BILL BEERMAN

Not wanting to break a precedent, we take this opportunity to say goodbye, as has been the custom every quarter for the past two years. It is just a precautionary action, and more than likely the intellectual demons hereabouts will see fit to pass upon our mediocre scholastic ability and permit reentrance in the fall.

The last nine months have been just another year in Carolina athletics-a pretty good year according to the records. Think back through the thick fog of alcoholic and otherwise pleasant week-ends to the football season. Ray Wolf's varsity won six games; only Tulane and Duke found the amazing Tar Heel team vulnerable. Wake Forest, State, NYU, Davidson, VPI, and Virginia found the sophomoric line and shifty backfield too hot to handle, and the mighty Fordham Rams were held scoreless in the memorable contest at the Polo Grounds in New York.

Steve Maronic, the big tackle, made All-American. He and George Watson, Horace Palmer, Bob Adam, and Jack Kraynick terminated their affiliation with the team.

Walter Skidmore, a sick man, guided his basketball squad to a fiftyfifty season of 10 games won and a similar number lost. And as in 1937, the quint was eliminated in the first round of the conference tournament at Raleigh, this time by Clemson. The lads had to be satisfied with third place in the Big Five, a position new to them.

Chuck Quinlan, the rabbit-hunting expert, trainer, and wrestling coach for 13 years, saw his amateur grunters take the state championship. His freshman crew won its three matches, also getting Big Five laurels.

The boxers licked only State and Duke, but that was sufficient for the state title. Gates Kimball, the football player reputed to be a sensation in the ring, did not box but is in line for the heavyweight job next year. Billy Winstead won the bantamweight crown in the tourney at Columbia, and darkhorse Carolina finished second to Maryland in the scoring.

Dick Jamerson was imported from somewhere in Ohio and the first swimming team in University history was organized. They had to get someone to use the pool.

beaten for the year. State honors went last year and Red Benton who was one to them and Bill Rood won the of Ham Strayhorn's hurling big three singles in the conference. this spring.

Bob Fetzer's and Dale Ranson's track team, which climaxed the season by sweeping the conference meet over the week-end. Jimmy Davis, Bill Hendrix, and Bill Corpening were standouts in a field of stars.

So, one surmises, it wasn't such a bad year for Carolina sports. And the ardent fan will rush to assure you that next year will be better. Even money can be gotten at any respectable betting shoppe that Carolina will beat Duke come November

Five Tar Heels Put Up Uniforms EDUCATION STAFF To End College Ball Careers

By SHELLEY ROLFE

When the Tar Heels finished their season Monday by blowing the third straight game to Duke, five of the lads who have done more than their share of giving Carolina three seasons of winning baseball teams hung up their uniforms for the last time in college baseball. Kissing the boys good-bye and George Nethercutt, Frank Cox, Bud Hudson and Sam Davis.

Next spring when he sets about the inevitable task of filling the gaps occasioned by graduation, Hearn will have to find a catcher, two pitchers, a first baseman and an outfielder to take the places of the departed gentlemen. And while it may be unfair to the departed seniors to say se, Hearn should have little difficulty filling all of the positions except catcher.

HARD TO REPLACE It will not be easy to replace Nethercutt. George hit over .300 his sophomore year; banged .440 last spring; and closed out his college career with a mark around the .500 figure. He was the classiest defensive man in captivity behind the bat in the college circles, and when he gets his diploma and is ready to step out into professional baseball he will be able to ask his own price-and get it-for signing with a big league team. Two men are in line for the catching job, Mr. Kenfield's tennis team was Elmer Sensenbach who sat on the bench most successful and remained un- this spring after doing freshmen duty

Bissett leaves first base open for either Ben Browning, reserve on the The baseball team also had games varsity, or Bo Reynolds who was hot stuff on the freshman team and hit Wonderful was the performance of over .400. Being left-handed, Reynolds has a slight advantage over Browning. Any number of outfielders are ready to jump into Cox's place including Mike Bobbitt, who was ineligible this spring, George Radman, if Hearn has enough pitching so he can be spared from mound duty, and Pete Carraway, Hardy Thompson, Julian Miller and Phil Moore up from the freshmen.

Hank Feimster and Lefty Cheshire, two fellows who gave brilliant promises of future greatness with the freshmen this spring, should make up for the loss of Hudson and Davis and then some. Feimster has a swell fast ball, and Cheshire, according to most observers, has everything. And Hearn will be able to call on Wash Turner and Les Tomlinson, two rising juniors whom he kept on the bench to absorb experience all season. Both have plenty of stuff.

IN THE THIRD Carolina's first two runs came in the third inning when Grubb reached first base by forcing out Dunham, who had singled, at second. Allen then doubled and Donavan drove them both across the plate with a single. Siewert opened the second scoring rally in the fourth inning by cracking out a single. Strayhorn went out, but Barclay scored Siewert and himself by hitting one of the longest home runs ever witnessed at State college. Two more runs were accounted for in the sixth when "Ham" Strayhorn, after Siewert had gone out, smacked a long double and scored on Jamerson's single. Jamerson followed Strayhorn across the plate when Wolfe connected for a single. In the seventh inning Carolina ended the scoring when Grubb and Donavan, who
