PHARMACY STUDENTS AREN'T "SWINDLERS"

In "Letters to the Editor" today is a defense of Pharmacy school students. "We do not like to be called 'posers' or 'swindlers,'" writes a champion of their cause in the Yackety-Yack photograph question.

The issue has been that photographs of Pharmacy school juniors and seniors have been getting in the Yackety-Yack and paid for by the class treasuries, to which the pharmacy students do not contribute.

Wooten-Moulton, photographer, says that it has simply clicked its shutters at whomever the Yackety-Yack sends up with the proper identification card. The pharmacy school students say they innocently went up to be photographed after a Yackety-Yack representative asked them to and gave them identification cards.

Those who haven't had their say are the treasurers of the two classes that are footing the bill, and the responsible members of the Yackety-Yack staff.

The case is that the expenditure isn't labeled "pharmacy school photographs" on anybody's books, and for the sake of good campus finances, it should be. Before next year's contracts are made out, there ought to be a get-together of class treasurers and the Yackety-Yack business office.

LOCAL BAND MAKES GOOD

The home town boy made good—in his home town!

Wednesday night's audience was really impressed with the concert of the University band. That each member of the band had practiced 10 hours during the two weeks before, right in the face of exams, was pretty impressive. But the genuinely good music they produced was the real thing.

Eight expensive instruments had been added to the organization. It had 21 new members who brought its size up to 66.

During the fall and winter the University band has toured to cities throughout the state, where it won great acclaim. Finally it has come home to break traditions—local band makes good at home.

CHAPEL HILL RAISES A BABY

In a Cleveland, Ohio, YMCA two years ago the American Student Union was organized. Last Tuesday night in Graham Memorial plans for a University chapter were laid. Laid on what?

Scott Hunter, Billy Campbell, and Polly Pollock are the organizing spirits here. They know the story of the ASU, probably, but to many of us it meant only another subsidiary of the YMCA. Let's take a closer look:

The Union was formed in 1936 in a merger of two national radical student organizations on the campus of Ohio State: the National Students' League (a Socialist Party affiliate), and the Students' League for Industrial Democracy (organized by Upton Sinclair on the West Coast).

They were forced off the Ohio campus to the Cleveland YMCA. Too radical for the Buckeyes.

Perhaps it is a little unfair to burden the child with the sins of its parents, but we all ought to know its background. Chapel Hill is a tolerant place for baby-raising.

Campus Speech By Earl Browder

velt's Chicago speech . . . upon the grounds that the Communists support it, and therefore it must be wrong. What would such people, most of them good Christians no doubt, answer to a Communist declaration of support to the ten commandments."

In another impromptu remark during the open forum discussion he stated, "It is impossible to picture a world democratic front without seeing America at the lead in the movement."

Communist Traitors

A question regarding the convicting of admitted Communist traitors in Russia brought out the following comment from Browder, "We have our traitors, as all other political parties have, but we differ from the others in that we are more vigilant in seeking them out and rendering them harmless."

The Communist leader concluded his address with "America will take the path toward concerted action of all the peaceful and democratic forces of the world. America will certainly reject the Hitler slogans . . . America will resume her proud place in the vanguard of world progress. America will not turn aside toward a vain and false isolation . . . Our present capacities and our past history join in giving us this assurance. We of the Communist movement will do our best to help realize this promise."

Seminar

Browder, who was accompanied here by his wife and an associate, Mr. Childs, arrived in Chapel Hill in time yesterday afternoon to conduct a seminar in the lounge of the Carolina inn.

Following the afternoon's discussion, which was attended by 15 students and faculty members, the communist leader was entertained at an informal banquet.

The party planned to leave the University immediately after last night's program in order to arrive in Raleigh in time to catch a late train for New York.

POP QUIZ

By Bob Perkins

There are two points on the earth which are exactly north and south from one another and exactly 1,000 miles apart.

Now if you fly from one of these points to the other in the shortest possible distance, you will be flying 500 miles due north and 500 miles due south.

Can you locate these points?

Answer to yesterday's quiz: One five-dollar bill, four two-dollar bills, four dimes, one half-dollar, one quarter, and four pennies.

