

Many Changes In Personnel For Coming Year Authorized By President Frank Graham

One-Year Kenan Leaves Granted To Six Professors

Changes in the personnel and leaves of absence for the coming year were announced by R. B. House, dean of administration, last week as authorized by President Frank P. Graham.

Kenan leaves were granted for one year each to six professors. They were received by S. E. Leavitt, Spanish professor; W. B. Sanders, professor of social work; R. J. M. Hobbs, professor of business law; J. P. Harland, archaeology professor; C. D. Beers, professor of zoology; and Otto Stuhlman, professor of physics. Beers will be absent for the full year.

J. C. Russell, assistant professor of social science, has a year's leave of absence for further study in the field of his specialization, medieval English population.

B. P. McAllister, formerly associate professor of law at the University of Washington law school and visiting professor for one year here, is replacing Professor Robert W. Wettach who has a leave of absence for a year to be special assistant to the state attorney general.

Paul W. Wager, associate professor of political science, has returned from leave and has been transferred from department of rural social economics. The department of rural social economics has been merged with the department of sociology. However, Professor S. H. Hobbs will continue to head work in the former field with an office in the library.

Harry Davis, assistant professor of dramatic art, will take the place of Professor Samuel Selden who is on a Guggenheim fellowship for the year. Elmer Hall, formerly instructor in the department, will take Mr. Davis's place. Earl Wynn, Ph.D., Northwestern, was appointed instructor to succeed Howard Bailey, who has resigned.

R. P. McClamroch, assistant professor of English, was given a leave of absence to attend the state legislature of which he is a member. His work will be done by part time instructors B. G. Lumpkin, W. L. Moses, and J. B. Wilson. George F. Horner, formerly part time instructor will assume full time duties.

Replacing Reinhold Baer, assistant professor of mathematics, resigned, will be Nathan Jacobson, Ph.D., Princeton, who is promoted from instructor to assistant professor. Whitfield Cobb, Jr., M.A., North Carolina, and R. E. Smith replace Jacobson.

Dr. H. V. Wilson, by special request of the board of trustees, will continue active teaching in the department of zoology, though his work has been reduced by one third.

Dr. Preston H. Epps, M.A., North Carolina, Ph.D., Chicago, has been appointed associate professor of Greek to succeed Dr.

W. S. Bernard who died last spring. Epps comes from Furman university where he was head of the department of classics and ancient history.

Roben S. Maaske, visiting professor of education, has accepted a permanent position as professor of education.

Russell M. Lyddane, Ph.D., will be visiting associate professor in physics as substitute for Professor Stuhlman.

Chilton Prouty, M.A., Missouri school of mines, succeeds R. A. Edwards, resigned, as instructor in geology. He is the son of Dr. W. F. Prouty, head of the department of geology.

As instructor in the department of economics, Allan T. Bonnell, M.A., Oberlin, Ph.D., Illinois, was chosen.

Robert Stone, has been appointed assistant University physician. He received his M.D. degree from Harvard university. Dr. E. M. Hedgpeth was promoted to associate physician.

Dr. Foy Roberson, of Durham, was appointed special surgical consultant on the staff of the University health service, to have special care of the freshmen and varsity football squads.

W. M. Hammond, Ph.D., was replaced by Edward C. Pliske, M.A. and Ph.D., Minnesota, as instructor of anatomy.

A. J. Shelton will be an instructor in public health for the year. He holds an M.C. from Buffalo University and an Sc.D. from Johns Hopkins. He has been assistant of bacteriology at the University of Oklahoma.

Richard Jamieson, M.A., Columbia, has been named assistant professor of physical education and will be a special instructor and swimming coach.

L. D. Wallace, instructor in English, has resigned.

$5,000 WILLED TO UNIVERSITY BY JAMES MOORE

Raleigh Man, Class Of '80, Leaves Scholarships

On August 19 the will of James Moore of Raleigh was made public, and now University of North Carolina is $5,000 richer. From his estate, worth nearly $100,000, Mr. Moore left $5,000 to be added to a similar sum known as Moore scholarships.

James Moore graduated from Carolina in 1880. The following year a gift of $5,000 was given by his father to the University to be used for tuition of students.

