Night Club

Bob Magill, new director of Graham Memorial, is turning over in his mind the feasibility of converting Graham Memorial's second floor banquet hall into a student night club.

With blue lights, probably an orchestra once a week, individual tables resting on plush carpets, and entertainment from campus talent, students in general and dormitory men in particular would have a dating parlor and a dine-dance cabaret combined into one.

Except for E. Carrington Smith's theatre and some of the downtown cafes, dormitory men—unless they have cars—are offered no social gathering place.

If stags were excluded to hold down the number of diners and dancers to the capacity of the club and to the capacity of the dumb-waiters that ascend from Graham Memorial's basement grill, the blue lights might lure enough couples in to cover the cost of operation.

Surely Graham Memorial's budget of $10,000 annual income from student fees would be ample enough to include—at the sacrifice of other expenditures—the cost of furnishing the room.

On The New Gym

Every Carolina student paid a three dollar increase in physical education fees for the fall quarter. This charge was necessary to provide for maintenance of the new gymnasium and for more instruction in physical education.

But the new facilities have much to offer the average student in return for the increased fee. Most of us like to actually indulge in some sport rather than merely to watch it. And the comprehensive program of sports offered should contain at least one for every person on the campus.

Perhaps the most universally enjoyed sport of all is swimming. So that everyone may be accommodated, there are 3,000 men's swimming baskets, 248 women's lockers, and 360 baskets for the use of the faculty. About 1,500 of these are in use at the present time.

On the new Woollen gymnasium floor, badminton, handball, and basketball courts are open to the use of the student body all year around. And incidentally, if a student wishes to reserve a court for some definite time, he may call the new gymnasium and the court will be reserved unless someone else has already applied for the time desired.

The physical education staff will also give special corrective exercises free of charge to any student who needs them. Plans are also under way to place a doctor's office in the new gymnasium so first aid may be given immediately, and so small injuries will not be neglected.

The campus has not become accustomed to the new facilities. And the weather's been fine so far this year. But this program for the new gymnasium is not for the Freshman Hygiene classes alone—it's for every student on the campus!—W. K.

Line Weasels

Line "weasels" present no problem of catastrophic nature. The world in general and the University in particular, will survive their attacks upon the continuity of lines that seem to be eternally forming at registration, at the theater, at the business office, or at Swain Hall.

But the situation, to say the least, is unpleasant. Often, when one is standing in line at the dining hall, he finds—despite the comparatively rapid forward movement of patrons once they are inside the building—that the line seems almost to be moving in reverse. We are all anxious to make quick work of eating and then rushing off to catch a class or take in a movie, but when we have to "weasel" to do it, we are treading on someone's toes.

Meyer Will Address Freshmen On History Of Scout Jubilees

The Boy Scout jubilee to be held here Thursday through Sunday is to be reviewed at freshmen assembly this morning. Dr. Harold D. Meyer, chairman for the University, will be the principal speaker as he tells the "History of the Scout jubilee."

Herbert Stuckey, regional director from Atlanta, Ga., will give some brief comments on the jubilee as well as thank the University for the privilege of meeting here.

"The Scout-o-rama and the pep rally" according to Dr. Meyer will be discussed by Pat Patterson, head cheer leader. Jim Joyner, president of the student body, will preside and tell the students how they can help with the jubilee.

Innocent Frosh Bum Ride

"I believe you're a Carolina student. Of what class are you a member?" asked a diminutive person in the back seat. His name was McAdam.

"Oh, my name is McAdam, a first year man in the pharmacy school," answered the student.

The two talked along about things in general and especially concerning the University, its setup, football team and the like.

"That pep rally Friday night was a good thing and quite apropos—showed a fine spirit on the part of the students," continued the little man in the rear.

McAdams answered with a "yes sir" and that he enjoyed it. He smelled a Rat.

The student by this time had a suspicion his conversationalist must be connected with the University in some way. Upon this thought this is what followed.

"Are you from Chapel Hill, sir?" asked the freshman very pointedly.

"Yes . . . I am," the little man replied.

The conversation took its usual lengthy course but the freshman was eager to find the identity of the interesting person. Probably he's just a "prof" thought McAdams.

"Who are you sir?" the boy asked casually, "What is your name?"

The man replied modestly, "Graham."

"Graham . . . Graham . . . Dr. Frank Graham . . . President of the Greater University!!!" quite naively the boy retorted.

John McAdams spent the remainder of the trip making amends for not recognizing Dr. Graham.

To Tell The Truth---

By ADRIAN SPIES

All of this past week, when has conducted a Wagnian program.

It seems almost unconceivable but the Plaza Catalunya—which is the center of Barcelona life—is thronged at each band concert. People whose every moment is affected by the enclosing presence of civil war take time out to listen to the strange new works of their native composers. Of men like Obradors, Cunill, Duran and Toldra. They forget the dead and wounded. They forget the villianny of foreign intervention. They forget even themselves for the moment, and lose their fears in music.

Far too often the performances are supplemented by a note not called for in the score. But when this happens the music stops and the lights go out. The people, rudely returned to the actualities of their tragic lot, sit quietly. The airplanes leave, the lights go on, the music plays again, and the people forget again.

But isn't this strange, this music in the middle of war? It doesn't dim the awful truths of war, or lessen their import. But it is a strange commentary upon human beings, and upon their ability to take it. The Spanish people have had trouble for a long time now. Fighting has become a part of their daily life, and terror has become a constant presence. But they are sitting up and fighting back. And they are building a new Spain. And they are building a new culture for Spain.

And, like Poe's Israfel, they may someday play a more wonderful song than ever.

A chauffeurs mistake in driving a car up the wrong street at Saraje vo Serbia caused the war.

"No Other Organization"

"I know of no organization during this period which is doing a finer piece of work in moulding higher character and noble idealism among the boys than the Scout movement. The jubilee at Chapel Hill will give an opportunity for the boys to get a new conception of what it means to be a Scout. I do not believe that any boy can attend this meeting without going away a better boy."

Browder Elected AKD President