Fires Break Monotony

the Fire Boys"), the volunteers leave whatever work they might be doing and run to the fire. "We sort of give orders, because we run the equipment. If the chief is there he does."

Speaking of the recent fire which damaged Dr. Odum's house, Partin wanted it known very definitely that the residence was out of the fire force's jurisdiction. "We weren't supposed to go, but we did to help out. But we were handicapped by the wind, and by a shortage of our water line. That was a mighty bad fire, but not so bad as the one in the chemistry building some time ago. That really was bad."

Fire Fighter's Life

Asked if the life of a fire fighter satisfied him, Partin leaned back further into the afternoon sun. "I've been at it so long I couldn't hardly do anything else. It's boring sometimes, but I like it."

Perhaps the veteran serviceman's serenity has been aided by the lack of trouble from prankish college students. Rising from his chair to give special emphasis to his remarks, he said: "We must undoubtedly have the best set of boys in any college town. We haven't been bothered by a false alarm in over two years, and they never try any tricks. The boys have helped us out mighty well on many fires."

Preparing to depart, the reporter asked Partin if he had any children.

"I have two," was the reply.

"Will they be firemen?"

Partin sat down again. "Both mine's girls."

ANGLES

By Allen Merrill

After the joint meeting of the student council and Publications Union Tuesday night, things looked dark for radio studio proponents.

If both sides adopt the compromise which resulted from the meeting, the publications fee will return to $6.90, but, by a proposed constitutional amendment, the board will not be able to take on any new function without a majority vote of the campus.

Since a majority vote on any issue is rare, the radio studio seems to have been sacrificed for a principle: no campus organization can extend its functions beyond its preestablished limits when student fees are involved—without a majority vote of its members.

One hope, however, is still left for the studio if the campus wants it: It is rumored that a safe majority of students will visit the polls when Spring elections roll around. If both the proposed amendment and the studio issue are added to the ballot, an ample number of voters can register their opinion simply by one more mark of the pencil.

POINT OF VIEW

By Ramsay Potts

Communists certainly do have a sense of humor. Mrs. Earl Browder, who is here with her husband, was telling about her three children who had been left at home in Yonkers. "They all like music, but the two youngest want to be engineers. The oldest boy is ten and the pride of his class at school. He's really a 'capital' guy."

While the Mrs. was discussing home life, Comrade Browder pointed out the similarity of early American political development with the 'purges' now going on in Russia. We were all convinced that Aaron Burr gave the Russian traitors an excellent example to follow.

Mr. Browder denounces a great many things, but he is careful to play upon your sentimental nature by constant reference to the United States as "by far the best." In comparing Russian industrial advances with those made in other countries, he said, "They are far ahead of any other European country, but of course they have a long way to go before they catch us." I suspect Mr. Browder of being an American before he is a Communist.

There is one thing he should do. The bristling mustache, and the straight hair falling down over his forehead cause him to look like Adolf Hitler. And unless he's angling for a job with some movie studio as a "double," it would behoove him to arrange a different coiffure. Communists certainly don't want to be mistaken for Fascists, even if they are so much alike.

Pharmacy School—Yackety Yack

To the Editor

Dear Sir:

Your editorial of March 2 concerning the Yackety-Yack pictures of pharmacy school students appears to have been derived from a very biased source. As third and fourth year pharmacy students we were given cards for Yackety-Yack pictures by the Yackety-Yack representative himself at the time of registration.

Our registration blanks clearly had "Pharmacy Student" on them, and we, as students, naturally thought it was our place to have these pictures made. Not only were we asked by the publication representative to have our pictures made, but we also received cards from Wooten-Moulton urging us to have our pictures made at once.

Victimized

We realize now, having been told by the president of the junior class, that we were not entitled to these pictures but we did not pose as regular juniors and seniors, or have any intention whatsoever of doing so. We were merely the victims of a mistake made over a period of several years by the publication itself.

As further proof of the argument that we were not attempting to "beat" anyone, let us take the third year pharmacy class as an example. Several weeks ago our president was approached by Jim Joyner on the subject and was asked to have our class decide whether the members wished to pay the $4.50 for individual pictures, or not to have any such pictures in the annual. The class voted not to have individual pictures and since
