Freshmen Meet Again Today For Vote On Yearbook Issue; 375 Needed For Class Quorum

Group Will Consider Individual Photos At Chapel Period

The rising sophomore class will gather in Memorial hall this morning at 10:30 to vote once more on the issue of individual pictures for the 1940 Yackety Yack. The freshmen met last week, but failed to have a quorum of students present. The 300 who were there voted almost unanimously in favor of the bill.

As President Bill Alexander pointed out, the attendance of at least 375 rising second year men will be required to constitute a quorum or 50 per cent of the class. He stated that even more of his classmates had spoken to him about individual pictures after seeing the "make-shift appearance of this year's freshmen and sophomores." He was referring to the group pictures of the first and second-year men, included in the Yackety Yack, just recently off the presses.

Word was received last night that Charley Wood's "Swing-wing" quartet, including Howard Waynick on the piano, Frank Justice on the sax, Rowland Kennedy on the clarinet, and Sam Galloway on the trumpet, would jive for the rising sophomores.

LYNCH'S STAND

The policy of the yearbook has been to take group pictures for the lower two classes. But this year's editor, Jack Lynch, has expressed his desire to see "neater individual photos to make the Yackety Yack more representative of what the University really is." Last week he pointed out that all the other schools in the Big Five had separate pictures for freshmen and sophomores, and that "there was no reason why we shouldn't have them too."

At last week's meeting, Charley Wood and his orchestra, winners in the recent campus swing contest, of-

"Battle Of Spencer" Began Rapid Advance Of UNC Coeds

Two New 'Dream' Dormitories Are Latest Addition To Women's Facilities

By GLADYS BEST TRIPP
It's a far cry from the new "dream" dormitories being erected for the coeds to the famous "Battle of Spencer Hall" waged over the first coed dormitory 18 years ago. At the present no other college in North Carolina can offer its girls as fully equipped and beautifully planned dormitories as the University.

But back in 1919 the 25 coeds enrolled in the University were gradually given two dwelling houses as a coed center. One of these was Archer house. The other burned two years later, and provisions had to be made for the slowly, but steadily, increasing number of coeds.

Mrs. Marvin Stacy, who had been made advisor to women, wanted "her girls" to have a dormitory. But build-

MAG WILL FEATURE THREE ARTICLES ON GOVERNMENT

Magill, Kattsoff, And Green Present Theme Of Issue

The Carolina Magazine which will be issued next Friday will feature three articles on student government. "The Honor System in Action," by Bob Magill, director of Graham Memorial, presents the view of those who are in charge of student government. Louis Kattsoff, professor in the Philosophy department, has offered the faculty opinion in his article, "Contradictions in the Student Council." Finally, the Magazine gives the students' consideration of their government in Alleh Green's story, "Wherein We Fail."

An etching by William Steene appears on the cover. Paul Caveness has contributed a story entitled "Heaven without Hyacinths" which is followed by Adrian Spies' "Visitor to the City." Half-way through the Magazine is a full-page linoleum block cut by Margaret Munch, divided in four sections. Wieder Sievers has written the only play, "Skin Deep," appearing in this issue. There is a final story, "Heart Flower," by Cecil Stanford and a satire, "Crime Don't Pay," by Lee Manning Wiggins.

William Peery and Mary Louise Boylston have contributed two poems to the Magazine. Peery's is entitled "Last Letter Home;" Miss Boylston's is "Tranquility." Other poems by Michaux, Roof, and Barbour are also included.

This is Allen Green's second issue since his election to the Magazine editorship this spring. This time he is following somewhat the type of his first issue which contained all fiction. However, this month he has incorporated the theme of student government.

Formerly librarian of the band, Simmons plays a trombone both in Charlie Wood's dance band and the University band. He was recognized for his "meritorious service."

Hubert Henderson, elected secretary-treasurer, is now occupying the first chair of the first trumpet section and is also trumpet soloist in Charlie Wood's orchestra. George Simon, associate editor of Metronome magazine, recently picked Henderson in his selection of Carolina's all-campus dance band when he judged the first annual Battle of Swing sponsored by the University band. Henderson is a rising junior.

Three rising sophomores were elected as publicity director, librarian and editor of Band Notes, a semi-annual publication dealing with the work of the band. RANKIN ELECTED PU BOARD HEAD; OTHERS INDUCTED

Group Considers Budget Estimates Of Publications

Electing Ed Rankin, senior class member, president for the coming year, the new representatives on the Publications Union board were yesterday inducted into their offices. Don Bishop, the junior representative, was chosen treasurer, while Ed Megson, member-at-large, was selected to serve as secretary.

Yesterday's business dealt with the budgets for the various publications for the 1939-40 year. All of the financial estimates were submitted at the scheduled time, except the Yackety Yack. The board passed on only the budget of the Buccaneer.

Action on the Carolina Magazine estimate was tabled because of a lack of knowledge as to the cost of the new type of heavier paper. The new representatives made no decision on the DAILY TAR HEEL budget, attributing the delay to the present tie-up in salaries.

Outgoing members of the board are Tim Elliott, president; Morris Rosenberg, treasurer; Tom Stanback, secretary. The board has complete authority in regulating financial affairs of the four campus publications, and appoints the managing editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL and the business managers of all the publications.

Present faculty members of the board are Walter Spearman, of the journalism department; Robert B. Sharpe, of the English department; J. M. Lear, of the economics department. Dr. Lear is an ex-officio member, serving as financial adviser without a vote.

Dr. Frank Graham and the board of directors were the guests of honor at the outing. The program consisted of group singing, individual stunts, and short talks by the various members of the cabinets and President Graham.

In connection with the final meeting John Bonner, recently elected president of the YMCA, yesterday issued the following statement:

Hot Music Drives French Writers Wild And Takes Scandinavians By Storm

With the student body composed of national and international representatives, forming a cosmopolitan atmosphere, which will soon become dense with pre-examination preparation, it is a consolation to pause for a moment to anticipate the arrival of Jimmie Lunceford June 2 for the Finals.

The "cosmopolitan atmosphere" will then ring with what the French music writers call "Le Jazz Hot."

Not long ago, Lunceford took his band on a European tour. The French went wild, even wilder than their passionate, emotional, romantic spirits reckoned; and the Scandinavians, with their cool, pensive, intellectual natures, were "taken by storm from the
