by SHELLEY ROLFE

Well, well the Wake Forest freshmen certainly slapped the sour taste out of the Carolina freshmen's mouth Tuesday night. And chief among the kickers in the south end of the red flannels was a gentleman named Kelly Palumbo who should have forsaken college basketball playing a long time ago — certainly freshman cage operations.

Mr. Palumbo is a high school star from way back, having performed on a high school team which won four state championships in a row. That in itself calls for little more than strenuous eye brow raising. What gives the story timeless, deathless, and great interest is the time of Mr. Palumbo's playing and his team-mates at Trenton high school.

If our calculations have not gone back on us, Palumbo was a big 'un long about 1932-34. The fellows he played with went on to grab the pot of gold in college basketball. Mike Bloom played center with Palumbo. Mike graduated from Temple last June hailed as the best center in the business in spite of the wailings, protestations and claims to the contrary by the Spessard and Hillhouse factions. Another Palumbo team-mate was Nick Fracella who went to Wooster college in Ohio and set the all time college scoring record. Mr. Fracella has long since departed, diploma clutched in hand, from the hallowed halls of Wooster. Turk Apple, senior guard on the Wake Forest varsity, was a mere sub when Palumbo was an all-state guard.

So what happens, so five years after he gets out of high school Palumbo drifts by and becomes a freshman. By all accurate counts he must be at least 25. This isn't cricket or even quits and if Wake Forest folks don't watch out they're likely to bring in the Original Celtics as freshmen next.

Speaking of Wake Forest as of above, it must be observed here that the rollicking Wake varsity blatantly ballyhoed—with good cause—as the wonder team of the conference, certainly took a jolting from Carolina and George Glamack Tuesday night. The Deacons still lead the league with seven and two, both defeats from North Carolina schools—Duke and Carolina, but at the very least, their faith in human nature

Coed Sextette Meets High School Today

In spite of the illness of two of their best players, the coed basketball sextette seems in good form for the game with Chapel Hill high school girls' team this afternoon at 4 in the high school gym.

With Sylvia Cullum and Elizabeth Gammon in the infirmary, the line-up for the first game of the season stands Nancy Taylor, Ann Moore and Polly Raoul, forwards; and Allen Cutts, Mary Lewis and Margaret Herndon, guards. Olive Cruikshank, Kathryn

RONMAN'S BOXERS TO ENCOUNTER VPI DURING WEEK-END

With one taste of Virginia boxing still remaining, Mike Ronman and his varsity and freshmen fighters will leave for the Old Dominion tomorrow afternoon to fill an engagement with VPI, at Blacksburg Saturday night.

It will be the fourth varsity meet of the year, and the third for the neophyte mitters. And for the fourth consecutive week, the varsity line-up will be once more changed—the Coach is still trying to dodge the hard-luck jinx which has trailed along since the season began.

One ray of light shown on the scene, however, when it was announced that Red Sanders, 165-pounder who has been out since the first match of the year, might possibly be up to doctors.

"I'm waiting for an O.K. from the infirmary," Ronman said yesterday. Sanders' although he has not sparred with anyone yet, has been working out for the past week.

More gloom settled when the announcement came that Ed Hubbard would not be able to fight at 175, thereby eliminating either himself or Walter Palanske from action against VPI. In the workout today, both will be put in the ring, and the winner will be used as the heavyweight. Bob

Matmen's Future Looks Brighter

Things began to look much brighter for Coach Chuck Quinlan's Tar Heel varsity and frosh matmen as they went through one of the toughest conditioning sessions of the year in preparation for the Southern conference meet with Washington and Lee at Lexington, Va., next Monday.

Trial fights and pairing off fights were the order of the afternoon as it became apparent that the Carolina grapplers are rapidly getting into shape for the clash with the Generals. Fast, hard matches featured the afternoon's work with a great show by the frosh grapplers in the elimination fights for positions on the squad traveling to Lexington. When the Tar Baby matmen go into action on Monday they will be defending an unmarred record, but the Washington and Lee frosh will give plenty of fight in defense of a great wrestling tradition at the Lexington institution. As for the Tar Heel varsity they will be out to get themselves back into the winning column after dropping the

Carolina's Two Mile Relay Squad Preps For Big Event

Working now for a successful defense of its Millrose games championship, Carolina's two mile relay team is just about ready for its trip North for the big event Saturday. Coach Dale Ranson has named five men—Bill Hendrix, Jimmy Davis, Carleton White, Frank Wakely and Dave Morrison—who will go to the meet in Madison Square Garden, but the four who are to run will be decided at the meet time on the basis of their general condition.

Dressed in the white sweat togs he wore on his Boston trip last weekend when he ran third in the Bishop Cheverus 1000-yard invitational, Hendrix was introduced to the coach yesterday by White. Hendrix has been the team playboy—in practice only—and therefore shares with Davis the title of "Hot."

An item in The Boston Herald gave the team a new slant on Hendrix and therefore the re-introduction was necessary. "Woman track fans at the Boston garden voted Bill Hendrix of North Carolina university to be the cutest trackman on the floor, uniform and all."

Harold Cagle of Oklahoma Baptist university, who went with Hendrix to the Prout games in Boston after training here in the Tin Can, remained in New York with bids to run in the

Phantoms Hot, Ought To Have Winning Streak

It's perfectly all right to extol the youth who makes the play, but making the points is still the big idea in basketball. That is where George Glamack comes in with a flourish, for he is the tall citizen who represents Carolina's best bet to outpoint its foes for the rest of the season and earn a bid to the Southern conference tournament the first week of March in Raleigh.

