Fraternities Open Rush Season This Afternoon; Rules Stressed

Freshmen To Visit Houses Between Hours Of 2-5, 7-10

After a 17-day silence period—in effect since their arrival in Chapel Hill, a large percentage of the freshmen will this afternoon get their first taste of fraternity activity when they make their first calls to the Greek houses as the rushing season gets under way. Rushing will begin at 2 o'clock and last until 5 o'clock; and will be resumed at 7 o'clock, continuing until 10 o'clock this evening.

Invitations were distributed last night to the prospective pledges asking them to visit the houses today. In accordance with rushing rules, every man who receives a card must call on every house to which he is invited. Failure to comply with this ruling will result in a penalty imposed by the Interfraternity council.

No fraternity may make more than one date with any freshman today. After this afternoon and evening's rushing is concluded, dates for the remainder of the season are permissible.

In a ruling recently passed by the council, no freshmen will be allowed to accept rides from any fraternity members, during the rushing period. In other years, this regulation was not in effect.

For the 10 days of rushing, freshmen will be able to speak to fraternity men only during visiting hours.

At meal hours, there will be no rushing. The breakfast and lunch hours are covered by the period of silence, and the evening meal shall be considered under the limitations imposed by this period. No fraternity man may pay for any food obtained by a rushee, regardless of the hour.

All of the time between the closing of rushing one night, and its resumption the next night will be covered by rules governing the period of silence. During these hours fraternity men cannot communicate with freshmen either verbally or in writing, and freshmen are expected not to talk among themselves about fraternities.

Dorm Elections

All dormitories will select their vice-presidents and counselors tomorrow night at 10 o'clock. Jack Vincent, vice-president of the Interfraternity council, announced yesterday.

Vincent is acting as president of the council during the illness of John Singletary.

The voting will take place at the individual dormitories at a place decided by the dormitory president, Vincent said.

Those who would like a period of quiet meditation and worship with freedom of expression are cordially invited.

ALL CABINETS OF YMCA MEET TOMORROW NIGHT

Junior-Senior Group To Hear Donald Stewart

The junior-senior YMCA cabinets will meet at 7:15 tomorrow night in the cabinet room of the "Y", the sophomore cabinet will meet at 7:30 tomorrow night in the lounge, and the Freshman Friendship council will meet at 7:15 in Di hall tomorrow night, it was announced yesterday by John Bonner, president of the YMCA.

Rev. Donald Stewart will lead a discussion at the Junior-Senior meeting on "What a Christian Who's Country Is at War Feels Is His Duty Towards God and His Country." This will be the second in a group of discussions of the position of Christians in time of conflict. The meeting should be of especial interest in view of the fact that Rev. Stewart is a British subject in this country.

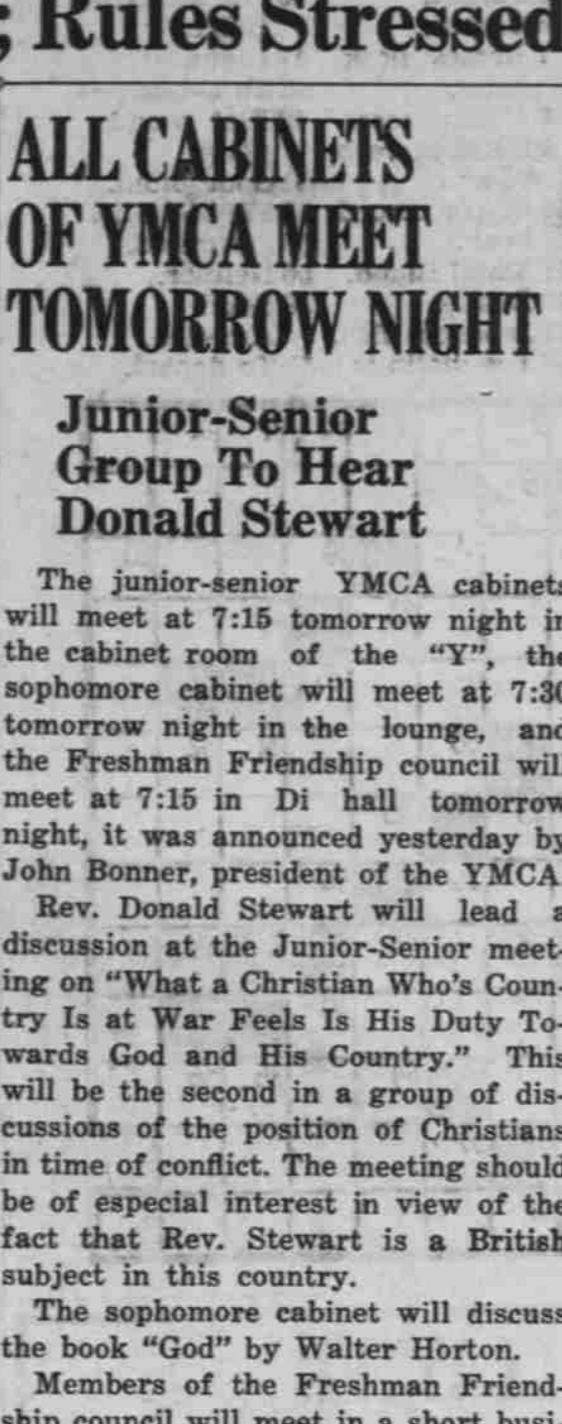

The sophomore cabinet will discuss the book "God" by Walter Horton.

