Unbeaten Tar Heels, Violets Clash Today

Celebrates 53rd Birthday Today

Dr. Frank Porter Graham, the modest little president of the Greater University of North Carolina, will celebrate his 53rd birthday today by meeting with a governor-picked commission on the Fayetteville anniversary and watching Carolina's grid machine bowl over NYU.

Termed by "Time" magazine as the ablest college president in America, Dr. Graham has served as executive head of the University for nine years. He is a nationally known figure recognized for his liberal attitude and democratic spirit, and probably is one of the busiest men in the South.

We of the DAILY TAR HEEL, as the voice of the Carolina student body, warmly say, "Happy Birthday, Dr. Frank!"

Young Democrats Organize Club With 26 Charter Members

Young Demo Head

Here is Joe Dawson, jovial president of the new Young Democrats club which came vigorously to life this week. Beside being speaker of the Phi assembly, Dawson won out last spring in campus elections as member of the debate council and is vice-president of the International Relations club.

Slocum, Livingston To Give Broadcast

Although the University's new radio studio is not yet completed, a musical program by two members of the musical faculty will be broadcast over the Southern Radio network tomorrow afternoon from 3:05 until 3:30.

Earl Slocum, flutist, and Herbert Livingston, accompanist, will present the following program:

From the Suite in B Minor, by Johann Sebastian Bach: Sarabande, Polonaise, and Badinage.

Also, "Danse Pour Katie by Bournoville; "Le Petit Berger," par Debussy; "Orientale" by Gaubert; and "Il Vento" par Briccialdi.

HOEY APPOINTS COMMISSION FOR CELEBRATION

Seven-Man Group To Meet With Dr. Graham Today

A seven-man commission, representing the state and legislature, has been appointed by Governor Clyde R. Hoey to serve with trustees, alumni, faculty and student groups in planning celebration of the sesqui-centennial anniversary of the chartering of the University, November 21, 22, and 23 at Fayetteville.

The newly appointed committee consists of D. Hilden Ramsey of Asheville, Capus M. Waynick of High Point, Marsden Bellamy of Wilmington, H. Galt Braxton of Kinston, Gordon Gray of Winston-Salem, John L. Morehead of Charlotte and Victor S. Bryant of Durham. The group will meet with Dr. Frank Graham in his office this morning at 10:30 to discuss plans for the November celebration.

ROOSEVELT WILL SPEAK, MAYBE

President Roosevelt will make the main address if Congress or matters of state do not keep him in Washington.

Student body president Jim Davis will appoint a student committee early next week to work with the state and other committees.

Celebrationists in Fayetteville have invited Roosevelt to stop by that town while on his annual visit to Warm Springs, Georgia, and the President has tentatively agreed to speak there on either November 21, 22 or 23. The exact date has not yet been announced pending word from the Chief Executive.

GREEN WRITES PLAY

University playwright Paul Green has begun work on a pageant depicting the meeting of the state legislature and the chartering and beginning of the University 150 years ago. According to present plans, the Playmakers, perhaps with the aid of other dramatists, will enact this pageant.

PLANS PRESENTED

Extensive plans have been proposed for the celebration October 12, 1943, of the 150th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of Old East, oldest state university building in the country. A program has also been planned to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the actual opening of the doors of the University in 1845.

A list of 26 suggestions for the celebrations to be held in 1948 and '49 include the publication of a one-volume history of the University, the re-enacting in appropriate costume, in 1943 of the cornerstone laying, the production of a motion picture portraying the life and significance of the University, and many other projects.

Well, The United Press's Plugging 'Em

Speaking of publicity, here is the United Press' opinion of our two high-powered quarterbacks, Stirnweiss and Lalanne. And when the UP thinks an athlete is good they send their highly regarded beliefs all over the land via mat service. So, duplicates of what you see above are appearing in papers all over our fair and football nutty United States.

