

Loop Officials Make Slight Change In Rule 13; Barrier To Duke Rose Bowl Trip Removed

Proposed Amendment To Abolish Spring Practice Defeated

RICHMOND, Dec. 10—Delegates to the annual Southern conference meeting went home today after making a slight change in rule 13, anti-subsidization clause, and overwhelmingly voting down a proposal to abolish spring football practice.

The altering of rule 13, advocated by Virginia Tech and Clemson, was limited to the mere wording of the law. The rule formerly read, "scholarships should be open to athletes and non-athletes on equal basis for character, scholarship, financial need, specific task, and general merit." Gobbler and Tiger officials wanted to strike "non-athletes" out of the clause. But the only change made was to substitute "should be awarded," for "should be open."

The Virginia Tech amendment to abolish spring and other off-season football practice was defeated.

The conference removed the final barriers to Duke's Rose Bowl trip by repealing the conference law against post-season games. Indication that this might be done was shown in an informal poll by Duke two weeks ago when the Blue Devils first got the Rose Bowl bid.

Officers were re-elected and various tournament sites were named. The 1939 basketball tournament will again be held in Raleigh, the boxing moved from College Park to Columbia, while State's request for the swimming was shelved for the time being. Doc Newton of State was elected president of the coaches association, and Gene McEver of Davidson was named secretary-treasurer.

Season's Greetings

NON-PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL HOLDS STUDENT FAVOR

Popularity Of Collegiate Game Shown By Survey

With another football season ended in all except the "bowl" games, the everlasting question whether college football is giving away to the professional game enters into the annual stock-taking. Three-fourths of American college students believe it is not, and more emphatically, they do not want to see their biggest sport lose in popularity.

These are the opinions derived from the second nation-wide poll of the Student Opinion Surveys of America, organized for the sampling of opinions of the entire college and university enrollment of the United States along scientific lines. The DAILY TAR HEEL is one of the cooperating campus publications in every section of the country.

INTERVIEWS

This month interviewing began everywhere, including a proportional cross-section of Carolina students. Ray Lowery acted as campus interviewer for the University.

Yearly the pro and con of commercialized football is discussed from all sides. President Hutchins of Chi-

Because Of Student Aid—

Santa Claus Will Make Visit To Everyone In Chapel Hill

Happy Holiday Assured To Poor And Needy Through Work Of Welfare Groups

By BILL RHODES WEAVER

There will be no disappointed children with saddened, lean faces, nor pitiful parents, nor empty stockings at the homes of community unfortunates this Christmas. Chapel Hill will be happy.

This year a happy holiday is assured by the large number of contributions received by village welfare groups from students and townspeople.

Annually the local people are called upon to contribute to the poor and needy, and the response is good, but this year through the generosity of campus groups, the amount of clothing, fruit, candy, toys and money has been swelled to an unprecedented mark.

FINE SPIRIT

The Red Cross roll call met with fine spirit on the campus and in the village through the excellent cooperation of students and townspeople. Much credit is due those who have worked diligently at the YMCA, fraternities, dormitory stores, women's dormitories, the post office, the bank, Eubanks' drug store, the graded and high schools, and in Carrboro.

As a result of the campaigns, food, clothing, and medical supplies will be furnished the underprivileged. The Red Cross roll call, the Christmas Seal sale, the needlework guild, the Phi Gamma Delta Bundle day, the Negro football game, and the efforts of countless organizations and individuals have made the drive for Christmas cheer most successful.

Numerous shoppers yesterday were happy over the assurance of a merry Christmas for the village poor as they talked at drug stores and dime stores. Chapel Hillians seemed very grateful to the student groups which contributed so generously.

CHRISTMAS CHEER

During the holidays Christmas cheer will permeate the campus and town, though students will be away. Numerous carolling groups annually tour the streets early Christmas Eve and Christmas morning.

"Adesti Fidelis," "Silent Night," "Joy to the World" and other Yuletide hymns are sung. Candlelight services are held and Santa Claus pays premature visits to wide-eyed children.

Sunday, December 18, a carol service and community sing will be held at Memorial hall at 5 o'clock. The gathering will be based on the congregation of Chapel Hill graded and high school children choirs, under the direction of Mrs. Roben Maaske.

Saturday, December 17, village youngsters will contribute toys at the annual toy matinee of the Carolina theatre at 10:30. The affair will be sponsored by the Rotary club and the Carolina theater.

ENROLLMENT FOR WINTER QUARTER HITS 1,500 MARK

Registration Must Be Completed By 5 O'Clock Tomorrow

With an overflow of students on hand to enroll before examinations begin, the totals for registration for the winter quarter soared past the 1500 mark yesterday noon. 1564 undergraduates, almost half of the student body, checked out at Memorial hall, after a morning in which another record was broken.

