STUDENT WRITERS AMONG BEST IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Houston, McFadyen, Doak, Brown Are Outstanding Four

Four Carolina student writers reached the top group of 17 from which the prize winners were selected in the Atlantic Monthly's recent national story contest for college students, according to a letter to Phillips Russell from M. A. C. Berran of the Atlantic Monthly company.

The four were Noel Houston, Dwight Brown, Miss Douglas Doak, and W. M. McFadyen, Jr.

Houston won third honorable mention with his story, "The Farm: 1918." It was the first choice of one of the judges, Berran announced.

Thirteen papers were entered in the contest by Russell's class of writers, which took English 54 in the winter quarter. Commenting on the fact that out of 13 entries four won the "special consideration" of the judges, Berran wrote to Russell:

"The Atlantic congratulates you on the good work of your students and their success. May I add my own congratulations and extend congratulations to your class?"

The first prize for the best story was awarded to Henry C. Hatchell of the University of New Hampshire. Entries were made from colleges and universities all over the country.

GRAIL TO FOUND SCHOLARSHIP TO HONOR BERNARD

Purpose To Help Students Who Can Help University

By ED RANKIN

The Order of the Grail, campus honorary service organization, will inaugurate a permanent scholarship of $500 or two scholarships of $250 for worthy undergraduates next year Fred Ullman, chairman of the Grail scholarship committee, announced yesterday.

This project, to be named the Bernard-Grail scholarship in honor of the late Professor W. S. Bernard, has been founded with the purpose of helping the men who can contribute most to the University and who need the financial aid.

Tentatively applications will be called for after the Christmas holidays next year and the award will probably be made in May. The applications will be submitted to the University Scholarship committee which will include two Grail members acting in an advisory capacity.

Ullman stated that "the Order of the Grail, being the most representative group on the campus, is best fitted to give proper consideration to the candidates. It is for this reason that the final selection has been delegated to the Order which will base the selection on the democratic principle it uses in selecting its own members. This principle is personal representation for each candidate by members of the Order who know the true qualifications of the candidate by virtue of their contacts with him."

The growing popularity of Grail dances, Ullman commented, has increased the yearly income of the Order. The Grail has decided that the best purpose to put this money to would be in scholarships. 6

YEARLY GRANT IS MADE TO YWCA BY ASSOCIATION

Money To Be Used For Blue Ridge Cottage, Expenses

One hundred dollars each year will be granted by the Woman's association to the YWCA, it was decided yesterday in a meeting of the Woman's council.

"Heretofore, the only revenue of the YWCA has been pledges of the individual members, an irregular and unsatisfactory method of collecting funds," states Miss Polly Pollock, former president of the group. This new provision will insure a regular income, so that a budget can be made at the beginning of the year, and plans made accordingly.

The money will be used for running expenses of the organization. (Continued on page two) 6

Terry Sanford, Oliver Crawley Plan Banquet For More Than 100 Residents

A new high in dormitory relations will be set Monday when over 100 residents of Manly dormitory join together in a sirlain steak supper in Swain hall.

The idea for the supper was thrashed out through the editorial columns of the "Manly Hen," dormitory publication, under the supervision of Editor Oliver Crawley. New President Terry Sanford called for an investigation toward the use of dormitory entertainment funds which had accumulated over a period of years on student audit books.

This is the first time any dormitory on the campus has undertaken such a feat and the new Manly administration is well pleased with the project. "The Manly supper," Sanford stated, "is going to climax the recent senior event by 100 per cent." 6
