

BULLETINS

Girls' Glee Club—Meets this afternoon at 5 o'clock. All Feminine Stray Greeks — Who have not submitted their names and sororities to Jane Hunter at 403 Spencer are urged to do so today or tomorrow, as the matter is very important.

Exams Are Nearer, And

Moss rolling down hill saves nine. Others confined yesterday to the infirmary were: G. R. Frisby, F. Godfrey, P. K. Barnwell, L. F. Bass, E. C. Richardson, S. Dalton, G. S. McCutcheon, F. E. Pearsall, Mrs. K. P. Lewis, E. Pardee, J. Swan, E. J. Stevens, R. Gilbert, C. B. Rae, C. R. Casey, C. E. Fink, R. A. Starris, R. Cashwell.

Services Held For Mrs. Shores

Funeral services for Mrs. William I. Shores, Jr., secretary of the Chapel Hill Merchants' association, were conducted by Dr. O. T. Binkley of Wake Forest, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Frank K. Poole, at the Baptist church yesterday afternoon.

Village stores remained closed from 2:30 to 3:30 during the services. Burial was made in the local cemetery.

Mrs. Shores, the former Miss Mary Frances Burch, attended the University of North Carolina and was connected with the University business office two years. She had been secretary of the local business organization for a year.

Stricken with a diabetic coma early Tuesday morning, Mrs. Shores was rushed to Duke hospital, where she died early Wednesday morning.

Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Burch, her husband, W. I. Shores, Jr., of Baltimore, Md., a daughter, Patricia; two sisters, Mrs. E. M. Jess of Haddon Heights, N. J., and Ruth Burch; two brothers, Myron and Clyde Burch; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Burch and Mrs. Nannie Blair of Chatham, Va.

Lights Go Out And Interrupt Studies Of Quadrangle Flashes

Much to the dismay and regret of the majority of the students, the occupants of many of the classroom buildings, and a few townspeople, the campus was plunged into darkness last night for a period of approximately one hour.

Beginning at approximately 7:45, all buildings of the upper and lower quadrangles were put in semi-darkness when all lights dimmed for about fifteen minutes and then went out.

For An Appropriate, Personal Gift for Students, Alumni or Parent Give A Copy of Smith Barrier's "ON CAROLINA'S GRIDIRON" Official History of Football at UNC 92 Pages - handsomely illustrated On Sale at Book X & Dorm Stores $1.50

RELEASE OF BOOK AROUSES INTEREST

Praised In Mexico And United States

The release in January by the University of North Carolina press of Josephina Niggli's "Mexican Folk Plays," edited by Frederick H. Koch, has aroused considerable interest in both Mexico and the United States.

The volume includes five one-act plays first produced at the Playmakers theater at the University. The plays are: "Tooth or Shave," a Mexican folk comedy; "Soldadera," a play of the Mexican revolution; "The Red Velvet Coat," a tragedy of laughter and a comedy of tears; "Asteca," a tragedy of pre-conquest Mexico; and "Sunday Costs Five Pesos," a comedy of Mexican village life.

The book is illustrated with half-tones made from photographs of the Playmakers' original productions at Chapel Hill. The appendix contains notes on Mexican costumes and Spanish pronunciation. There is an introduction to the book by Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers and a foreword by Rudolfo Usigli, head of the Theater of the University of Mexico.

All the plays were written in Professor Koch's playwriting course at the University and produced for the first time here. Two of them, "Sunday Costs Five Pesos" and "Soldadera" were taken on the Playmaker tour.

Girls' Glee Club Sings Saturday

The University Women's Glee club under the direction of Professor John E. Toms will present a program of Christmas music Saturday night at 8:30 in Hill Music hall.

Eight Christmas folk songs will be included on the program, among them "Lo, How a Rose e'er Blooming," a sixteenth century melody harmonized by Praetorius; "The Twelve Days of Christmas"; the French folk song, "Bring a Torch Jeanette Isabella"; a North Carolina folk song, "Down in Yon Forest"; and the Gloucestershire "Wassail Song."

The Women's Glee club, composed of some 35 members, will also sing Sunday night at Dr. Frederick A. Koch's reading of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

Playmakers And Musicians To Begin Practice For Opera

Preliminary try-outs for the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, "The Sorcerer," the first production of the winter quarter, will be held from 3:30 to 6 o'clock in the choral room of Hill Music hall tomorrow afternoon.

The opera will be produced by the Playmakers in collaboration with the music department. All students interested in leading and minor roles and in parts of the chorus are urged to be at the try-outs. There will be no rehearsals before the holidays; the try-outs are being held now so that the singers and the principal characters may have an opportunity to learn their parts over the holidays. Both men and women students are invited to try-out.

