

Annual May Day Coronation In Arboretum Today At 3:30; Elizabeth Keeler To Rule

Event Scheduled For Next Saturday In Case Of Rain

By MISS JANE HUNTER
 The south side of the Arboretum will be the scene this afternoon of Carolina's third annual May Day coronation, which will begin at 3:30.

The Elizabethan court pageant will be ruled by Queen Elizabeth Keeler, who will be attended by her maid of honor, Virginia Lee, and the ten ladies of the court, Misses Mary Taylor Hinnant, Jane Hunter, Memrie Gary, Ethel Laidlaw, Olivia Root, Betty Redfern, Mary Glover, Olive Cruikshank, Frances Roughton, and Mary Lillian Speck.

Pageant Scenes

Page boys Libby Spencer and Perdita Arnett will herald the scenes of the pageant, which will consist of minuets, sword dances, peasant dances, and the traditional winding of the May pole, the last of which will be performed by town children.

Color is the key note of today's coronation pageant. The court costumes make a rainbow of gowns of net in pastel shades, contrasting with the classic white of the queen's robe. The soft tones of the minuet costumes, the dashing colors worn by the sword dancers, and the bright dresses of the peasant dancers will make colorful pageantry against the natural background of the Arboretum greenery.

Informal Reception

Immediately following the coronation there will be an informal

LARGE SUMMER SESSION EXPECTED

Indications Show Enrollment Increase

Present indications are that the coming session of the University summer school will show an increase of almost 50 percent in enrollment over last year.

Five hundred more inquiries have been received than for the corresponding period last year when the first term attendance was 1217, an increase of 217 over 1936.

May Reach 1,500

The number of inquiries is not a definite promise, but experience has proved that it provides the basis for a pretty good forecast, and it would not surprise the University authorities if the enrollment should go as high as 1,500.

The inquirers are more widely

Work Moving Forward For Forest Drama

Shakespearean Comedy Will Be Presented In Outdoor Theater May 20, 21, and 23

Work on the annual Forest Theater production "Merrie Wives of Windsor" is now in full swing with the Playmakers slinging much paint and cloth about. This hilarious Shakespearean comedy, to be presented in the Forest Theater May 20, 21, and 23, has taken the entire attention of the Dramatic Arts department and elaborate plans are being executed.

Professor Russell Smith, head of the Fine Arts department, has designed the scenery which Assistant Director Harry Davis and his crew of students are now constructing.

Setting

The main setting consists of a great Tudor arch, 50 feet wide, which will cover the entire width of the Forest Theater stage. This will represent various exterior and interior scenes, including the country-side and forest setting in Elizabethan England at Maytime. There will also

'Rockin' Chair Woman' Likes Spirituals Over Swing

By SANFORD STEIN

"If I had my way, all I'd ever sing would be spirituals. I think they're the most beautiful kind of music," said Mildred Bailey when asked about her song preferences yesterday afternoon. Two minutes afterwards she went up to the microphone and described with appropriate gestures for the students attending the Junior-Senior tea dance in the new gymnasium the worldly "Week-end of a Private Secretary."

"I started singing in Seattle, Washington, when I was 17 years old. My first job was plugging songs in a music store. Then I sang for a few years in

Faculty To Vote On Issue At Early Meeting

By ED RANKIN

English Professor J. M. Booker revealed yesterday afternoon that he had introduced a resolution at the last faculty meeting to limit the number of football games outside of the Southern conference area to two.

Dr. Booker stated that Carolina as one of the strong teams of the Southern conference must play more games among its members and uphold its principles if the conference is to last. Carolina only played six games out of nine last year in the conference and one was with Virginia which, strictly speaking, is not a conference member, he said.

Reasons

The main purpose of the games with highly reputed teams is publicity and large gate receipts, and it is Dr. Booker's belief that games in the Southern conference are played under more equal circumstances and therefore of more interest to football fans.

His last reason for introducing this "motion to lessen a recognized evil" was a personal interest in games between teams of the conference area. As a suggestion for the two games allowed, Dr. Booker said that one might be picked from the South-eastern conference and the other

BIG SHOW WILL END IVEY'S RULE

Spectacle To Be Held Thursday

Memorial hall will be the scene of master showman Pete Ivey's entertainment spectacle before he hands over the directorial reins of Graham Memorial to his successor, Bob Magill, and retires to the business world. Thursday evening at 8 o'clock is the time and the lineup of talent should read like a veritable "Who's Who" of Carolina entertainers.

Although the complete program has not yet been released, Ivey revealed yesterday that a gigantic talent search, probably surpassing that now in progress for Scarlett O'Hara, is being launched to find a Carolina "Grumpy" to portray that character in the contemplated "Snowball and the 7 Eightballs" which will occupy an important place on the program Thursday. Applicants for that role as well as any others interested in appearing in the show should get in