Members of the Freshman Friendship council will meet in a short business session in the Di hall, after which, John Bonner will discuss the YMCA program and its policies on the campus and in the nation.

Speaking of the meetings, Bonner said "Our class meetings are essentially class meetings for the entire student body. None is a closed affair. Every student on the campus is cordially invited to attend these meetings and join in the discussions."

It was also announced that there will be a meeting of the YMCA and YWCA cabinets at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the cabinet room of the YMCA.

His Night To Howl

Carolina's head football coach, Ray Wolf, whose boys yesterday romped in to a 50-0 victory over The Citadel in their opening game of the season. Wolf, who is beginning his fourth year as head coach, seemed well pleased with the team's work. Incidentally, it might be added, so did the student body.

HIGH SCHOOL DAY ATTRACTS 15,000

Seniors See Hill, Game—Leave Happy

"It was a great day . . . and what a game." That was probably the notation inserted in the diaries (of those who kept them) of the 15,000 high school students who descended upon the campus yesterday to celebrate the annual High School Day.

The arriving students were greeted at the Old Well by Vance Hobbs, master of ceremonies, and were then assigned to University student guides who showed them over the campus. The visitors then received their complimentary tickets to the football game in Memorial hall and dined either on the grass near the Old Well and Davie Poplar, from Swain hall's Mr. Cooley's box lunches, the cafeteria itself, or homemade lunches.

Soon after lunch the prospective University students, gaping even more

Symphony Meets Tomorrow Night

With a full program of activity planned for the year, the University Symphony orchestra will hold its first meeting of the quarter tomorrow night at 7:15 in Hill music hall.

Membership of the orchestra is made up of students and townspeople, and tryouts will be conducted through tomorrow afternoon for those who have not yet been able to contact Dr. Swalin, conductor of the orchestra.

Several out-of-town appearances are scheduled for the quarter in addition to the regular concert, Orchestra President Alexander Mitchell has announced.

Mitchell and Jess Swan, secretary-treasurer of the orchestra, worked out the program for the organization during the summer in cooperation with Dr. Swalin, who has just returned from a period study in Europe.

Regular meetings of the orchestra will be held each Monday evening at 7:15 in Hill hall. String sections and other sections of the orchestra will at times hold separate rehearsals.

Tryouts for "No More Peace," Carolina Playmakers' first production of the current season, will be held tomorrow at 4 o'clock and 7:30 again in the Playmaker theater. All who would like to have part in the play—students, faculty or townsfolk—have been invited to appear at the theater for one of the tryout periods.

"No More Peace," written by Ernest Toller, will be presented in the Theatre the evenings of October 25, 26, 27, and 28, and will be directed by Sam Selden, associate director of the Playmakers. Copies of the play may be obtained in the reserve reading room of the library.

Article In "Guaranty Survey" Points Out Effects Of European War On U. S. Business

Conflict Brings Up New Set Of Uncertainties, Financial Review Says

The long-dreaded outbreak of war in Europe brought American business face to face with a new set of uncertainties, states the Guaranty Trust Company of New York in discussing the possible economic effects of the war on the United States in the current issue of The Guaranty Survey, its monthly review of business and financial conditions in the United States and abroad.

"Both the experience gained during the World War and the marked effects of the recurrent European war crisis of recent years on trade and finance in this country emphasized the close interdependence in the economic life of nations under modern conditions and showed beyond a doubt that armed conflict among the great Powers would have profound effects and necessitate sweeping readjustments in our own economic life," The Survey continues. "The earlier war experience also gave some indication as to what the nature of those effects and readjustments might be. Yet the initial impact for war on financial markets in this country in the present instance has contrasted sharply both with the experience in 1914 and with that of the recent war crisis, illustrating the wide variations with which history repeats itself and the danger of judging the future too closely by the past.

ULTIMATE EFFECTS

"Whether or not the United States remains neutral, it is certain that a prolonged war will entail a loss of manpower, destruction of property, and industrial disorganization that will inevitably react unfavorably on this country in the long run. Neutrality may mitigate these effects, but it cannot prevent them. In the final analysis, any temporary advantage that American business may gain in world markets as a result of the war will be more than paid for in subsequent losses due to the industrial paralysis and the general impoverishment that must overtake the belligerent nations.

"Equally inevitable, and perhaps even more disastrous in the end, will be the financial disorder that is likely to follow in the wake of war. Not a single important currency has escaped the wave of depreciation that swept over the world as a direct result of the staggering costs of the World War—costs that no belligerent nation could meet by the orderly processes of taxation and current savings. Neutral currencies, as well as those of the former belligerents, were affected.

The monetary confusion that arose from the war and its aftermath have been major factors in the international economic situation—for twenty-five years, and the end was not yet in sight when this new war broke out.

It is virtually certain that the present war, unless it ends quickly, will have to be financed mainly by the same inflationary methods; and it is to be feared that, if the war is long and costly, the consequences will be even more far-reaching, since the financial position of the principal nations is still weak as a result of the last war and of the world-wide depression. In the final reckoning the losses to the United States, along with the rest of the world, will be incalculable.

GENERAL BUSINESS

"The immediate effects of the outbreak of war on American business with any accuracy. It seems to have been as a whole cannot yet be gauged with generally expected that the initial shock would have at most a temporary unsettling and depressing influence. In 1914 the effects were neither severe
