SEVEN BILLION DOLLAR PROGRAM ASKED BY F. D. R.

Washington, April 14.—President Roosevelt today proposed a seven billion dollar spending program including an amount for federal spending and lending and a smaller sum for the extension of bank credit.

The President, speaking before a joint senate and house meeting, set forth to congress plans by which he said the federal government could assist in recovery and called for united determination to attack the recession.

He told the legislators, who have recently knocked some of the key props out from his program:

"Our capacity is limited only by our ability to work together. What is needed is the will. The time has come to being that will into action with every driving force at our command. And I am determined to do my share."

Following are the key points of his recovery talk:

There will be no dictatorship in this country.

The good-neighbor policy towards America has in the past been beneficial to the United States and should be continued.

All government and business energies must be concentrated on recovery and unemployment.

Government and business will aid recovery by working together.

Gains achieved in the past must be maintained and consolidated.

The failure of consumer demand must be remedied.

Our economy will fare better if private funds are put to work at a fair profit.

The vast public debt can only be retired by an increase in citizen income.

We must start again on a long steady upward incline in national income.

Norman Cordon, of Metropolitan Opera, Kay Kyser, Of Fame Returning

By ROBERT PERKINS

This week the University will have a chance to pay its respects to two alumni who have reached the top rungs of the ladder in two different entertainment fields. Norman Cordon of the Metropolitan Opera and Kay Kyser, one of the nation's most popular dance orchestra leaders.

Cordon will sing Tuesday night as the final attraction on this year's entertainment series. Kyser will play for May Frolics next week-end, considered the most popular of the spring dance sets.

Connection

Both these men have close connections with the University. Cordon had a brother here in school during 35-36, and his first cousin, Haughton Ehringhaus, is a senior this year.

Kyser, in addition to being a member of the Grail and the Golden Fleece, was one of the campus' favorite band leaders on the campus and head cheerleader. While a student here he had an older brother who was chemistry professor and a cousin as dean of the graduate school. An antecedent was the founder and first dean of the pharmacy school.

Among other activities on the campus Cordon played in a saxophone (Continued on page two)

75 HIGH SCHOOLS GET INVITATIONS TO INSTITUTE

Meeting Will Be Held Here On April 29, 30

Over 75 North Carolina high schools have been issued invitations to attend the second annual meeting of the North Carolina Scholastic Press institute which will be held here April 29 and 30 under the auspices of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Institute Director David Stick said yesterday that this figure represents an increase of approximately 50 over the number of invitations sent out last year by Stuart Rabb, who planned and directed the first meeting of the high school journalists.

Restrictions

There were no restrictions governing the number of delegates last year and consequently some of the 14 schools represented at that time sent as many as eight delegates. Approximately 45 students attended the two-day meeting at that time.

In order to make possible a wider representation at the second annual meeting each school will be limited to three regular delegates and a faculty adviser. The first letters were sent out during the latter part of last week and already five schools have expressed the intention of sending full delegations.

"Better"

Thus with 20 delegates already assured and more letters piling in every day Stick feels that the second annual meeting of the NCSPI can't keep from being larger, and consequently better, than the meeting which was held here as an experiment last year.

In order to keep the various schools posted as to how plans for the meeting are developing, bulletins are being sent out at intervals. The first group was mailed yesterday; present plans call for sending out the second group early next week.

Included in the bulletins is information regarding the tentative schedule and expenses of the institute, as well as a considerable number of suggestions to help delegates who are planning to come to Chapel Hill April 29 and 30.

Stick said that he has received a considerable amount of local cooperation in making arrangements for the meeting. At a meeting last Thursday the Graham Memorial board of directors agreed to give a banquet for the delegates. Graham Memorial Manager Pete Ivey had already turned over the meeting rooms on the second floor of the union for institute headquarters. Among the other organizations which have either helped already or have agreed to give assistance in the future are the University club, Miss Tempe Newsome and the YMCA office, Russell Grumman and the extension division, Roy Armstrong and the office of Pre-College Guidance.

Scrivener Prepares Tribute For Graham Memorial's Pete Ivey

Seventy-Five Year Old Robert E. Lee Makes Transcript Of Poems

A transcript of the two famous poems, "If," for Men by Rudyard Kipling and "If" for girls by J. P. McEvoy, has been made by Robert E. Lee, 73-year-old law scrivener or law writer, for Pete Ivey in recognition of the esteem in which he is held by the faculty and students of the University.

Mr. Lee, formerly of London, England, is the only law writer in the United States, and the last, for the typewriter has taken his place.

This transcript is a splendid piece of work. At the bottom of it is a space provided for students to sign. About 30 students have already signed it.

Last week Mr. Lee presented to the University law library a transcription of a legal classic.

"Carolina's Pride" Ready For First Swimmers, 3 O'clock

By CHARLES BARRETT

An era of a pool-less University will be ended this afternoon at 3 o'clock when the first thrilled coed plunges into the blue-green waters of Bowman Gray Memorial swimming pool.

Forty-five minutes later the South's largest natatorium will be available for some 1,100 males who have passed necessary physical examinations. The 300 earliest arrivals will have 45 minutes to enjoy their dip after which they must make room for another set. Other periods for men will begin at 4:30 and 5:15.

Tonight from 7:30 to 8:30 the "Pride of Carolina" will be open for mixed swimming.

Today is the last day this week students may receive the physical examination necessary before they may use the pool. University physicians will give the tests in room 302 in the new gymnasium.

Procedure outlined by the department of physical education and athletics for use of the pool is as follows:

(1) Present swimming privilege card to student attendant at stock room window where your basket is located. The numbers of the baskets will be located above each window.

(2) The attendant, in return for the swimming privilege card, will give the bearer a basket including a lock attached, clean towel, and swimming trunks. The student may then take any locker he desires in the main locker room where he is to deposit his civilian clothes and don his trunks. The lock is to be attached to the locker and locked.

(The attendants would greatly appreciate it if each student would be sure and memorize his lock combination, as the privilege card with the combination on it will be left with the attendant at the stock window during the student's swim.)

(3) The student must take a shower before entering the pool.

(4) After the student has finished swimming, he is to return to his locker and dress. Before leaving the main locker room he must return to the attendant in the stock room with his basket, combination lock attached, towel and trunks. It is the responsibility of every student to see that these articles are returned and if not he will be subject to fine. In return for the basket and its contents, the student will have his swimming privilege card returned to him.

This procedure will be the same for women, except an attendant will be on hand to check any valuables. Bathing caps will not be provided by the University.
