off we go

"We may not always be right, but we're always going to be fair and as exhaustive as possible,' wrote Phil Hammer, former editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, in his initial issue.

Hammer's expression is apropos now.

This newspaper's new regime has no illusions of the DAILY TAR HEEL's infallibility. But this regime willendeavor to increase infallibility.

The new DAILY TAR HEEL expects to give complete news coverage and concrete expressions of sentiment on campus issues. The noble institution of "hedging" will be left to economists and wary brokers. We are not wary. This editorial page will give frank opinions on any institution or practice warranting our attention.

Our general policy will favor "the student," not particular individuals, but any movement to make this University an institution operated for and by the student body.

be less merry, less unanimous, and less lasting for it.

Who can be expected to join wholeheartedly in Tuesday's gaiety, if on Wednesday he must go forth to stand a stiff examination in some tough course? All too many of our fellows must leave the festival today; get themselves to some dark, ashy spot, and spend the hours of this holiday in solitary prayer.

What kind of holiday is this, that half the student body celebrates with trembling? Whose fault that joy is so diminished, that spirit come so low?

We take no issue with the ancient pedagogical assumption that periodic quizzes are right effective stimulants on slowing scholars-there can be no doubt of it. But we protest the administration of the medicine at this particular time. It will excite certain qualities in the manqualities which are admirable in themselves; it will make a man tremble and think on his soul, and every man should sometimes shake and remember his end. But we believe the administration of this Quiz Oil is a little untimely Our principal hope for April now, at Student-Faculty day. (Yep, I am wondering too where this title came from. Or for that matter, where it's going to. After scanning dusty back issues and battered exchanges, thinking hard, and then catching a glimpse of pink pachyderms on the ceiling, I hollered "uncle," turned up my toes, and out it popped. Anyway, it is appropriate if you read

Harry's

There is one guy in this man's village who resembles beautifully the modern version of Dicken's Scrooge. You know him-we all know him-as Harry of Harry's Delicatessen, the little fellow with the brown mustacho, and grim visage.

Day after day, week after week, month after month, Harry sits on his stool in his palace of pleasure scribbling down accounts, his hand ever outward, palm upward. His favorite past time must be counting the number of suds that his cheap-drunk-seeking habitues down, a truly astonish-

Like Rockefeller, Harry seems to have stepped in at just the right time to corner the market on proper atmosphered beer jernts that all collegiates think are a necessity. But unlike Rockefeller, Harry does not give out dimes, maybe in his ancient days he may weaken-I doubt it.

The enigma of all the TAR HEEL business staff, Harry breaks down all their arguments by blandly stating that he doesn't need to advertise—he has customers enough. And this is quite true. In an effort to find something to write about, various Buc editors and columnists have picked on the coeds and Harry's circle of light and charm for copy. So Scrooge Stern openly laughs at the bewildered ad-seekers and collects innumerable choice mentions in the most readable parts of student publications.

His establishment hit jackpot in the April Fool issue of the TAR HEEL garnering five plugs. When this was shown him by a celebrating night staff his face lit up like has never been seen before on his well lined facade. But the smile faded rapidly and oozing friendliness disappeared when hints bold ones at that, were made that such generosity on the part of the staff might be rewarded by beer.

Pigs is pigs.

TAR HEEL BALLAD: Bob Doty, the calendar man, met a gorgeous blonde divorcee in Daytona Beach, Fla., last summer. She is (now) Miss Earlie McCullar, former movie star, former vocalist of Larry Clinton's, and present playgirl. Last Friday Bob received a wire from her saying she would land in Chapel Hill that day. She did-but her extravagance has pretty nearly frightened Bob to death. First she kicks because no village shop has an evening frock costing more than $40. She goes into Foister's to rent a camera, is offered a kodak, and ends up by purchasing a $37.50 outfit. Bell boys at the Carolina inn could support a family on her tips-and are doing it. Bob says he thought that she came mainly to see Larry Clinton but that she's still here and has said little about leaving. Some guys don't know when they're well off.

TRAINING MEET WILL BE HELD

Sponsored By University, WPA

More than 50 delegates representing principal colleges and universities in many parts of the country will arrive Thursday to attend the second national conference on college training of recreation leaders sponsored jointly by the University and the Works Progress administration this weekend.

The subject of the conference, which gets underway Thursday at the Caro. lina inn, will be extension of college training for recreation leadership. In addition to the college delegates a number of representatives of public recreation agencies and two officials of the WPA recreation program will attend.

The first conference of this series was held at the University of Minnesota December, 1937. At that time the meet was devoted chiefly to standards of undergraduates training for professional recreational leaders. The conference this weekend will deal chiefly with graduate work in this