On Friday a new mark for one complete day's registration was set, while yesterday saw 300 students enroll, shattering the previous record for half a day by almost 100.

Despite the large increase in daily enrollment, the number of officials handling the work has remained the same.

Registration will continue tomorrow from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, closing temporarily between 1 and 2 p. m. Every student in doubt about any phase of enrollment is asked to inquire in the Central Records office.

Officials request that the students who have not as yet registered notice the changes in the procedure. The three steps are:

1. All students must come to the Central Records office, at 207 South building, before starting any registration to secure permits to register. No

CREEDY CALLS FOR ASPIRING AUTHORS

Editor Asks For Stories, Poetry

"Despite the machinations of the Publications Union board, there will be a regular issue of The Carolina Magazine in January. Any merger or trial issue will not be in effect until February," Editor John Creedy said yesterday.

"Over Christmas is a good time to get to work on that short story you have always wanted to write. Poetry too—there's not been much good poetry submitted lately. Any of you who are interested in writing articles to order are asked to see the editor about a particularly interesting project for the January issue," he said.

Program To Open At 8 O'Clock; Women's Glee Club To Sing

When Dean of Administration Robert B. House introduces Dr. Frederick H. Koch in his 163rd reading of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" tonight, the Dean will present what he has called the "University Christmas Card" to the campus.

Arrangements for this annual reading of the "Carol" in Memorial hall are under the direction of Dean Francis Bradshaw. Dr. Koch's reading of the story of Scrooge and Marley serves as a reminder that the Christmas season is here.

NEW SETTING

Professor Elmer Hall, assisted by the University Building department and Hall's students in staging methods, has designed a new stage setting in the spirit of the holiday season.

Promptly at 8 o'clock Robert Brawley will begin a half hour of specially selected music on the Memorial hall organ.

At 8:30 Dr. Koch will be introduced by Dean House and will begin the first stage of the most beloved Christmas story in any language. Between the staves the University Women's Glee club under the direction of Professor John Toms of the department of music will sing old English Christmas carols.

Students who recall former readings of the "Carol" will remember the spell of the great story and the audience dispersed with Tiny Tim's toast, "God bless us everyone," still ringing in their hearts.

No Coed Serenade

Monday exams, the ogres, will deprive the campus of the coed Christmas serenade, according to an announcement by Olive Cruikshank, president of the woman's Pan-Hellenic council, yesterday. For several years, the Pan-Hellenic council has sponsored a caroling service on the Sunday night before exams and the Christmas holidays, but heretofore exams have started on Tuesday and there has not been the same need to study.

Xmas Service Today

At the Methodist church, Rev. J. M. Culbreth will conduct a Christmas service entitled, "The Music of the Gospel," at 11 o'clock this morning. Student forum will meet at 7 o'clock.

Student Council's Statement

In the light of some present misunderstanding of a recent Student Council statement of policy concerning freedom of expression, we issue the following statement in regard to freedom of expression on this campus.

The first criticism levelled against the Council ruling is that in holding unnecessarily discourteous acts to be a violation of the Campus Code the Student Council has adopted an "illiberal policy because of its complete flexibility." (TAR HEEL editorial of December 8, 1938). The fundamental basis of Carolina campus discipline, except for lying, cheating, and stealing, which are covered by the honor system, has been the Campus Code, which says that every Carolina student must act as a gentleman, and this is the utmost of flexibility. (As a matter of fact, this is so great a degree of flexibility that, if anything, pointing out that an unnecessary discourtesy is one violation of the Campus Code makes the Campus Code, in reality, more specific than it has ever been before). Assuming that campus government until now has been liberal, to criticize the Council for having too flexible power is to criticize the liberal discretion of the campus governing body—a discretion which has been a fundamental basis of campus discipline since the beginning of the century.

The second criticism levelled against the Council's statement of policy is that it has not specifically enumerated what "forms of freedom of expression will be prohibited in the future and what forms will not." (TAR HEEL editorial December 8, 1938). Specification of these forms cannot be made. It is impossible to anticipate what particular fact set-ups may arise in the future, and the most that can be done is to adhere to the general principles of student government and apply these principles to particular fact situations as they arise.

These principles, as applied to unnecessary discourtesies boil down to this: An unnecessary discourtesy is a violation of the Campus Code in that it is ungentlemanly. As such it will be dealt with just as any other violation of the Campus Code. Some may regret that this cannot be made more definite and specific, but it should be remembered that for years no student on the campus has known specifically what particular acts he could do and could not do. The only limitation has been that he act as a gentleman, and this same principle continues to govern. A student's best assurance of his freedom to think and to say what he likes according to his own common sense judgment and discretion is the knowledge that the Student Council will not be unreasonable in its interpretation of the Campus Code.

STUDENT COUNCIL.
