Boy Scouts from the two Chapel Hill troops bestowed the honor on Baugh at recent ceremonies. Lange, their scoutmaster, is an assistant football coach.

462 ATHLETES WILL COMPETE IN BIG EVENT

First Installment To Start At 1:30, Finals At 7

By SHELLEY ROLFE

Straining at the leash and waiting for the starting gun that will set them into action, 462 of the crack college and scholastic trackmen from College Park to Atlanta are in Chapel Hill today for the ninth edition of the Southern Conference indoor track meet that will be in our midst at the Tin Can in two installments lasting all day.

The first installment, starting at 1:30 in the afternoon and lasting until 4:30, will contain the preliminary trials for almost all events in the four events of the meet—conference, non-conference, scholastic and freshman. The night's festivities will begin at 7 o'clock and will end at 10:15 with the climax of the day, the running of the conference mile relay.

New Banked Track

The chief attraction of this year's meet, which will be the outstanding trackfest in the nine-year history of the only indoor meet in the south, is the new Tin Can banked track. Built this fall at an expense of more than $2,000, the track is expected to cut down times in

Cole Is Ticked

By BOB PERKINS

Jim Joyner, member of the University party's steering committee and its candidate for the vice-presidency, took a walk yesterday and accepted the Student party's nomination for the presidency.

"I've always been interested in the Student party, but it was only after a great deal of hesitation, because of my affiliations with the University party steering committee, that I accepted the Student party's nomination," said Joyner last night. "I made my decision only after I found that it had been the plans of the Student party all along to push my candidacy for the president of the student body."

Cole Ticked

Bill Cole, chairman of the Student party and instrumental in recruiting Joyner to the ranks of the party, said he was "ticked to death" in having Joyner run for the presidency.

"We consider him the best qualified man on the campus for the job. He is in our opinion better suited than any man at Carolina to uphold all the responsibilities that such an office would imply," Cole said.

Consider Joyner Better

Wednesday night the University party announced that it had chosen Bud Hudson and Jim Joyner as their candidates for the offices of president and vice-president respectively. Cole, speaking for the Student party, said they considered Joyner the better qualified man for the position of heading the student

LEADERS IN GERMANY IRKED BY SCHUSCHNIGG

Berlin, Feb. 25.—German leaders expressed displeasure today at the attitude taken by Austrian Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg in his speech to the Austrian parliament.

They were concerned because the Austrian leader did not praise Germany's Hitler, and stated that he must be discarded. In his speech, Schuschnigg declared that he intended to maintain Austrian independence and remain sovereign from the other German-speaking nation.

In a number of interviews last night, prominent Nazi leaders expressed their disapproval of Schuschnigg's stand. Making it very clear that their statements did not necessarily coincide with that of the official government, they said that the Austrian Chancellor had had the opportunity to rally to Hitler and because he failed to do so must be discarded.

They questioned the fact that Schuschnigg had not returned the generous words to Hitler that their Fuehrer found Sunday for him.

"We got the police and the ministry of the interior as well as large parts of the army (as a result of the conference between Hitler and Schuschnigg last week). Austria is ours."

The Austrian chancellor, reporting on the Feb. 12 conference with Hitler by which Austrian Nazis gained political freedom and gained a foothold into the Austrian cabinet, emphasized the nation's determination to remain sovereign.

Meanwhile in Vienna, the Austrian capital, patriots paraded in joyous celebration until early morning to celebrate their chancellor's proclamation.

'Sharecropper' To Be Given Matinee Performance Today

Scandal Comedy To Be Given By Repertory Group

Sheridan's "School For Scandal" Will Be Presented On Entertainment Series Monday

One of the most famous characters of the theater, Lady Teazle, will once again be found behind the screen in the wrong man's apartment, Monday night when the Repertory Theater presents their revival of the famous comedy "School for Scandal" on the entertainment series.

Both in the theater and in literature the characters of Sheridan's comedy have become famous.

Sir Peter Teazle

There is Sir Peter Teazle, a wealthy bachelor who, in his middle age, takes for himself a kittenish wife. This wife, who is from the less fashionable provinces, enters straightway upon a career of spending and tale bearing.

There is Lady Sneerwell, a dean of the school for scandal, devoted to devastating reputations; Mrs. Candour, a lady consecrated to spreading malicious gossip, and Snake, a hired tool of Lady Sneerwell's.

And then there is the hypocritical gentleman, Joseph Surface, whose pious face masks his scheming disposition. All of these figures in the famous "bed-room" scandal comedy of the 1777's.

But most famous of all is Lady Teazle who has for years been the favorite of the stage's greatest actresses—Ada Rehan, Fanny Kemble, Fanny Davenport, Lillian Russel, Mrs. John Drew, and Ethel Barrymore.

Sick List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were: L. V. Giles, R. B. Neuman, W. K. Lewis, Carl Peiffer, R. L. Stricker, W. M. Smith, H. T. Hatch, and J. L. Godfrey.

Play To Be Presented For Last Time At 8:30 Tonight

Will Begin At 3

It's "Matinee at 3:00" for the Playmakers' fourth public production, "Sharecropper," and a final performance at 8:30 tonight at the Playmakers theater.

This marks the end of the premiere production of a play which is essentially Carolina. Concerning the Eastern North Carolina tobacco fields, "Sharecropper" is the creation of Fred Howard, who is from that district. Even as a boy Howard was cognizant of the colorful life around the tenant farms. He learned of the constant struggle between landowner and tenant, and of the sharecropper's usual defeat. "Sharecropper," the story of a domineering landowner's attempt to rule his tenants, comprises the reflections and lessons of its author's youth.

Revision

This play, the first full length student drama of this year, is a revision of Howard's one-act "New Nigger," written originally for a playwriting course here at the University. Enjoying considerable success while on tour, it was rewritten into the form desired for a regular Playmaker production.

Greater Scope

With "Sharecropper" Howard attempted to achieve a far greater scope for his theme than the confines of Carolina tobacco lands. He has attempted to set forth a colorful illustration of the endless struggle between opposed interests—in this case black and white, landowner and tenant. The ultimate rebellion of a few, its drama and tragedy, create the climax.

Following Proff Koch's prime requisite to potential playwrights—"write about what you know"—Howard has given his interpretation about "what he knows."

Chairman Heard Receives Many Letters Following Organization's Rise To Prominence

By DAVID STICK

In the spring of 1936 several University students formed an organization to bring prominent outside speakers to the campus. They called it the Carolina Political Union, and immediately started a drive for membership.

It was not until last year that the union's first written constitution was drawn up, that its first full time chairman was elected, and that prominent speakers started appearing on its programs.

This year over 100 persons applied for membership in the union, but only seven were accepted. Already, since the beginning of school last fall, such speakers as Norman Thomas, Aambassadors Dodd, Troyanovsky, and Dieckhoff, Tom Girdler, Ku Klux Klansman Hiram Wesley Evans, and William Hard have appeared on the cam
