Drama Group Concludes Meet; Zora Neale Hurston Featured

Noted Negro Author Outlines Plans For Native Drama

Members of the Carolina Dramatic association concluded their annual fall meeting here yesterday afternoon, winding up an all-day program which featured a talk by Zora Neale Hurston on "Making a Negro Folk Theater."

The Negro author, who was introduced by Dr. Frederick H. Koch, founder and director of the Carolina Playmakers, spoke at the morning session in the Playmakers theater. The author and folk-artist outlined general plans for encouraging native drama at the North Carolina College for Negroes, in Durham. As director of dramatics at the Negro school she expects to initiate among her race in this state a movement similar to that of the Playmakers.

PAGANS

"Our drama must be like us or it doesn't exist," Miss Hurston said in stating her brief for a native Negro drama. "We are a pagan people . . ." she declared. "We stand before your Christian altars and continue to beat our pagan drums." She added that the Negroes are a dramatic people and that there is "rhythm and plenty of action in all of their play."

Miss Hurston said that at the Durham college she told her students, "We are going to try to make plays out of" (Continued on page 2, column 4)

Final vote on the applicants—Edward Hobbs, Stephen Reiss, Robert Andrews, Arthur Foster, and Randall MacLeod—will be held at the regular Tuesday meeting, and those approved will be taken into the organization immediately.

Although the bill for discussion at the meeting has not yet been definitely decided, pending a meeting of the ways-and-means committee, the probable resolution will be: "Resolved, that the Di senate go on record as approving of a third term for Franklin Roosevelt."

THIRD PLAYMAKER MOVIE SCHEDULED

French-Made Comedy On Screen Today

"Carnival in Flanders," a notable French-made comedy, will be screened in the Playmakers theater this afternoon at 2:30 as the third in a series of free showings for the fall quarter.

The movie, which won an international photoplay prize a few years ago, concerns the unusual victory of the women of a French village over a Spanish invasion while their men are in hiding.

Reviewing the picture when it was released in this country, the New York Herald-Tribune commented, "Finest comedy—most notable photoplay."

Pan-American Club To Begin Activity Program This Week

Organized under the leadership of Bernie Flatow, sophomore transfer, and several faculty sponsors, the temporarily named Pan-American club will this week begin a program of activity designed to increase the knowledge of Latin America among interested students.

At the initial meeting of the group Thursday night, an "executive" committee was formed which will meet tomorrow night to draw up formal plans of organization. Among those topics to be discussed at the meeting are the requirements for membership in the club, the selection of a definite name for the organization, and the possibility of securing a number of qualified speakers for the group. Chief requirement for membership, Flatow said, will probably be a knowledge of some phase of Pan-American or some Latin American country.

The committee consists of Dr. Francis Hayes, faculty adviser; Herbert Shapiro, B. H. Dearmas, J. O. Austin, and Mary Beard.

Although membership in the club will be limited, meetings will be open to anyone interested in the organization.

WEEK DESIGNATED FOR "AMERICAN REDISCOVERY"

To Celebrate, Reaffirm Principles Of Democracy

In a special proclamation issued by the American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom this week has been designated as "American Rediscovery Week." The plan has received the endorsement of many outstanding public officials, churchmen, and educators and is sponsored by a number of prominent national organizations.

The purpose of the proclamation is to make this week "the occasion for celebrating and reaffirming the principles of American democracy, in a solemn resolve to secure for all the inhabitants of these United States the necessary conditions for life itself: liberty and equal rights for all, regardless of color, creed, political conviction, or national origin."

COMMITTEE ORGANIZATION

The American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom is formed of a group of scientists and educators pledged to protect and extend intellectual liberty, to strengthen American democracy, to combat propaganda for racial and religious discrimination or intolerance, and to strengthen the forces of democracy in the American schools. As an outgrowth of these aims comes this proclamation as an attempt to combat the "powerful foes of equality and liberty" which are now challenging "our traditional rights."

PROGRAM

The program for the week includes as the feature activity a nationwide series of meetings on Columbus Day, with the foremost assemblage in the Court of Peace at the New York World's Fair. Another meeting, to be held in the Hall of Science and Education at the fair, will be devoted to a panel discussion on "How the Scientists Can Help Combat Racism." The panel will be led by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Professor Franz Boaz, national chairman of the committee.

As a second part of the plan, exhibits of books and charts analyzing the truths about race prejudices have been prepared. One is to be shown at the World's Fair and others in hundreds of college and general book stores, libraries, and classrooms throughout the country as segments of the campaign to "lay bare the sources of prejudice which threaten American democratic institutions."

Wolf Uses Two Complete Teams; Stirny Stays Out

By SHELLEY ROLFE

FOREMAN FIELD, Norfolk, Oct. 7.—Sparked by Sweet Jim Lalanne, playing the outstanding game of his tempestuous two-year college football career, the University of North Carolina hampered by mid-summer heat and stiffer than anticipated resistance, defeated Virginia Tech, 13-6, this afternoon for its third straight victory of the 1939 season before 15,000 galleryites.

Carrying over both of the Tar Heel touchdowns and spearhead of the drives that led up to them, Lalanne, although one of his punts was blocked amply made up for the absence of George Stirnweiss, who sat on the bench, still favoring the charley horse he suffered in last week's Wake Forest game. Stirny warmed up part of the game, but through most of the afternoon he sat on the bench biting his finger nails and lending aid on the Carolina cause only with his line of chatter; waiting for any emergency calls to action.

CALL DOESN'T COME

The call never came. Carolina, after a scoreless first quarter, swept across with a second quarter touchdown, added another in the third and then proceeded to play defensive ball in the last period. The only Gobbler touchdown came in the closing seconds of play when a pass over the goal line apparently batted down by a Tar Heel backfield man, fell into fourth-string back Garrett Taylor's hands for a Virginia Tech score.

Carolina moved slowly most of the game. It may have been the Tar Heels were suffering natural let-downs from their record-breaking scoring against Wake Forest and The Citadel, or it may have been the fact that the Wolfmen were holding back for the start of major league competition next Saturday against NYU. But whatever it was, at no time did Carolina move as smoothly or with as much precision as it did in the opening two battles of the year.

Realizing, perhaps, that the Tar Heels were not right, Coach Wolf used two complete teams, substituting freely. Lalanne and Harry Dunkle, who kicked better than ever, were the backfield standouts. Paul Severin, moulding his play more and more into the Andy Bershak pattern of spending afternoons in the enemy backfield was a line standout along with Bob Smith, Jim Woodson, Jim Mallory and Bill Faircloth.

After a dull first quarter in which both teams seemed to be holding back to see what the other would spring, Carolina struck early in the second quarter with the second-string back- (Continued on page 3, column 6)