The opera is to be directed by Harry Davis of the Playmakers' staff and John E. Toms of the music department.

Two Gilbert and Sullivan operas, "Princess Ida" and "Pirates of Penzance" have been presented on the campus and both were very popular.

Send the DAILY TAR HEEL home.

Come to "ALGIERS" and meet PIERROT weak and wilful, who wanted no advice and made a bad mistake...

CHARLES BOYER in the Walter Wanger production with Sigrid Gurie and Hedy Lamarr

DECEMBER 14th - 15th Carolina Theatre

DRESSMAKER'S TOOL

Crossword puzzle grid with horizontal and vertical clues. Includes a small illustration of a sewing machine.

Large crossword puzzle grid with numbers 1 through 55.

Fencers Praised For Exhibition

(Continued from page three) tion, the fireworks began. It was quite a variation from the baby show which had preceded the fencers awhile ago, and it made the folks at Raleigh sit up and take notice. When the team took the stage, the auditorium was fairly full but partially indifferent.

The bouts were run off quickly and with plenty of showmanship. The audience, police and all, took it in whole-heartedly. HOT STUFF!

The audience was made up of live-wire State and other college students. Yodeling, heigh-ho silver, hit 'em and other pep-cracks continually were heard throughout the meet. So, to the sound of clashing steel and the howling of Raleigh's broncos, the fencers not only put their performance across, but the whole show in the bargain.

Sidelights of the evening: After the performance, epeeman John Finch was paged—by two gals backstage. Was his face red!... The entire team thoroughly enjoyed giving the benefit performance and had a swell time, even though there was no time for dancing—and dates... Before leaving Raleigh, all went in for a coke—and a smoke, topping off the evening by breaking training!

Foods Course To Be Given Next Quarter

The department of biological chemistry in the school of medicine offers in the winter quarter an elementary lecture course dealing with the practical principles of food selection and food values. While not indispensable, elementary chemistry is a desirable prerequisite.

The course gives three quarter hours credit, and meets Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 12 o'clock in the lecture room in Caldwell hall. It will be taught by Professor J. C. Andrews.

The course is recommended to all pre-science, education, and sociology students who may be interested in the nutritional and economic side of food, and is especially recommended to those who may be planning to teach in the public schools.

Board To Question Students On Change

(Continued from first page) dent carefully consider the arguments for and against this plan, and express his feelings through the questionnaire which will be distributed this week-end.

Dog Attends Classes Getting Education

(Continued from first page) of the room, and remains quiet until time for the bell.

TIME-KEEPER Rusty is a good time-keeper. About Howell's 12 o'clock class to end, Rusty gets up, goes over to the door, stretches himself and yawns loudly. Five minutes before time for Dr. That means no more class that day, for Rusty insists loudly that everyone leave immediately.

Rusty's mother, a full blooded wire-haired terrier, was owned by Wilbur Daniels Steele when he lived in Chapel Hill. When he left he gave the little puppies to Paul Green, Dr. H. D. Meyer of the sociology department, and Dr. Russell R. Potter, now a member of the faculty at Columbia university. When Dr. Potter left in the spring of 1930, he gave his dog to Dr. S. W. Fenley, who named it "Rusty" for Dr. Potter. Then Dr. Fenley two years later moved to Texas, and gave Rusty to his next door neighbor, Dr. Howell, who was already good friends with the dog.

TRICKS When Rusty is commanded by Dr. Howell to "speak easy," he will go up close to the professor's ear and whisper very low. When told to pray, he lies down on his back and lifts his two front paws prayerlike in front of him.

Should Dr. Howell mention casually to another person of going for a walk, Rusty immediately gets up and goes to the door to wait—for walks are his favorite sport. Any word about "bones out there," and Rusty is already going toward the kitchen. His understanding vocabulary contains about 20 words.

ETIQUETTE Rusty is exceptionally well-mannered. During meals he lies outside the dining room door until dinner is finished. He is very fond of receptions and parties, for he especially likes candy and cakes. But he never oversteps that doorsill leading into the dining room. Rusty is certain that soon some kind soul will take notice of him and bring him something tasty to eat.

But Rusty is a snooty dog where others of his kind are concerned. He will have nothing to do with colored dogs. Perhaps it is because he is so proud of his own snowy white hair.

Dr. Howell thinks that Rusty's long life is due to the fact that he stands on the curb until the last car in sight has passed before he ventures across. When he was a puppy a car ran over his leg, and since then he is very careful.

Rusty has not received his official degree yet; but he has attended a great number of examinations for M.A. and Ph.D. degrees. When asked if he thought he would get one eventually, he nodded his head and barked.

Patronize Our Advertisers.

