(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 11.—With support promised from both the Raleigh News and Observer and the Raleigh Times, John Rankin, University of North Carolina senior who is heading the student lobby in protest of the proposed $50 raise in tuition fees at the University, arrived here this afternoon with a petition already signed by more than 1600 students protesting the measure.

As required by the law on lobbying, Rankin registered with the secretary of state in the name of the petition signers and of the Phi assembly from which the movement began last night.

GRAHAM IN CHARGE

The hearing on the University issue is scheduled to come before the Appropriations committee on Tuesday, January 24. President of the Greater University Frank P. Graham will be in charge of evidence and witnesses. It is expected that students will be given a special part in the hearing if the consent of W. B. Rodman and John Caffey is obtained. The two men are chairmen of the Senate and House Appropriation committees respectively.

Rankin contacted and interviewed Zeb V. Turlington, chairman of the Appropriations committee in 1927 and was given technical advice on the student movement. Rankin also reported that he had appointments with both Carl Goerch, editor of the State, and Victor Bryant, chairman of the Committee on higher education. This committee was appointed by Speaker Ward with the express purpose of

SYMPHONY TO BE PRESENTED HERE

University Alumnus Leads Organization

The University of Michigan little symphony, directed by Carolina graduate Thor Johnson, leading young American conductor, will be presented here in concert at Hill hall on February 9 under the sponsorship of Graham memorial.

Johnson, who took a Bachelor of Arts in music degree here in 1934, has been very active in music since his early youth. He organized his first orchestra in Winston-Salem when he was 14, and was later director of a chamber orchestra composed of students here. It was at the University that Johnson organized his first little symphony. While a student here he was connected with the North Carolina symphony as associate conductor.

ORCHESTRA PRAISED

The Michigan little symphony was organized in the fall of 1934 by 15 assistants in instrumental instruction. This group has won praise for its programs during its four seasons of existence. During this time it has played some 262 concerts in 18 states and this year is making extensive tours through the South and Middle West.

Aside from his association with the little symphony group, Johnson founded and became musical director of the annual August Mozart festival in Asheville in 1937. During the scholastic year 1936-37 he spent a year studying in Europe, made possible by his winning a Frank Huntington Beebe fellowship.

SPEARMAN WILL CONDUCT TOWN MEETING FORUM

Group To Convene In Graham Memorial For Weekly Program

In conjunction with the town meeting of the air, a radio program, held on Thursday evenings which deals with varied view-points on national issues, the Student union will tonight inaugurate the first of a series of group discussions in the main lounge. Walter Spearman, of the University journalism department, will lead the forum discussion on the subject of "Do We Have Free Press?"

This will be the first of a series of weekly meetings, which are sponsored jointly by the Student union and the YMCA. Each Thursday evening at 9:30, the group will first listen to the program and then discuss the issue of the day. One member of the faculty will lead the forum each Thursday.

Tonight Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the Interior, who just recently blasted Nazi Germany, will be the guest speaker along with Frank Gannett of the Associated Press.

Miss Nancy Nesbit is chairman of the local group. Coffee will be served.

Yackety-Yack Asks For Campus Candid

Although a box has been placed in the YMCA office for contributions of snapshot by students for the Yackety-Yack and although 15 cents is being paid for each print submitted, students have been lax in contributing, the Yackety-Yack staff reported yesterday.

"More important than anything else to the success of the yearbook are the informal snapshots and candid photographs of campus life and activities. In trying to remedy the lack of such pictures in former yearbooks the present Yackety-Yack staff is endeavoring to enlist students' aid for contributions of pictures.

"Since placing a box in the YMCA has not been successful, the Yackety-Yack is making a final appeal that students bring pictures to the Yackety-Yack office in Graham memorial as soon as possible. It is necessary that students do this immediately because the yearbook is in process of being printed at the present time."

Each fraternity should turn in 10 snapshots before the end of the week for its Yackety-Yack page.

LAWYERS FAVOR EXCLUSION OF NEGRO GRADUATES

Officials Brand Earlier Results Unrepresentative

By a count of 65 to 18, University law students voted against the admission of Negroes to the University graduate school, officials of the law school association announced yesterday.

In announcing the tabulations, the association, official organ of the law school student body, said that the voting represented the opinion of approximately 70 per cent of the enrollment. The total law school registration is 119.

EARLIER POLL

At the same time an unofficial poll held Monday, when it was reported that a number of law students favored co-racial education, was branded as unrepresentative by association heads.

The report in yesterday's DAILY TAR HEEL read "... made by a small group of law students earlier in the week expressed the opinion of a few as being in favor of immediate admission of Negroes."

Officials said the total was "very few."

LIBRARY SHOWS SCHOOL EXHIBIT

Traces Development In North Carolina

"I said to the last General Assembly, 'You will not have aught to fear when you make ample provision for the education of the whole people.'" This extract from the biennial message of Governor Charles B. Aycock in 1903 expresses the keynote of an exhibit now on display on the first floor of the library which tells the story of the development of education in North Carolina.

