By JIMMY DUMBELL
The first meeting of the newly-formed Student Legislature will be held tomorrow night for the purpose of electing ten new members from the campus at large, it was decided at a meeting of the Student Council last night.

The new legislature, which was conceived last year by prominent members of the student body and which will be put in effect this year for the first time, will be ready for action after the inauguration of the new members soon after the Thanksgiving holidays.

FOR CAMPUS OPINION

The body will act as an official opening through which any member of the student body can express an opinion or idea or bring forth a bill for the consideration of the campus.

It was decided in the draft last year that the legislature should be composed of 48 members including the four sets of class officers, ten representatives elected by and from the interdormitory council, five representatives elected by and from the Interfraternity council, one representative elected by and from the Law school, one from the Medical school, five representatives from the Woman's association and ten members from the campus at large.

In regards to powers it was de-

Professor Winslow Speaks To Group

"Starvation and stagnation face America without the WPA and PWA," declared Dr. Rex Winslow of the economics department at the meeting of the Phi assembly last night in the Phi Hall, New East, discussing the bill, Resolved: that the Works Progress administration is a better method of solving the problem of cyclical unemployment than the Public Works administration.

Discussing the problem impartially, Dr. Winslow included the amount of unemployment relieved, the relative cost, and the additional benefits derived. He declared the WPA indirect, sluggish and more graft-ridden, and

INFORMAL RECITAL

The informal recital yesterday gave about 150 persons a chance to admire the talent of this musician. It had been planned for him to play requests but as the spectators were too modest in the number of selections, he resorted to playing numbers of his preference.

bering approximately 350 students, professors and townspeople, attended Coolidge's main recital Sunday afternoon. This was the third in a series of fall recitals to be presented by the University department of music.

The dexterity of the pianist and the accurate, nimble fingering of the violin left the audience amazed throughout both performances. Quality and technique dominated in the prolonged tones sent forth from the violin, made by Coolidge's grandfather.

This is the second visit by Professor Coolidge to the University campus but is his first time to be able to remain several days.

COOLIDGE COMMENTS
After the recitals he said, "I am envious of your fine music building and would certainly like to move it to Brown university. I also enjoyed very much playing in Graham Memorial lounge which has wonderful acoustics." Professor Coolidge was eager to know how the students reacted to recitals of famous compositions. #### "Man's Relation To God" Will Be Subject Of Talk

By LOUIS HARRIS
"Man's Relation to God" will be the subject of Arthur H. Compton's address, the third and final speech in the John Calvin McNair Lecture series, to be given this evening at 8:30 in the Hill Music hall.

In a highly technical and illustrative talk last night, the noted physicist discussed "Human Freedom and Physical Law." Dr. Compton's speech was divided into three sections: the general aspect of the question, "Is man a free agent?"; "Science wins its way in Europe"; and "Uncertainty in Large Scale Events."

When the speaker stated that natural phenomena do not obey exact laws, he refuted the common belief that man's actions depend upon physical law. He then went on, in an analysis filled with allusions in physics, to prove his point.

PSYCHOLOGY

"Not only the physical and biological sciences, but to a large extent psychology as well, have made great strides in interpreting nature on a basis of mechanical laws involving cause and effect," Dr. Compton stated.

After proving that physical law does not control man's actions, he stated, "If a man's actions are not determined by physical law, it becomes a vital question for science to find whether his actions are determined, and, if so, by what factors."

He then went on to state that "both the materialist and the theist in philosophy have been hard pressed to find any rational basis for freedom." After McConnell.

Bill Williamson Turns Term Paper Into Successful Book

Book On Parkton's National Guard Just Off Press

By GLADYS BEST TRIPP
Bill Williamson, University sophomore of last year, found a profitable use for his freshman English term paper when he enlarged it into a book which has already proved a success.

The name of the book is the "History of Company L 120th Infantry," which is Parkton's national guard. Bill lives in Parkton. It has the oldest national guard in North Carolina and the second oldest in the United States. Parkton also holds the distinction of being next to the smallest town in America with a national guard.

POSTPONED SCHOOLING

When he discovered that he could take only 10 hours at the University last spring, Bill decided to postpone his schooling and put his book out. He had wanted to do this for over a year, and so when other University

WOMAN CABINET MEMBER APPEARS HERE DECEMBER 8

Labor Head Follows President Roosevelt By Only Three Days

Three days after the President of the United States speaks here December 5, Secretary of Labor Miss Frances Perkins will appear for an address in Memorial hall, also sponsored by the Carolina Political union.

Voit Gilmore, CPU chairman, announced yesterday that the woman cabinet member has agreed definitely to come to the University December 8, discuss the present situation of organized labor in the United States, and possibly follow the usual custom of joining in a question-answer open forum after her speech.

LABOR DEVELOPMENTS

Miss Perkins has indicated that developments now taking place in labor ranks would be sufficiently important in December for her to have a speech temporarily scheduled at 8 o'clock, which will interest her audience.

In one week, students of the University will have an opportunity to hear first-hand the opinions and plans of the nation's chief executive concerning his 1939 legislative program and probable economic cure for the South, while his immediate assistant in the labor department will discuss the present problems of the American worker.

Miss Perkins, in correspondence with the CPU during the past year, has expressed her desire to come to this campus but was not able to arrange a suitable time until recently. She was among prospective union

DI DISFAVORS THIRD TERM

Many Speeches Mark Session

A fine of 25 cents was placed on Senator John Bonner by Sam Hobbs, president of the Di SenSate last night for using obscene language on the floor of the Senate namely: "a helluva mess."

Senator Bonner in defending President Roosevelt and his policies during a discussion of the bill, Resolved: That the Dialectic Senate approve President Roosevelt for a third term as President of the United States, said, "Roosevelt should be given credit for leading us out of the depression where the GOP left us in a 'helluva mess' in 1932."

The bill was defeated by a vote of 16 to 12.

students rushed back to Chapel Hill after the spring holidays, Bill stayed at home and wrote.

Last week the book appeared for sale in every town in Robeson, Bladen, Cumberland, Hoke, and Scotland counties. Of the 900 copies to be sold at one dollar each, 400 were sold in advance.

WITH PICTURES

With over a hundred pages of printed matter tracing the Infantry's development from the Civil war to the dedication of the army at Raeford on May 11, the book also contains 50 different pictures. Securing a picture of every captain for the past 90 years would have taken most people probably a year. Bill succeeded in three months.

Instead of having a large book concern publish his book, Bill had it printed in Lumberton. He felt that by doing this he could sell his book much cheaper.

The results have been very favorable. Bill will make enough on his freshman term paper to finish school!