So far when he has been able to get onto the basketball floor, Glamack has not disappointed the natives who follow the Carolina basketball team. He scored 17 points against Washington and Lee and the Tar Heels strafed the Generals. George hurt his elbow in the game and went out of action for ten days, and Carolina went into

Coed Fencers Battle For Ladder Positions

Fencing an evenly matched bout, Ruth Parsons defeated Elsa Winters in a 5-4 decision yesterday afternoon in the Tin Can to gain second ranking among the coed fencers.

In an equally hard fought match, Bernice Brantley defeated Jo Jones by a 5-4 decision to retain her ranking as fifth in the ladder tournament.

The coeds now rank Adele Austin, first, Ruth Parsons, second, Mary

Football Practice Adds Another Day

Winter football practice extended its ramifications yesterday to include a little bit of injury rehearsal for Jim Mallory and Dick Sieck, four touchdowns, Saturdays and two state legislators who came over from Raleigh to spend a cold afternoon watching the varsity squad go through its paces on Fetzer field.

Neither Mallory nor Sieck were injured seriously. The right end managed to hang on uninjured until the closing minutes of practice when he went up for a pass and came down to have wind knocked out of him. Sieck, one of the leading candidates for the tackle position vacated by Steve Maronic, injured a trick shoulder and will be out of action for a day or so.

The four touchdowns served to liven up a thirty minute practice game in which teams quarterbacked by Jim Lallane and Frank O'Hare took turns a tail-spin which stretched through five games. Glamack managed to get back briefly into the fifth—against State—but his shooting eye was off and the Tar Heels lost.

Mons. Glamack was in top form Tuesday night and he made 24 points and the Tar Heels took a thrilling 56-54 over-time win over Wake Forest to break their losing streak, hand the Deacons their second conference de-

FENCERS STAGE OPENER SATURDAY

All but three of the eight members of the team will be three-year veterans Saturday afternoon in Woollen gym when the Tar Heel fencers take to the strips in their opening meet against the University of Maryland. In an unofficial announcement, the fencing mentors revealed that Captain Allan Bloom, James McCallum and either Dave Malone or Joe Boak would start in foil in that order; Dick Freudenheim, John Finch and Randy Reece will begin for Carolina in epee, and Wayne Williamson, Bloom and Bob Harrington will compete in sabre. Finch, Reece and Harrington are the only newcomers to the line-up.

This afternoon, the Tar Heel swordsmen will go through their final paces in preparation for the opener Saturday with the Terps. The Maryland team will have a decided advantage over Carolina, bringing an all-star squad of veterans who saw action last season. The Terps will also be fencing their second meet for they open their season tomorrow night at William and Mary.

The Carolina fencers have set an unusually strenuous and fast pace this feat, and generally awake in the breasts of every Tar Heel follower from far and wide that Carolina might yet find its way into the conference tournament.

The club has six loop games left and so far has won three and lost five against conference foes. Considering that seven or eight wins will take a club into the Raleigh-throat-cutting round robin, the Tar Heels will have to win at least four of the six.

Maryland comes into Woollen gym tomorrow night to be the first team to test the new ambitions of Glamack, the Tar Heels, and Cap'n Bill McCachren. VMI comes into Woollen Saturday. The Terps took an over-time win from the home forces earlier in the season, while Carolina took VMI over the hurdles at Lexington.

Other conference games left are two with Duke, one with State, and with Davidson. State and Davidson have already beaten the Tar Heels, and promise, as do the other remaining teams, to be plenty of trouble.

When asked by a bystander how he considered Carolina's conference

HEEL VARSITY, FROSH MERMEN PRACTICE HARD

Greatly disappointing in their time trials yesterday, Carolina's varsity and freshman swimmers will be put through another hard practice session of trials again this afternoon to determine whether the Tar Heels are really weak or just all having their bad days at the same time.

Coach Dick Jamerson was very dissatisfied with his teams' performances. After singling out three varsity and two frosh who swam well, he sadly retired to the faculty dressing room. Hoffman Wilson, Otho Ross and Ted Guthe of the varsity and Billy Stone and Bill Peters of the frosh squad were the only ones he mentioned as doing at all well.

The time trials were held as an informal varsity-freshman meet, the final score showing the frosh on top, 40-35. The varsity, apparently taking it easy after its defeat by Virginia two weeks ago, will have its biggest chance to step along in conference competition when it faces N. C. State here Saturday. The frosh, eyeing Big Five, state and conference championships, can gain its first leg on the titles by whipping the State freshmen.

SIEWERT STATES DISAPPOINTMENT IN WAKE MATCH

Chattanooga High school, boasting one of the strongest scholastic quintets in the South, invades Chapel Hill tonight as opposition to Carolina's Freshman cagers in a game starting at 7:00.

After a two game winning streak the Carolina frosh fell before the onslaught of Wake Forest's yearlings Tuesday night in the two team's second meeting of the season. Wake Forest won the first one too. They played very slowly and spiritless showing little of the pep that they usually exhibit in practice. Only several nifty field goals by Bob Rose and Bob Gersten kept the Tar Babies in the game.

Coach Siewert appeared greatly disappointed in the showing of the team and quoted himself so after yesterday's work-out. Said Siewert, "The team put on the most pathetic exhibition of basketball that I have ever seen. I personally was not at all satisfied with any phase of their game. Unless there is a complete change of action on the team during these next three games there is little hope for victories." The freshmen face Danville Military institute tomorrow night

Conference Forms Lacrosse Schedule

A three team Southern lacrosse conference embracing Carolina, Duke, and Virginia was formed in Richmond last week with the possibility that Clemson may join before the end of the season it was announced by Al Cornsweet, Tar Heel coach, yesterday.

Each of the present three members will play a home-and-home series with the other loop clubs. At present Cornsweet has a seven game Tar Heel slate with four other meets pending with Lehigh, Navy B, Hobart, and