The scholarship in its original form is listed in the catalog as follows: "The Moore Scholarships. (Established in 1881). Bartholomew Figures Moore, of Raleigh, bequeathed $5,000, the interest of which shall be devoted to paying the tuition of students."

What's This, No Trunk?

This, boys, is Miss Lucy Jane Hunter of the Cullowhee Hunters, a tall red-head who last year weighed in as Student-Faculty day queen at 155 pounds.

Red Headed Ex-Queen Arrives In Town But Trunk Check Stayed Home

By ED RANKIN

Carolina's Student-Faculty day queen last year and the TAR HEEL's own Titaness, Miss Lucy Jane Hunter, arrived in town last week and found that she had no baggage check. And upon this hangs a tale.

The Chi Omega red-head is a mountain product, coming from up Cullowhee way. When schooling time rolled around she packed her belongings and had them taken to the bus station with specific instructions to leave the baggage until she could check them herself. Her assistant lugged the trunk to the appointed spot, checked it to Chapel Hill, and promptly disappeared with the receipt.

Manager of the local bus station insisted that he could not give baggage to people unless they produced the proper check. All of Lucy's explanations and protests went to no avail. She was a hundred miles or so from her precious check which was probably resting comfortably in a worn overall pocket.

Dead or Alive?

Lucy Jane described a small rubber pig that was in the left hand corner in the bottom of her trunk. Surely not every one comes to the Hill with a miniature porker in his or her luggage.

This didn't satisfy the hard-hearted bus man although she waved the key to the trunk under his nose and gave him names of certain books in the top tray.

Finally it was decided (by the bus manager) that the former queen make a long list of the trunk's contents with their position in the bag. If she would be kind enough to come down Sunday afternoon for a final showdown the trunk would be opened and explored to see if the list was correct.

So on last Sabbath she journeyed to the station with visions of her clothes spread over half the platform—a shoe here, a dress there, and her favorite bonnet, the blue felt, gracing a dusty bench.

Before she could reach the terminal, a bus attendant ran out to inform her that, uh, it had been decided that she and she alone must be the owner of the trunk so it had been sent to her room.

Victorious, the battle won, Lucy returned to an ice cream parlor and set herself up to a soda.

Police Chief Asks Cooperation In Parking, Bumming

Chief W. T. Sloan yesterday asked students to cooperate with local and campus officers in observing bumming and parking regulations.

Bummers are asked to thumb rides from the curb and to watch curb warnings. Students who bum from the street will be haled before Judge L. J. Phipps.

Those who park over lines and in "no parking" areas will be prosecuted. Special attention is called to the one-lane parking on South Hillsboro street between the stop light and Woollen gymnasium.

Miss Elva Ann Ransom was married to Reed Sarratt at Charlotte. Mr. Sarratt was managing editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL two years ago.

Miss Anne Bagby, of Chapel Hill, was married to Bradley Welfare, of Salisbury. Mrs. Welfare is the daughter of Dr. English Bagby of the psychology department of the University. Welfare was a junior last year and a member of the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Miss Memerie Gary, of Greenwood, Miss., will be married to Zan Carver this fall. Miss Gary was a junior in the University last year.

Miss Adelaide Linton, of Hopkinsville, Ky., was married to Roderic Cartier, of Charlotte. Mr. and Mrs. Cartier both attended the University last year.

WHARTON HIGH SCORER ON TEST IN ENGLISH

Freshman From Darlington Makes 277 Out Of 300

Richard L. Wharton, of Darlington School, Rome, Georgia, was high scorer on the English placement tests given last Monday to the freshmen, Dr. A. P. Hudson, chairman of the course announced yesterday. Wharton answered correctly 277 questions out of 300 possible.

Runners up were Harry Tucker, Needham Broughton High School, Raleigh, with 275 out of the 300 possible; and Wilmer O. Lankford, Milford High School, Milford, Delaware, who made 270 out of the 300.

Instruction Level

The tests were given to determine the level of instruction and study on which a freshman might be expected to do his best work in English. They included sentence structure and diction, grammatical forms, punctuation, and English vocabulary.

Of the approximate 750 new men who took the tests, 81 were placed in the "A" section (better than average) 492 in the "B" section (average) and 159 in the "C" section (less than average in preparation).
