PU BOARD DECIDES AGAINST PROPOSED MAG-BUC MERGER

Results Of Recent Campus-Wide Poll Influence Decision

Final decision was reached yesterday concerning the proposed incorporation of the Carolina Buccaneer and the Carolina Magazine when the Publications Union board, using as a basis for its judgment results of a campus poll on the merger decided to allow continuation of both publications in their present forms.

The PU board, President Tim Elliot said, came to the decision after it had inspected the 808 filled-in questionnaires which were returned. The most important question included in the survey was: "Would you be in favor of combining the best features of the Buccaneer and the Magazine into a publication larger in size than either of the present ones?"

PROPOSED MERGER

The proposed merger would have provided for a magazine to follow the style of more sophisticated literary humor publications of other colleges and would have been in the vein of the New Yorker and Esquire. The new magazine was expected to contain some 40 or 50 pages each month.

The board decided not to sanction a trial edition of a merged magazine because of the student survey results and recommendations of the business managers of the publications involved. It would be improbable that sufficient amount of local and national advertising could be obtained to warrant

PAINTING EXHIBIT TO OPEN SUNDAY

Smith Will Give Brief Talk At 4

An exhibition of landscapes in oil by W. Lester Stevens of Springfield, Mass., and abstractions in oil by Josef Albers of Black Mountain college, Black Mountain, N. C., will open Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Person Hall Art gallery.

Stevens, who has taught at the Boston University Art school and at Princeton university, is a member of the Guild of Boston Artists, the North Shore Art association, the Springfield Guild of Artists, the New York Water Color club, the Philadelphia Water Color club, and the Connecticut academy and is an associate of the National Academy of Design. He has exhibited at many of the leading museums and galleries of the country and has won numerous prizes on his paintings.

Albers, who has been connected with the famous Bauhaus, art school in Germany, both as a student and teacher, is at present a professor of art at Black Mountain college, where his work is attracting nationwide interest. Compared with the landscapes of Stevens, the work of this North Carolina artist would be considered ultra-modern to the last detail. He is a leader in the field of non-objective painting and a master at this art, having received much favorable criticism on his work.

The exhibition will remain on view through January 31. The gallery is open from 10 to 1 and 2 to 5 o'clock on week days and from 2 till 5 o'clock on Sundays.

Announce Date For Midwinters

Bill Hendrix, president; Louis Jordan, vice-president; and Billy Worth, secretary-treasurer, of the German club who with the other members of the executive committee last night announced February 10 and 11, the week-end of the Carolina-Duke basketball game, as the date for the mid-winter dances.

Graham, Hoey Give Statements Concerning Negro Application

WOMAN'S ATHLETIC COUNCIL MAKES QUARTER PLANS

Fencing Will Be Outstanding Sport On Coed Schedule

Plans for woman's athletics for the winter quarter were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the Woman's Athletic council in Graham memorial.

The outstanding sport for women this quarter will be fencing. The squad, coached by Allan Bloom, captain of the varsity fencers, meets with the varsity four nights a week for a workout in the Tin Can. Managed by Miss Ruth Parsons and captained by Miss Adele Austin, the coeds are preparing for a series of meets here in

University Man Honored Abroad

William Peery, working toward his Ph. D. in the University Department of English, was recently honored with publication of his article, "The Pasadena Playbox," in the current issue of "Drama," the British Drama league's official "Monthly Record of the Theater in Town and Country, at Home and Abroad."

Peery, who uses his vacations for writing articles on drama and other literary genres, is a Rockefeller fellow in dramatic literature.

The new article is an account of the private theater which Gilmor Brown, founder and director of the Pasadena Playhouse, built in his backyard so that he might offer lovers of the drama the type play seldom seen on the commercial stage.

Peery gained material for "The Pasadena Playbox" during his month's stay last year in Pasadena, where he assisted in the premiere production of his three-act comedy of show people, "Carnival," which he wrote in Paul Green's Advanced Writers' Workshop.

CPU Committee Meets Applicants

Applicants for membership to the Carolina Political union were interviewed yesterday by a small union committee composed of Voit Gilmore, Elizabeth Spencer, Harry Gatton, Townsend Moore and Professor E. J. Woodhouse.

The union will announce its selection of four new members, of which two are to be coeds, in the DAILY TAR HEEL Tuesday morning.

Over 60 students have applied for membership, to the group since the announcement of vacancies was made last quarter. Due to complications caused by President Franklin Roosevelt's union-sponsored speech here immediately followed by examinations, the group decided to postpone action on membership until this week.