TEMPORARY RECORDS

The exhibit consists of contemporary records, particularly the inaugural addresses and biennial messages of various governors and is contained in two cases. The first case traces the state's educational development from the historic fight for the University made by Mrs. Cornelia Phillips Spencer, the woman who refused to "play the waiting game," to the days of Governor Aycock, who laid the sills of the present educational program through his work in behalf of the common schools.

The second part tells the story of education in North Carolina from the days of small beginnings at the turn of the century, through the period of expansion in the twenties to the period of depression and the present.

Students Burn After Graham False Alarm

A false alarm sent the Chapel Hill fire department—both of them—and hundreds of students to President Graham's home last night while Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins dined with Dr. Frank and guests.

Groups of panting students pulled up close behind the lone fire truck when it slid to a stop before the big colonial home, while Chi Omegas, who had just finished entertaining Miss Perkins and other coeds from the Shack and the New Dorm gathered on the corners.

Close scrutiny of the house and surroundings failed to produce flames, and disgusted students moved slowly back toward the dorms and the business district.

CPU Chairman Voit Gilmore, present at the time, stated that he had no information for the DAILY TAR HEEL other than not to forget the cabinet member's speech at 8 o'clock.

Labor Secretary Chats With Girls On Co-education

By GLADYS BEST TRIPP

"The trouble with co-educational schools where the boys outnumber the girls," remarked Miss Frances Perkins, as she sipped coffee surrounded by coeds at the Chi Omega tea yesterday afternoon, "is that the boys are likely to resent the girls' intrusion in their classrooms, both because they are just girls, and they are boys, and because girls usually make higher grades than boys do."

"Soon a girl who continually makes better grades in a class full of boys becomes a little cocky, I would say, and that makes a worse situation," she said. "You know, girls at the age of 18 learn quicker than boys at the same age, which isn't saying, by the way, that they do the same thing at 30." Her eyes twinkled as she made the last remark.

INTERESTED IN ALL

With girls in front of her sitting on the floor before an open fireplace and others standing behind her, Miss Perkins talked to them in a friendly conversational manner. She was concerned with all their problems from Mickey Warren's of not getting enough sleep at night because of ex-

French Professors Complete Reader

Professor Hermann H. Staab and Professor Hugo Giduz have just completed the second in a series of readers for students in the school of commerce. The title of this book is "Chrestomathy of French Writers in commerce, economics, and sociology."

The preface was written by Dean D. D. Carroll of the school of commerce.

Purpose of these readers is to give the students an opportunity to become acquainted with some of the most up-to-date material connected with their work without the necessity of purchasing the entire list of books from which these readings are quoted.

FRANCES PERKINS PRAISES PRESENT ADMINISTRATION

Cabinet Member Cites Need For Higher Incomes

By JIM McADEN

Contending that her department has made fairness between wage earner and employer its prime motive for existence as a part of the United States government, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins last night delivered a 55-minute address sponsored by the Carolina Political union before a near-capacity audience in Memorial hall.

In all, Miss Perkins spent approximately two hours on the speaking platform, due to the fact that she joined students for nearly 60 minutes in an open forum question-answer discussion marked by attempted embarrassing queries by members of the audience and subtly brilliant repartees on the Secretary's part.

Queried at the post-speech reporter at the post-speech reception in Graham memorial last night, Labor's Frances Perkins stated definitely that she expected peace, possibly an affiliation, between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress for Industrial Organization [within the next 12 months.

THANKS GRAHAM

In opening her speech, "Labor and the Government," Miss Perkins thanked University President Frank P. Graham for his work in formulating the social program of the federal government. She said that the present administration was greatly indebted to Dr. Graham for his "self-sacrificing" service to bring about completion of the Social Security act.

Miss Perkins agreed with her immediate head Franklin Roosevelt by joining with him in praise of this University's liberalism. She stated that she hoped the United States would continue to have a program of liberalism, but that this could not be realized unless a certain necessary

DANCE DATES SET BY DORM GROUP

Stauber Resigns As Council Secretary

Annual Interdormitory dances will be held Friday and Saturday, March 31 and April 1, the Interdormitory council voted last night. Location of the dance and other arrangements are to be decided later. Numerous other business matters came before the meeting, presided over by President "Puddin'" Wales.

Bill Pearson, president of Everett dormitory, was elected secretary of the council, replacing Bill Stauber of Mangum, who resigned.

The council was presented a number of petitions, circulated and signed by dormitory residents, requesting that the administration restore the use of Swain Hall script for legal tender in dormitory stores and the Book Exchange.

Suggestion was made for the following pieces of equipment for dormitories now under construction: better lighting and telephone facilities, towel racks in rooms, and floor plugs for electric razors.

Approval was given the suggestion that dormitory rooms be used to house delegates to an insurance convention here during the spring holidays. The council recommended that any student who registers for his room to be used and prepares it for the visitors, should be paid even if the room should not be actually used. This section resulted from a report that students several years ago prepared their rooms for a chemistry convention and many of the rooms were not used.

Staff Notice

There will be an important meeting of all DAILY TAR HEEL reporters in the office at 1:30 this afternoon.
