

DR. HENDERSON PRINTS HISTORY OF OLD CHURCH

Pamphlet Results From Research On Chapel Of Cross

Dr. Archibald Henderson, eminent University mathematician and literateur, as historian of the Chapel of the Cross, has just published a 57-page monograph of the history of the Episcopal church in Chapel Hill entitled "The Church of the Atonement and the Chapel of the Cross at Chapel Hill, North Carolina," including also a number of interesting sidelights on earlier life at the University.

In 1921, Dr. Henderson was elected by the vestry Parish Historian after serving as vestryman, secretary-treasurer, and secretary since he first became a member of the parish in 1894, and this pamphlet is the result of exhaustive researches in the church archives and various other sources. Completed in 1925 it was, however, not published until this summer when Dr. Henderson privately printed it for sale to interested persons on a non-profit basis. It is on sale now at his home or at the Episcopal Parish.

After War

After the American Revolution the Church of England lost most of its popularity and at one time it is said there was not

Frosh's Desire To Know Location Of Phi Betas Stumps Frat Man

Fraternity rushing officially started Sunday and during the past three days all sorts of amusing incidents, faux pas, and stories have come out of those select houses.

Around at the Chi Phi house the other day, a freshman was talking over his rushing schedule with one of the upperclassmen. He wanted to know where all the fraternity houses were that he was supposed to visit during rush week. The Chi Phi proved to be a great help until the freshman wanted to know where the Phi Beta Kappa house was. That really stumped him.

From another popular fraternity comes the story of the boy from eastern North Carolina who could get three acres of tobacco from a tablespoon of tobacco.

Second Year Med Student Gets Laugh On ZBT's When They Rush Him

When called upon yesterday for human interest stories of rushing season, many of the frat boys came through with humorous incidents, the authenticity of some of which is to be doubted, and didn't spare the ones in which they themselves turned out to be the goats.

One fraternity has a quite versatile group of rushees, one of their prospective pledges being a naturalist who can tell you about the singular domesticity of the female warbler.

Sigma Nu Rusher's "I Certainly Have Seen You," Echoes Sentiment Of All

Fraternities are offering their old members a compulsory one week course in high pressure salesmanship. Enthusiastic, liquid-tongue orators have developed overnight, and all brothers have learned their first day's lesson well. In the most polished societies, however, mistakes do occur; and in rush week one never knows what might happen next. Old members and rushees are alike in ridiculous and sometimes embarrassing ways in the excitement of who will pledge whom.

The S. A. E.'s are always good for funny stories, but this one is on them and not the green freshman. Louis Poisson, a rushee, struck a match to light his own cigarette, but first extended the light to the S. A. E. before him. Much to his surprise, the experienced brother knocked the match out of his

Committee For Institute Of Human Relations Decides On April 2 As Date For Meeting

STUDENTS MAY CONTINUE WITH HONORS PROGRAM

Additional Work To Be Offered To English Majors

Encouraged by the response that the honors program has stimulated so far, the English department announces that it will continue to offer this opportunity to majors in English of good academic standing who want additional training in initiative and thoughtfulness that the honors program provides.

The students who began the work last year and are planning to complete the course during this, their senior year, are Duncan Eaves, Thomas Meder, Jesse Reese, Roslyn Dince, and J. W. Little.

Two years ago the honors work program was set up by the Division of the Humanities in the English department. Since the beginning of the operation of the program, two students, David Beaty and Patrick Mulene, who have worked under it,

Group Discusses Possible Speakers For Coming Year

Setting the week beginning April 2 as a definite date for the 1939 Institute of Human Relations the committee for the meeting in the YMCA yesterday afternoon discussed possible speakers, finances, and the institute handbook.

Chairman John Kendrick announced that this year's institute, the fifth of a very successful series, would be devoted to a week of extensive review and study of the leading economic, industrial, political, interracial, and educational problems of the modern world under the leadership of a group of distinguished visitors.

The four major divisions of subject matter for the institute will be international relations and government, human relations in business and industry, interracial relations, and education and human relations.

Handbook

In keeping with these four main divisions the institute handbook, which the committee hopes to have ready by the beginning of the winter quarter, will have a separate section de-
