Geology Professor To Conduct Survey Of Hawaiian Group

Dr. MacCarthy Takes Residence In Honolulu To Investigate Underground Water

Dr. Gerald R. MacCarthy, on leave from the University geology department for the coming year, has arrived in Honolulu, where he will be engaged in geophysical investigation of a number of the islands in the Hawaiian group.

The purpose of the investigation, which is being conducted for the United States Geological Survey, is to determine the available sources of underground porable water in the islands.

It is possible with geophysical instruments to determine from the surface these water reservoirs between ancient lava flows and also to distinguish between salt and fresh water zones.

Spelt Names Radio Project

for remote control purposes:

1. Approximately $7.50 for installation between the local radio studio and the local telephone exchange.

2. This wire between the radio studio and local exchange would cost $3.50 per month for the first quarter of a mile, and $1.75 for each successive quarter of a mile.

3. Between the local telephone exchange and the telephone exchange at the point of destination there would be a fee of 15 cents per mile, per hour of use. (Fee based on a balanced circuit which permits transference of music and speech.)

4. These figures are an estimation. For example, in point 3 the fee may be slightly less than 15 cents per mile per hour. Also, there may be a charge, in some instances, for a special wire from the exchange at destination to the broadcasting studio, necessitated by an overload at a particular time.

Program Time

"As yet," said Spelt, "there has been no statement of the amount of time which the University will be allowed to give programs."

Another point, according to Spelt, is that adequately trained direction of a full time nature is absolutely essential and appears to be lacking.

"The finished, smooth, clockwork perfection that the public has been trained to expect is necessary. It takes ability, training and experience to see that a program is prepared to go on the air.

Limited Coverage

"Also there is the problem of the limited coverage of the stations available—do you get $4,000 worth?"

"The station which gives the most coverage is the most distant, and they sell the most valuable time—the time having the largest audiences. Consequently any sustaining feature must be shifted to meet the demands of commercial features, and our programs will fall in the sustaining class. Under this last condition the Carolina programs stand to lose because of changing time.

Adequate Publicity

"The newspapers in the state do not feature radio, and therefore we can't count on adequate publicity about programs to attract public attention.

"If we are looking at the project from the publicity point of view, I think the $4,000 would go much further to pay the traveling expenses to and from the regular broadcasting stations for those people on the campus who would add something to a radio program."

LETTERS To The Editor

the difficulty in getting Carolina students to the polls even to vote for making Mae West as an honorary math proff (expert on figures)—then these restrictions seem to read defeat themselves.

I don't think one could estimate the ultimate value of radio studios at Carolina in dollars and cents. It's worth superseding that. It's a fact that radio is becoming more educational minded and vice versa. It might interest you to know that every college and outstanding school in Greensboro and vicinity are weekly and daily presenting programs, which are highly interesting as well as informative. They realize the great value of radio and through the cooperative policy of this station are utilizing this medium.

I don't like to think of the University lagging behind the others when the opportunity is awaiting. I might cite the fact that only Saturday, we originated a coast to coast CBS program of the Sedalia Singers. This will bring them national prominence—the same that Carolina can and should enjoy. That is why I should like to make this urgent appeal from someone on "the other end" not to pass up a project whose benefits will in time to come be manifold.

Sincerely yours,
Bob Poole.

Troyanovsky Discusses International Affairs

last great war." In an interview yesterday afternoon he said, "A union between the United States, Great Britain, and the Soviet Union is the only thing that will stop the wartime tactics of aggressor nations like Japan. There is more danger for the future now, than there was preceding the great war, because Germany wasn't then allied with Japan," he continued.

Changes Since 1918

Troyanovsky, who was introduced by Lieutenant Governor Wilkins P. Horton, mentioned the changes that each of the more important nations had undergone since 1918. "There is an entirely new Russia," he said. "The people are more educated, and a new social order has been established that serves as a defense against external enemies." "Germany has not basically changed. The only difference now is that they have Hitler instead of the Kaiser. Great Britain still has her great political system, and France is again threatened by the possibility of another German invasion.

Japanese Expansion

"Japan continues with her plans for expansion, and Italy is still the military nation."

In his pleasant sounding broken English he concluded his resume of the changing world powers by saying, "In my capacity as a diplomat I don't want to speak about the United States."

The ambassador drove down from Washington yesterday, accompanied by his wife and Attache K. Koukin.

He was entertained by the CPU at an informal banquet in the Carolina inn last night. About thirty students and faculty members were present.

University Party Adopts New Plan

pus life," Murnick declared. "It has pledged itself to uphold open, democratic policies in the forthcoming campus elections." Objectives of the party were outlined at the session, Murnick stated.

The sphere of the reorganized party was thus broadened to embrace a wider representation of the entire student body. This was interpreted as a move to heal the breach between fraternity and non-fraternity elements on the campus. Hitherto the University party has generally been identified as primarily a fraternity political group.

Action of the University party's steering committee in deciding that its candidates would be selected for individual merit was the second turn of campus political wheels within a week.

Student party chieftains met last Wednesday night, re-elected Bill Cole chairman, and decided upon class leaders who will sound out campus opinion on potential candidates. The junior political party was organized by Cole and others last year and it won a number of offices against the candidates of the veteran University party.

and to the local Rotary club at 6:30 this evening.

Dr. Barker is known for his ability to impress audiences without any effort at preaching and without any oratorical flourishes. He is said to make his talks to youth appeal to the idealism of youth, to show an appreciation of their problems, and from a lifetime of experience, to speak frankly without offending.

His most noted topic is "How to Make the Most of Life."

Danger In Home Treatment of Child Ills.

A physician tells how a six year old boy died from acute alcoholism.

He had complained of stomach ache and was given a spoonful of brandy. It is not definitely known, but it is believed that he helped himself to the "medicine" when left alone in the room.

The physician says "This unfortunate instance should go a long way toward discouraging amateur attempts to relieve a serious ailment, particularly in children, since they require much different doses of medicine than do adults and their ailments require just as precise a diagnosis."

The safest plan lies in calling the doctor whenever there is illness, whether in children or adults.