University Head Says Governor's Group Considering Matter

"The whole question is now under consideration by the commission appointed by the governor and will be worked out as a matter of state policy," Dr. Frank Graham stated last night answering a query on his position regarding the application for entrance to the University by a New York Negro woman.

President Graham, even before the Missouri decision, held the position that equal provision in professional and graduate work should be made by the state at the North Carolina college for Negroes in Durham and the A. and T. college in Greensboro. He has also several times said that the University of North Carolina and Duke university should cooperate with the North Carolina college for Negroes in making adequate provision for graduate and professional courses at the North Carolina college for Negroes.

GOVERNOR'S STATEMENT

Governor Clyde R. Hoey yesterday declared:

"North Carolina does not believe in social equality between the races and will not tolerate mixed schools for the races, but we do believe in equality of opportunity . . . and the white race cannot afford to do less than simple justice to the Negro."

More specifically the governor recommended establishment of courses in law, medicine and pharmacy at the Negro college at Durham and A. and T. college in Greensboro.

BUDGET MESSAGE

Extent and importance of these additions can best be determined from the budget message to be sent to the legislature within a few days.

Although this is the only application since the recent court decision, in former years several Negroes have

After South American Travels—

University Alumnus Of 1937 Gets Article In New Republic

George C. Stoney Tells Of Argentina In National Magazine

A man who nearly failed to get his degree from the University because of poor spelling has an article in the January 4, 1939, "New Republic." The article is about the wooing of Argentina by fascism; the man, George C. Stoney.

Stoney graduated in 1937 without his degree. Leaving Carolina, he wandered through the South and freelanced for the Raleigh News and Observer. Finally he arrived in New Orleans, took the boat to South America, stayed there two months (hence his article in the "New Republic"), and then returned to the United States and got work in the Henry Street Settlement in New York. Not long after he was writing much of the survey work over which he had slaved at first. He wrote not only for the Sur-

Coker Pays Tribute To Research Achievements Of Friend And Faculty Associate, H. V. Wilson

Funeral Services To Be Held This Afternoon At 3

Funeral services for Dr. Wilson will be held from his home this afternoon at 3 o'clock. He will be buried in Chapel Hill cemetery.

"Someone has said, 'Most of the great discoveries are made by accident. The accidents occur, however, only to the prepared mind.' Such a mind," Dr. R. E. Coker recalled, "had Dr. Henry Van Peters Wilson." Dr. Coker, head of the Zoology department, a position held for 45 years by Dr. Wilson, spoke to the introductory zoology class yesterday on the research and achievements of his associate, who died Wednesday of a blood infection.

When Dr. Wilson came to the University as head of the Biology department in 1891, he was faced with an enormous teaching load. Besides general biology, comparative anatomy, freshman physiology and numerous other courses, he taught all of the botany that was offered at that time. Prof. Lewis, head of the Botany department at the University of Virginia, studied under him.

WORKED IN BEAUFORT

Many and large classes restricted his time for research to Saturday afternoons, Sunday mornings, holidays and the summer vacation, which he spent in Beaufort. There, with the cooperation of Prof. Joseph A. Holmes, he received the permission of the United States Fish commission and founded the U. S. Fisheries laboratory. Prof. Holmes taught geology and biology at the University in the early years following its re-opening after the war between the states. Later he became state geologist and a lecturer here, after which he left the state to organize and become the first director of the United States Bureau of Mines. Holmes made valuable contacts to establish the laboratory permanently by securing appropriations for building and equipment; Wilson provided the scientific knowledge. Neither could have done the work alone, but together they made the Fisheries laboratory a center for biological research for scientists from all parts of the country.

SPONGE STUDY

In the early 1900's, Dr. Wilson began the study of sponges and made the discovery that is probably his greatest contribution to research and most historical deed. He had kept a sponge colony, but had neglected it and considered it dead until he noticed in the decayed part tiny scattered masses of living sponge. With unusual accuracy and clear thinking, he crushed the sponges and squeezed

COEDS WILL VOTE ON DANCE ISSUE AT MONDAY MEET

Malone Appoints Nominating Group For 1939 Officers

Monday afternoon at a meeting of the Woman's association, the women students will vote to decide the issue of whether the association will sponsor three coed dances a year, one each quarter, or whether the women students and the association will concentrate their attention on a single large dance to be given during the spring.

