

Plans Taking Form For Roosevelt Visit

CPU Will Honor Chief Executive With Banquet

Afternoon, the began formulating plans for a sit and speech by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to this campus December 5 under its sponsorship.

The chief executive will travel here from Columbia, S. C., during the morning and early afternoon, and according to temporary arrangements, leave his special train at either Sanford, Durham, or Raleigh and arrive at the University between 4:30 and 5 o'clock in time to deliver his address.

THE QUESTION IS WHERE

Since word confirming the President's visit was received from the White House Saturday by union chairman Voit Gilmore, University officials have been contacted with the view in mind to arrange two possible scenes for the presidential speech, Kenan stadium or Woollen gymnasium. The stadium will hold upwards of 25,000 persons while the gymnasium according to tentative estimates, possibly can be furnished with 10,000 seats.

The union plans to honor the President with a banquet the night of his address, either before or after, depending upon the time of his arrival, to which state and national government officials, and persons who have aided the union in securing speakers for its forum will be invited.

Union members spent a greater part of the meeting yesterday formulating various special committees to deal with plans for the presidential reception. Groups were appointed to oversee the following phases of the occasion: a souvenir booklet, which is to give a history and record of the CPU; donations for necessarily increased union expenditures; banquet; invitations; the day's program; and physical equipment arrangements.

Mrs. Mildred Morgan Ends Three Day Lecture Series On Marriage And Dating

Doctor Speaks At Methodist Church Last Sunday Night

By BEN ROEBUCK
"I don't think that women in marriage want security and economic stability as much as they desire mutual emotional security," pointed out Dr. Mildred Morgan speaking to an assemblage of approximately 250 students Sunday night at the University Methodist church. Mrs. Morgan, presented by the YM-YWCA and Student Christian council, is a prominent authority on men and women's relations.

Mrs. Morgan quoted the view held by a woman student of the University of Iowa. "Successful modern marriage is the same as that expressed by the Iowa student... There must be emotional security on the part of each of the two; there must not be any letting down by either."

Dr. Arthur Compton Continues John McNair Lectures Tonight

Nobel Prize Winner Discusses Numerous Fields In Interview

By LOUIS HARRIS
Leisurely reclining in the lounge of the Carolina inn late yesterday afternoon, Dr. Arthur H. Compton, noted physicist and McNair lecturer, granted an exclusive interview to the DAILY TAR HEEL.

A tall, middle-aged, well-built man, with a pleasing smile and a congenial nature, the Nobel Prize winner gave the impression of being anything but the generally conceived eccentric scientist. Even after going rather deeply into the realms of X-rays and cosmic rays, Dr. Compton lightened the talk with a pleasant smile which rescued the interviewer from the vast expanses of space.

DISCUSSION POINTS

The range of the conversation only gave more evidence of the versatility of the Chicago professor. He very carefully explained the experiment and proof of the problem for which he was awarded the Nobel Prize; he discussed the fundamental points of his belief concerning the medium of religion and science; and then he contrasted the forms of student government and management in the University of Chicago and North Carolina.

Upon the mention of his winning the Nobel Prize in 1927, Dr. Compton

Professor Talks Last Night On Science, Religion

In the second of a series of three speeches constituting the twenty-first John Calvin McNair lectures, Dr. Arthur H. Compton, Nobel Prize winner in the field of physics, will talk on "Human Freedom and the Physical Law" at Hill Music hall this evening at 8:30.

Last night the University of Chicago professor spoke on "Science, Religion, and the Growth of Man," before a large crowd in the Music hall. President Frank P. Graham introduced the speaker, briefly reviewing the purpose of the McNair Lectures.

Dr. Compton stressed the point that science is making the world more unified, with a system which includes the general acceptance of a live Christianity.

SECTIONS OF SPEECH

The physicist's talk was divided into six sections: stable human attributes; science greatly accelerates change; science and moral growth; technology requires good will among men; and the evolution of men of good will. Besides describing the highly technical and scientific world in which we are, and will more and more in the future, the McNair Lecturer explained and issued a plea asking for an equilibrium in our moral and religious, and our scientific lives.

"The predominant trend of modern science is toward replacing the human interests present in literature, art and music with technological developments in which the human factor becomes less and less significant. The most fundamental bases of morality and religion have been ruthlessly shaken, with the implication that their
