II, of the News-Age-Herald, Birmingham.

As a special entertainment feature A. Guy Ivey, Graham Memorial's director, will be master of ceremonies during the luncheon Friday at the Carolina inn. At this time Stuart Rabb and Bob duFour will give a special radio-radiator-side address from Washington by the President on the state of the press in North Carolina, and a speech by Prince Konoye on Japan's World Mission.

DORMS, FRATS TO ASK SPEAKERS TO "BULL SESSIONS"

Comer Urges Students To Arrange For Discussions

In order to obtain the maximum possible individual contact between students and the twelve prominent speakers coming here next week for the Religion in Life conference, dormitories and fraternities may select their own leaders for informal bull sessions.

A committee of two from each organization has been appointed to select speakers for several such gatherings, to be held in the dormitory or fraternity social room, or in a student's room.

Arrangements

Harry F. Comer, executive secretary of the YMCA, announced yesterday that students would be urged to call the YMCA office and arrange for private discussions.

Several speakers may make fraternity houses their homes during the conference, so as to increase their individual contact with student life.

Speakers

Speakers, and the days they will be available for private discussions, are as follows:

Dr. R. R. Wicks, dean of the chapel of Princeton, on Thursday and Friday; Dr. Mordecai Johnson, first Negro president of Howard university, on Thursday and Friday; Dr. T. Z. Koo, noted Chinese author and lecturer, from Monday to Friday; Dr. Douglas Steere, professor of philosophy at Haverford college, from Sunday to Thursday; Professor Gertrude Tollison, religious education director at

Pictures Will Be Taken Tomorrow Morning At 10:30

Precedent Upheld

Tomorrow morning at 10:30 the freshman class will assemble on the steps of Manning hall to have group pictures taken for the 1938 edition of the Yackety-Yack.

The decision to have group pictures of the class in the University annual was made at assembly yesterday when freshmen voted almost unanimously to retain the form which has been used in previous years. Less than 20 first year men voted for the new plan, that of using individual snapshots of 32 prominent members of the class, while the rest agreed to continue the use of group pictures of the entire class.

At a meeting early in the first quarter, the freshman executive committee decided, at the suggestion of the Yackety-Yack, to use part of the contracted space in the annual for the individual pictures instead of running the usual group pictures.

Objection Raised

The matter was forgotten until early this quarter when a group of freshmen, led by Ray Daugherty of New Bern, began a campaign to reinstate the old form.

A week ago today, freshman president Christian Siewers, in a statement to the DAILY TAR HEEL, denied that the executive committee had exceeded its authority in choosing the new plan.

Last Friday, however, the class president called a special

Text Of Graham's Speech On Athletics

When the faculty met last Thursday to consider recommendations from the committee on athletics for a University policy, it heard an official statement by President Frank P. Graham concerning the athletic situation at the University.

Here is the text of President Graham's speech:

A comparatively small but increasing number of American college students are entering the struggle for the educational control of inter-collegiate athletics. This should be encouraging to all those interested in saving inter-collegiate sports from self-destruction, and the colleges and universities from self-degradation. Inter-collegiate athletics have many fine things to commend them as worth saving on their highest levels. When democratically evolved out of the play life of the colleges and developed as the natural extension of campus-wide intra-mural games, inter-collegiate athletics may become the crowning expression of whole communities at play.

Value Of Athletics

The stadium would then become more wholesomely the rallying place of the whole college, students, faculty, alumni, friends, and citizens, with high devotion expressed in music, songs, cheers, struggle, and drama, deep with loyalties called forth by the precious meaning of alma mater and the associated aspirations of the human spirit. On the playing fields of alma mater, vigorous and alert youth, clean and masterful from self-denial and hard training, rejoicing in their common strength, give their all for the college and victory in good spirit and take it all, blows, bruises, and defeat, without quarter or whimper, to rise again for the blows and shocks to come. Of such is the spirit of youth in the democracy of sports which gives expression to the instinct of youth for robust struggle and the yearning of youth for enlistment in a cause bigger than themselves, mayhap potentially to be translated in later years on higher levels in causes as deep as the community and as wide as the world. As ways of teaching on fields of hottest interest, nothing is so powerful as sports; as subjects of teaching, nothing so plastic as youth. The making of codes of sportsmanship in athletic relations, personal, intra-mural, and inter-collegiate, may have some teaching carry-over in the making of codes of sportsmanship in human relations, industrial inter-racial, and international.

Why Regulations

With the granted values in the making and practice of codes the question nevertheless arises why have a code regulating athletics without corresponding restrictions upon other student activities such as music, drama, or debate which also culminates in inter-collegiate contest? It is not that athletics is chosen as the object for
