Something To Boast About—

After 144 Years Chapel Hill Receives New Town Building

After Being Shifted Around For Years, The Chapel Hill Government Is Now Together

By BILL RHODES WEAVER
After 144 years living in lodgings hither and yon the town of Chapel Hill is going to have its own premises. Several departments are even now occupying the town hall on the corner of Columbia and Rosemary streets, and Judge L. J. Phipps held court there Tuesday morning.

Behind the occupation of a structure built specifically for municipal use lies a struggle of over half a century. The University village has never been wealthy, and since a large part of the village is state-owned, the tax burden has been somewhat difficult and has prevented the accumulation of enough funds to construct a town office building.

Last August, however, villagers voted

COURT MENTOR GIVES NO REASON FOR HIS ACTION

Shepard Or Lange Seem To Be Next Probable Coach

BY ROY POPKIN

The resignation of Walter D. Skidmore as Carolina basketball coach—effective July 1—was announced yesterday by athletic director Bob Fetzer. Skidmore telegraphed his exit from the Tar Heel court scene from his home in Harlan, Ky., where he is visiting relatives. No reason for the resignation was announced.

Fetzer revealed that a tentative resignation was in the hands of the Athletic Association on January 1, before the regular season began. Rumors that he would be replaced as Carolina court pilot spread around when the White Phantoms got off to a poor start in the Southern conference race, but died down somewhat when Carolina backed into the conference tournament.

Skidmore's successor has not yet been named, but Fetzer said that the new basketball coach would probably

Dennis, Auden To Lead Series Today Toward National Realms; Section On South Is Finished

Six Leaders Give Solutions For Southern Problems

With the aid of six speakers, an audience of some 3500 during three Human Relations Institute sessions yesterday conducted an investigation into the peculiar problems and listened to a number of plans as to the future of this section in national history.

Yesterday's programs wound up the sectional aspect, "The South, Today and Tomorrow" of the HRI and obviously left the audience much impressed after the multi-barreled barrage of terms, proposals, and open forum sessions.

RAPER

Arthur Raper, sociology Ph. D. from the University, got the ball rolling yesterday at 10 o'clock with an address on "The South—A Challenge to Democracy." He pointed out that while the South is a section of pallegra, limited natural resources, erosions, high birth rate, lack of education, that it constitutes the "Nation's Number One Economic Opportunity."

Raper also pointed out that even while the South has a birth rate far out of proportion to its ability to care for a large population, that other sections of the country have declining birth rates; thus, the South in the future will furnish an increasing amount of the young people to national life.

ODUM

"Grand old man" of University sociology, Howard W. Odum, head of the department here, was the second speaker, leading the 4 o'clock afternoon panel meeting of the South. Dr. Odum speaking on the subject of "Is Regional

John J. Parker, Jr., former president of the University student body, has been released from a Durham hospital where he has been recuperating from a fractured neck since last October.

He will remain at his home in Charlotte and probably return to law school here next fall. Parker was injured in an automobile accident.

Cap'n Fred III

Captain Fred C. Smith, retired conductor of the "Carrboro Special" was in a very grave condition late last night.

His physician, Dr. B. B. Lloyd reported that the octogenarian was slowly sinking.

Economist

Lawrence Dennis, economist and former member of the consular service, above, will be one of the leading speakers today. His topic is "American National Interests and Foreign Policy."

SUNDAY SPEAKERS FIND COMMON BOND A RELIGIOUS NEED

Hurwitz, Eddy, Douglas Agree On Single Necessity

The finding of a common bond in the kingdom of God for all three major religious faiths was the theme of the Human Relations institute at the Religion Symposium held last Sunday evening in Memorial hall. The need and desire for closer harmony and union was stressed by the three speakers, Henry Hurwitz, representing the Jewish faith; Robert A. Douglas, representing the Catholic faith; and Sherwood Eddy who spoke on the part of the Protestant faith.

After a short introduction by President Frank P. Graham who stated that the National Congress of Jews and Christians was the means by which the symposium was gathered and conducted, Henry Hurwitz, editor of The Menorah Journal, pointed out that above all, the upholding of moral right is most important regardless of faith. He spoke of the responsibility the people of Israel as tional Interests and Foreign Policy."

At 8 o'clock W. H. Auden, British poet, socialist and writer, is to talk on the subject "Integration and Freedom." Both he and Dennis will be featured on the 4 o'clock panel discussion.

Other visitors on the campus today, as guests and conductors of discussion groups and classroom seminars, include Arthur Raper, yesterday morning's speaker and research secretary of the Southern Interracial commission, Mark Etheridge, University day speaker last fall and vice-president and general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal, Charles S. Jackson, head of the Department of Sociology at Fisk university, W. D. Alexander, director of the farm security administration and co-conductor with Jonathan Daniels of last night's symposium on the South.
DR. SMITH

The institute will close Friday morning with an address by Dr. T. V. Smith, United States Congressman from Illinois and known as the "scholar of the house," who will speak on the "Promise of American Politics."

The 12-year-old institute, begun by the YMCA cabinets of 1927 as a quadrennial campus feature, became a biennial program in 1937. Through donations of almost all leading cam-

Professor Asks Lost Students To Come Home--No April Fool

"YW" Officers Are Installed

Nine newly-elected YWCA cabinet members were installed in an impressive candle light service in the Chapel of the Cross last night. Miss Louise Jordan, president of the organization pledged herself to the carrying out of the activities and purposes of the YWCA.

The nine new officers, Misses Jordan, Ruth Curtis Robeson, Sarah McLean, Mary Jane Yeatman, Melville Corbett, Frances Sparks, Dorothy Coble, Roberta Winton, and Altajane Holden, pledged themselves to the three-fold purpose of the YWCA: fellowship with others, themselves and with God.

The nine retiring members of the cabinet are Misses Olive Cruikshank, Eleanor Jackson, Virginia Bower, Connie Thigpen, Rachel McLean, Katherine Fleming, Elizabeth Spencer, and Claire Whitmore.

Johnson Says That Much Changing Of Classes Responsible

Guy B. Johnson, professor of sociology, last night asked the Daily Tar Heel Missing Persons Bureau to aid him in locating 10 of his students. Any information as to the whereabouts of the wandering scholars will be greatly appreciated by Mr. Johnson, who extends the following proposition to them:

"Missing... ten students in Social Anthropology during the recent migrations of this course. We first met in Library 311, then in Library 303, and are now meeting in the Auditorium of Murphey hall. Come back. No questions asked. No more moves (?)
Guy B. Johnson."

Needless to say, the Missing Persons Bureau of the DAILY TAR HEEL will do its best to solve the mystery