Book Ex Gives Finance Report

(Continued from first page) its own receipts for the purchase of merchandise for resale and direct operating expenses is accomplished by warrant on the state treasurer. Its excess cash receipts are transferred to the University and expended for general University purposes in the same manner that the receipts from student fees are expended.

The Administration also pointed out that the Book Ex has many difficulties with which to contend. No profit is made on textbooks because of the ten per cent rebate and the dead stock carried on its shelves. The enterprise is limited to certain kinds of merchandise by legislative agreement. It makes no profit on sales to the University. And "most important," it can not take a chance but must act on assured knowledge because it cannot run into even a temporary deficit.

COMPETITION

In addition to these handicaps, the Book Ex, according to the statement, "has to compete with merchants who are not so restricted and who have no responsibility for the complete supplying of all needs of the student body."

The text concluded with the culminating statement, "The Book Exchange is a service agency and it is intended that it shall always be so operated. The profit motive exists in the management of the Book Exchange, yet it is not the predominant factor. Good management is demonstrated in service rendered to its customers and in its ability to efficiently manage within the profit and general restrictions set up by the general administration. Eliminate the profit motive and the biggest incentive for good management is also eliminated."

Misses Austin, Parsons Go To Fencing Meet

(Continued from first page) ranks third in the ladder tournament. Both coeds, who are members of the Woman's Athletic council, have had several years of fencing experience. Miss Austin won the intramural fencing contests last year and received a letter in the sport. Miss Parsons reached the semi-finals.

Allan Bloom, captain of the varsity fencing team and coed coach, seemed uncertain last night about Carolina's chances of victory. "Since it is so early in the season," he said, "neither Miss Austin nor Miss Parsons is in top form. Both will be matched against the best fencers from several colleges. We are not looking forward to a victory, but expect both girls to get some valuable experience. We are very pleased that the coeds of the University were invited to enter this tournament."

This is the only intercollegiate fencing tourney in which Carolina coeds will participate this year. However, the women's fencing team will meet Hofstra college on March 17 in a regularly scheduled spring match.

516 Enroll For Winter Quarter

(Continued from first page) which the total number of students per class is limited, one man has to check off the students in a separate list. There are still 10 days remaining to register, during which every student will be interviewed.

Dean Pearson of the graduate school announced that all students in his school should prepare for registration beginning Monday, December 12, and continuing through Saturday, December 17.

On The Air

By WALTER KLEEMAN

By ELBERT HUTTON, Guest Columnist 6:45—Our team is red hot: Sophie Tucker, WBT.

8:00—What's My Name?, WLW; First Nighter, WCAU; Lucille Manners, WPTF; we think these programs are O. K.

8:30—Allen burns Burns, Ray Noble, KBT; Heigh-Hooooo, Silliver, Awaaaaay, WGN.

9:00—Daily Rime:

Weeks of Hollywood Hotels

Replaced by Mr. Orson Welles

WBT; Crimson Wizard: It may not be drama but it sure is meller, WGN.

10:00—Grove Park School Program, WWNC.

10:30—Something is to be announced, WPTF; WGN, somebody needs a job.

10:45—The American delegate to the 8th international conference of American states will speak from Lima, Peru, short wave, 9.65 and 6.05. We have tried to give you variety.

Old West Students Hit By Xmas Spirit

(Continued from first page) els and Chesterfields—perch around the tree, and apple cores swing from on high. A shoe horn, for getting out of tight places, is there, too. Beside it dangles a corn cob pipe, and farther up you will see a box of aspirin. Old light bulbs complete this collegiate tree, adding a tragic touch to Old West's Christmas.

All these unique decorations seem to represent what will be left after exams — empty cartons of cigarettes smoked over psychology; the cores of apples that were gulped along with English; an empty pipe chewed on with chemistry in hand; seven-ups downed with mathematics; and light bulbs burned out over the opened book.

The crowning achievement of the display is a stocking, out of which pokes a quiz book—with a red "F" on it. Whether this represents the hope or the expectation of Old West residents it is hard to say. Merry Christmas, Old West!

The world's first cast iron road has been laid in London.

KEM CARDS

The playing cards that last for years.

An ideal gift for Christmas.

KEM

Unsurpassed as a gift to last.

Also paper cards with Well and Old East design.

LEDBETTER-PICKARD

CHRISTMAS DELIVERY? YES!!

FOR THE YULETIDE AT HOME

Wear A Smartly Tailored Suit and Top-coat, Chosen From Our Large Variety Of Fabrics.... The folks at home will be proud of you and your judgment.... They will actually rave when you tell them how little you paid.... From $22.75—

At

JACK LIPMAN'S

A Complete Selection Of Gifts For Dad, Brother or "Roomy"