Elizabeth Malone, president of the woman's association, announced after a meeting of the Woman's council yesterday afternoon, that the question has been debated in the council for almost a year and the

3097 Students Have Registered

With the total of 3097 students registered for the winter quarter, registration headquarters have been transferred to the Central Records office in 208 South building. Although enrollment will continue for the remainder of the week, every student without a legitimate excuse for late registration has been fined five dollars.

Since early in December, students have been filling into the upper lobby of Memorial hall to enroll for the winter quarter. As is usual for the second term, the record number of 3500 registered last fall dropped slightly. Final figures will be published early next week.

Those students with names beginning with A through D have already paid their registration fees in the cashier's office. The schedule for the remainder of the period is: January 5, E through G; January 6, H through I; Jan. 7, J through K (office closes at 12:00 noon); Jan. 9, L through M; Jan. 10, N through P; Jan. 11, Q through R; Jan. 12, S through U; and Jan. 13, V through Z. Failure to pay or make the proper arrangements for payment during this period will result in a five dollar fee for delay.

Howell Becomes House President

At a meeting held Wednesday night in Spencer hall, Miss Lillian Howell, senior from Enfield, was elected house president to succeed Miss Rosalie Haynes, who graduated at the close of the fall quarter.

Miss Howell, known about the campus as the girl who locks up the "Shack" each night after she has "shooed" the boys away, attended Meredith college during her freshman and sophomore years, transferring to the University in the fall of 1937. She is an accounting major.

Raymond Dudley Is Elected Secretary For Rest Of Year

By LOUIS HARRIS

Taking the solemn oath of brotherhood, ten men and one woman were last night initiated into the University chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. The eleven new members are: William Jeffrey Cole, from Elkhart, Indiana; Ernest Craig of El Paso, Texas; Robert Albertson Dalton of Raleigh; Voit Gilmore of Winston-Salem; Alexander H. Graham of Hillsboro; James William Little of Tryon; Thomas Richard Meder of Hollis, New York; Nancy Constantine Nesbit of Charleston, South Carolina; Melvin Sokolsky; Harry Vaine Thompson of Rich Square; and Samuel Wright of Lenoir. All are seniors except Dalton, who is in the law school, and Miss Nesbit, who is in graduate school.

In a business meeting before the initiation Raymond Dudley was elected secretary for the remainder of the year. The other officers are: Charles Vilbrandt, president; and Charles Starnes, vice-president. Also appointed at the meeting was the committee which will handle selection under the new system of election in the honorary society to be inaugurated next spring. The members are: Dean F. F. Bradshaw, Dean R. B. House, Dean A. W. Hobbs, Dean C. P. Spruill, and Professor E. L. Mackie.

SYSTEM

The system which was used in selecting the present group of Phi Beta Kappa members was selected by the chapter, choices being made on the basis of attainment in "scholarly pursuits and high character." At the initiation itself, the history and ideals of the society are presented. After taking the oath, the students are given

IRC SEEKS DIXIE CHAIN FOR SERIES

Club Desires 1940 Regional Conference

For the past month the International Relations club has been working on the possibility of extending its University of North Carolina Round Table broadcast to a southern network, and of bringing the IRC regional conference to Chapel Hill in 1940.

Henry Nigrelli, president of the club, spent a week in New York with the Carnegie people and with the NBC studios in New York. He was told by Dunham of NBC that mechanical difficulties prevented a southern hook-up as there is no way to connect the southern stations except by running a wire from New York down every week, the cost of which would be prohibitive at present. But because of his deep interest about the inclusion of students on the Round Table, which is done nowhere else continually, Dunham said that NBC will probably come down to Chapel Hill in April and as a sort of experiment will put the UNC Round Table on a nationwide hook-up. The possibilities of a continuous extended hook-up may come in the future.

MAY BE HERE

The IRC regional conference which the Carnegie Foundation hold every year will probably be held in Chapel Hill in 1940. Miss Jones of the Carnegie people suggested that Carolina combine its international relations conference with the annual Carnegie conference for 1940. This means that over 300 student delegates would meet here in 1940 to participate in outstanding discussions of international problems. Carnegie spends about three thousand dollars for these conferences. Delegates from all over the south annually attend them.

New Women's Dorm To Give Annual Ball

The New Women's dormitory is planning its annual variety ball for Friday night, January 13. Prizes for the most original costumes will be awarded, and a floor show is being planned for intermission.

Miss Mary Ames is chairman of the social committee. Serving as a committee with her are Misses Elizabeth Spencer, Elizabeth Huntley, and Elizabeth Gammon.
