Gymnasts Plan Better Team

bate has not yet been brought to the attention of Dr. Lawson, coach of the team.

GYM COACHES RARE

The average gym team where the sport is more popular and better known is equipped with a full-time coach, an expense account, and a squad of at least 14 men. Of these, probably the majority specialize on one piece of apparatus, practice on nothing but their one piece. With a large squad, this is possible. The Carolina team has, at the most, five who are at all familiar with the apparatus, no expense account, and no full-time coach. Each member has to be an all-around man, which, according to Dr. Lawson, is more desirable for the individual. But getting to be a good all-around man requires long and consistent labor.

Practice goes on daily in the rear end of Woollen gym. There is no meet to look forward to at present. But practice still goes on—for pure love of the sport, if nothing more. The group of freshmen taking the work this year has best potentialities of any group in recent years. Many will fail in interest. A few will stick, adding to the squad. In two years, perhaps a little longer, there will be a team from Carolina, not going anywhere merely for the ride, but with chances of a win over any opponent in the field.

Pardon Me, But...

very foundation. Good and true men who believe in the betterment of their alma mater have come forth with the money they made as a result of their college training and given part of it to the GREAT CAUSE. It is their help that has put many a good football player here; still, it isn't enough.

The University of North Carolina must of necessity establish a number of scholarships designed to give needy athletes a chance at education through football and other sports.

That's all there is to it, and if we are any judge of what's going on around here, such a program will be undertaken in the near future. It will have to be if football is to survive. Wake Forest has successfully initiated such a system—other schools are apparently doing the same. We have either got to get in the swim or die a slow and lingering death, eventually sinking to such a low level that institutions with decent football teams will be ashamed to schedule a game with Carolina.

There is a lot more to be said, but space calls a halt — more later. In the meantime, anyone with any suggestions is invited to drop this department a line. It's for the good of the University.

losers were able to score only in the final one. Miller, Conley and Coan starred during the game.
