Thousands Of Jobs Eagerly Await University Graduates

Purpose Of Project Hidden In Dark Veil Of Blackness

According to an announcement by the University placement bureau, all graduates within the next four years can be placed within one month after leaving school.

The bureau announced that it now has in its files more than 4,000 available positions, all with steady pay. Investigation of the sources of employments discloses that the work is healthful in addition to being both mentally and physically relaxing.

RIGHT ATTITUDE

"Although a diploma from the University is not necessarily a prerequisite for those applying," Director Welch said, "a college education will have considerable bearing in the employer's attitude toward the prospective employee."

The jobs are made available of an extensive project being carried out on a national scale. Applicants may specify, if they so desire, any portion of the United States in which they wish employment with reasonable security that the request will be granted.

DARK SECRET

The purpose of the project has not yet been disclosed, even to the of-

Daily Tar Heel Staff: Attention!

There will be an important meeting of the editorial staff of the DAILY TAR HEEL this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the office in Graham Memorial. The staff nomination for editor will be held.

LONGER HOURS OUTSIDE DORMS ARE ANTICIPATED

Special Occasions Are Planned For Dating Freshmen

Furthering their policy of personal liberty, the women students late last night issued a proclamation removing all restrictions and regulations formerly inflicted upon them.

A movement for longer hours (outside the dormitory), began with the motion that any co-ed able, flunking or no, to stay in school should be awarded the late permissions at one time given only to students with a C average. The final decision, however, solved all problems by providing that co-eds must neither sign in or out. In this way the Woman's association plans to save enough money from pencils and note-book paper (and from electricity saved by removing Spencer hall's search light) to finance a beer party once a quarter.

Especially advocated by the YWCA was the policy that woman students major only in archaeology, Woodhouse courses or a newly installed complete marriage course to leave more time for furthering men-women relations.

Also, in response to repeated requests, the association has decided that until something can be done about the situation in the State Legislature, Carolina co-eds will set aside special occasions for dating freshmen.

"One institution indispensable with liberty and freedom for all" was the motto adopted by AKG, the YWCA, the Woman's Athletic council and the entire Woman's association.

Faculty Suspends Morning Classes

In a lengthy faculty meeting late last night, it was decided to discontinue all morning classes during the remainder of the Human Relations Institute, starting Monday.

Classes will begin at 11 o'clock, following the morning session of the Institute.

Frosh Win Fight To End Chapel

Freshman assembly will be discontinued for the remainder of the school year, it was announced yesterday.

This proclamation came as a result of continual protests from freshman classes during the past 25 years. Certain administrative sources revealed that freshman chapel may be completely abolished in the future.

C. W. Gilmore Signed For CPU Egg-Rolling Contest April 9

Orator

Charles W. Gilmore, who has acquired a world-wide reputation as a journalist and bull-shooter since his "student" days at the University, has agreed, after much urging, to speak on a Carolina Political union platform here in connection with an egg-rolling contest planned by the union.

Council Has Very, Very, Very Stormy Session; Bravo!

Holding a stormy meeting in Woolen gym last night, the University athletic council voted to withdraw the Carolina football team from the Southern conference next fall and enter it in the National professional football league.

"The Southern conference does not maintain our ideas of amateurism in college athletics," a member of the council, who preferred to remain anonymous, said after the meeting. "Entering the National league has long been one of our main objectives. We wanted Carolina to enter a league which at the same time would give it both ample competition and adhere to our rigid standards of sportsmanship and amateurism."

"The council meeting was very heated, and it was not until the fifty-fifth ballot that we finally decided to affiliate

Hill Virtually Sure Of Victory; Opponents Gloomy

Campus politics suddenly found itself in the midst of a bombshell yesterday when Dr. E. J. Woodhouse, classroom politician and occasional dabbler in the higher art of vote-chasing, "said he would to bat, hook, line and sinker," for the cause of liberty, justice, equality, and democracy by espousing "the forgotten man of statesmanship—Boss Hill."

The startling announcement brought grave forebodings to the constituents of Jimmy Davis and Bill Pearson, would-be student body presidents, who are already active in the promised land of the two quadrangles. For, Professor Woodhouse revealed he would throw the full weight of the Carolina Political Union, the American Student Union, the Undergraduate Philosophy club, and the Venidas Peace group behind Hill, who is widely known as a mender-extraordinary of holey pants.

PEOPLES'S CHOICE

The political science professor said further that he might induce President Roosevelt to write an endorsement of Hill, who he described as "the people's choice, the only democratic selection." Written endorsements of Doc Helms and Sam Green have already been secured.

Hill's candidacy was announced sometime ago, along with that of Vaughn Winborne for vice-president of the student body on the same meal ticket. The campus promptly forgot both, however. Dr. Woodhouse vehemently stated he would not "sit idly by and see a miscarriage of justice." He rushed to defense of "a forgotten man" in fifth district Congressional elections last fall and the man is still forgotten.

Dr. Woodhouse promised a grade of "A" to any of his students who would "stand by me in this hour of crisis, this hour of crying need for democracy to prevail on a campus saturated by autocracy, bureaucracy, and plutocracy."

Freshmen Leaders Will Meet Today

All important members of the freshman class are urged to attend an imperative session at 10 o'clock this morning in room 213 of Graham Memorial. Business that must be completed today will be before the members for discussion.

HOUSE REPORTED TO BE IN LINE FOR PRESIDENCY

General Shake-Up In Administration Is Anticipated

President Frank P. Graham resigned from the University late last night to accept President Roosevelt's appointment to the governorship of Porto Rico.

Graham, who has previously been mentioned for the island governor's post, had been appointed to a com-

A telegram was received by the DAILY TAR HEEL late last night from David Clark, editor of the North Carolina Textile Bulletin, who expressed regrets upon learning that his life-long friend, Frank Graham, had decided to leave the University. Clark added that this was the greatest loss the Greater University had ever received.

mission to investigate educational conditions in Porto Rico. He will continue to serve on this group and will leave with them Thursday, but will take over his new post upon his arrival there.

Dean of Administration R. B. House will take over the president's duties until the Board of Trustees names Graham's successor.

HIDDEN POWER

Miss Katherine Lackey, often spoken of as the "power behind South building," will accompany President Graham to Porto Rico.

Although many members of the administration had formerly declared that Dr. Graham would never leave the University, it is believed that constant pressure from Washington and Charlotte finally forced him to resign.

Following close upon the heels of Graham's resignation came an outbreak of rumors concerning a general shake-up in the administration staff. One source has reported that R. B. Madry, director of the University news bureau, may become Controller of the University, an office unoccupied since C. T. Woollen's death. The same source added that Jake Wade, sports editor of the Charlotte Observer, would take Madry's place as news bureau editor.

NEW PLANS

One usually reliable informant stated that since Dean House would likely become President of the University, Dean F. F. Bradshaw would become dean of administration and that Fred Weaver would replace Bradshaw as dean of students.
