Wolf, Saunders To Be Guests At Alumni Gatherings

Meetings To Be Held In Various North Carolina Communities Next Week

Ray Wolf, head University football coach, and J. Maryon Saunders, Alumni secretary, will be guests at several alumni meetings which are being held in various North Carolina communities next week.

Alumni of Cabarrus county met in Concord Thursday night and former University students from Wilkes county gathered in North Wilkesboro last night.

Asheville alumni are scheduled to meet April 14 and those of Gaston county in Gastonia on April 15. Arrangements for a get-together in Sylva on April 13 of alumni in Haywood, Jackson, and Swain counties have been tentatively made.

McIver To Represent University At Emory

Pastor Is President Of UNC Alumni Group

The University will be represented at the Centennial Celebration of Emory and Henry college at Emory, Va., June 4-8 by Rev. Donald McIver, '97, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church at Bristol, Va.

Rev. McIver is president of the University of North Carolina alumni group in the Bristol area.

Without Gips, the saber results will be disastrous. In only one meet so far have the Carolina sabre-wielders ended in front, and that was mighty close. However tonight, no points are expected in this weapon. Captain Bloom and Oliver Williamson will face the William and Mary saber fencers.

With the Southern Intercollegiate fencing title probably depending on the outcome of this meet tonight, William and Mary is pretty sure of coping the championship this year, which will unofficially be claimed by the undefeated team in the South.

Kyser Has Brilliant Record As Student Here

Will Return to Alma Mater April 22, 23 to Furnish Music for May Frolics

Prominent in activities on the campus . . . leader of the Junior prom, chairman of the Finals dances, member of the Grail, the Golden Fleece, cheerleader, and orchestra leader extraordinary . . .

It was with this background that Kay Kyser left the University and became one of the nation's leading band leaders. In the past few years he has returned to his alma mater, in the same capacity as he will return April 22, 23 for May Frolics, and renewed his popularity here.

On each return trip the campus has recognized Kyser as the same popular fun-lover of the days when he as head cheerleader was the best exponent of Carolina spirit.

But Carolina has never grown tired of hearing him because Kyser's orchestra always manages to have something new and something different to renew the interest of his old admirers. He is always on the lookout for some new and outstanding feature to distinguish his orchestra from another, and to keep it from getting into a rut.

In the past he has originated the idea of introducing all musical selections on the radio by singing the titles. This has come to form a definite part of every arrangement.

Before each vocal, the orchestra swings into four bars of the band's theme song, "Thinking of You." The last two bars are used back of Kay's introduction of the vocalist and in this manner a musical background is offered for each number.

By this method he is able to give dance lovers a greater amount of music while the band is broadcasting and keep the program swinging right along.

Another novel feature he has introduced is his wide variety of entertainers which appear at all dance-sets with him. This year the group includes Virginia Sims, Harry Babbitt, "Ish Kabibble," Sully Mason, and the Kay Kyser Glee club.

It is the new features which competing orchestras have introduced to attract attention, says Kay, which have led to so many changes in the music field in the past few years.

honor council and executive committee of the class. He is chairman of the program committee for the Junior-Senior cabinet and official University delegate to the Southeastern Regional Field council, governing body of the YMCA for 10 Southern states. In addition, he is corresponding editor of "The Intercollegiate," national student magazine, Junior-Senior dance leader, commencement marshal, and a member of the Grail.

Concerning his campaign for the student council, he said:

"It is my belief that the caliber and prestige of our student government and honor system should be maintained and, if possible, strengthened. Such a system of government can be maintained only by constant vigilance and consistent effort of the student body and its leaders.

"It is up to each student to seriously consider campus problems and interests, asserting his influence whenever he believes it necessary to do so in order to raise the standards of student government and the honor system."

Bob Doty . . .

Bob Doty is one side of three equilateral triangles signed up for this year's political steeplechase. He is the University party's candidate as junior class Student council member, and opposing him are Jack Fairley (SP) and Independent Phil Walker. Free-lancers are also in the race for editorship of the Carolina Magazine and junior representative on the Publications Union board.

Doty has had a busy time in his two years here with self-help work, athletics, and making the honor roll consistently. His word to voters is that he will devote his energy and time to the Student council if elected and perform the duty to the best of his ability.

He was a member of the Freshman Friendship council and secretary of the freshman executive committee. He served as chairman of the freshman smoker, and was a freshman member of the Student-Faculty Day committee.

This year he has been a varsity cross-country and track man, member of the Interdormitory council, the University club, and on the dance committee. He recently published "Carolina in Portrait," a calendar with campus pictures on every page.

UNION SPEAKER BEGINS TALK AT 8:30 O'CLOCK

Is Second In Command To John L. Lewis

Phillip Murray, who is John L. Lewis's second in command, will speak in Memorial hall Thursday night, on the Carolina Political union's second spring quarter program.

Murray, who is chairman of the Steel Worker's Organizing committee in addition to being Lewis's top notch assistant, will begin his speech at 8:30.

He comes here as the last in a series of three speakers who have dealt with the general subject of the current labor situation. "Little Steel" leader Tom Girdler began the series with a speech last quarter, and March 29 Edwin S. Smith, one of three members of the National Labor Relations board, appeared on a union program as the second in the series.

Observers say that CIO leader Lewis is a very reticent and reserved man, and reports from the inside have it that the only two men in whom he confides are Phillip Murray and Lee Pressman, who holds the position of counsel for the CIO.

Lewis strongly endorsed Murray as a CIO representative, and his chief assistant.

Authorities claim also that in addition to being one of the best informed representatives of the CIO viewpoint in the country, Murray is an excellent speaker on the subject.

but thoroughly, with objectives and realizations."

The second part of the year will be spent abroad. "My plans are indefinite, but I shall probably devote most of my time to the dramatic centers in England and Russia, with shorter visits to Germany and France."

Welcomes Time Luxury

Selden declared that he would welcome the luxury of ample time for writing, which he plans to utilize on Chapel Hill, he has been forced to stantly throughout the year. Here at "write before breakfast"; however, despite the lack of suitable time, Selden has produced several widely used texts.

The award winner has had a long and varied career in the theater. For five years he was an assistant director and stage manager for the Provincetown Play House and the Greenwich Village theater. He has played stock, in repertory companies, and in regular Broadway productions. In 1927 Selden came to Chapel Hill to assume his duties as a teacher of dramatics, a position which he feels "is what I want to return to next year, and continue for the rest of my career."