Friday 13: Mangum Flooded When Radiator Spews Amuck

Pet Cockroach Drowned; Second, Third Floor Rooms Becomes Pools For Wet Clothes

By RUSH HAMRICK

Friday the 13 jinx literally poured in on Mangum dormitory yesterday afternoon when approximately 100 gallons of water burst from a defective radiator coupling in room 303. Clothes in three closets were drenched, the strings in a tennis racquet were broken, and John, a pet cockroach, was killed in room 212.

Barefooted and clad only in shorts, 20 boys and all the quadrangle janitors worked for about one hour to halt the flow of water. Several candid camera cranks were on the scene, snapping pictures from every angle.

BEGINNING OF FLOOD

Hunter Heath, one occupant of 303, had just pulled off his pants and was standing by his bed when the coupling broke and water shot out of the pipes into the face of the other roommate, Wes Goodin, who was reading Chaucer. Clothes in both closets were soaked as water rushed through the doors. For a time, water was a foot deep on the third floor hall.

Suddenly, it flowed down the stairs and through the walls to the second floor where it reached a maximum depth of six inches. From here it ran to the first floor and then out the northern door of the dormitory.

Rooms receiving the greater part of the water were on the third and second floors.

Mopping up the water, Leroy Smith, head janitor, said, "I just wouldn't know what happened!" Brick Wall, chairman of senior class executive committee stated, "It's a helluva mess!" Heath, an early victim, said, "Now I know how Noah felt."

Treasurer of the Young Democrats club, Buddy Nordan exclaimed, "The greatest flood since Noah." Ruffin occupants yelled across the quadrangle, "That's the first time Mangum has been cleaned in 10 years." The dormitory president, Herb Hardy, stated, "Embarrassing!"

Battling a major foe for the first time this season, unbeaten Carolina meets undefeated NYU in Kenan stadium at 2:30 this afternoon.

It will be a game of revenge for the Violets and a game that will be settled in the air. Having lost to the Tar Heels three seasons running in games played at New York, the Violets come south this autumn loaded and intent upon knocking Carolina over, thereby gaining partial satisfaction for past indignities and insults.

The Violets come seeking revenge and come with one of the most heralded passing attacks in the nation. Striking through the air and on the ground and paced by Big Ed Boell, NYU has rolled over Colgate and PMC this fall. Boell, a hulking, six-footer, takes ranking as one of the outstanding backs in the nation, passing, kicking and running.

Two years a regular and intent upon gaining All-American rating his senior season, Boell will be ready for one (Continued on page 3, column 6)

Latin American Women Speak To Local Groups

The good will delegation of prominent Latin American women under the direction of Miss Mable Vernon, director of the Peoples Mandate committee, addressed three groups on the campus, in Graham Memorial at 3:30 yesterday afternoon. The delegation will visit 40 cities in the United States, touching both coasts, in an effort to bring a better understanding between the two continents.

A dinner was given in honor of the group at the Carolina Inn last night, by the women of the University and of Chapel Hill.

HUGE MOB TURNS OUT FOR RALLY

Coaches, Players, Warren Speak

Sparked by Carolina's capering head cheerleader, Vance Hobbs, a large and exuberant mob turned out last night in Memorial hall and made the pep rally a rip-roaring success that was broadcast to the state over station WPTF, Raleigh.

The University band and Glee club furnished the musical stimulus for the occasion, and Athletic Director "Coach Bob" Fetzer opened the program with a few words of welcome to the NYU football team, coaches, and fans.

Head coach Ray Wolf, interviewed by master of ceremonies Hobbs, declared that the Violets are one of the toughest teams on the Carolina schedule, but that the Tar Heels "are ready to go."

Football stars Bob Smith, Bill Faircloth, Gates Kimball, and Paul Severin also spoke, expressing the unanimous opinion that if the student spirit is as great at the game today as it was (Continued on page 2, column 2)

Shown here are the principals in the University day exercises held in Memorial hall Thursday morning to celebrate our 146th anniversary. Left to right, they are, Judge Robert W. Winston, jurist and biographer, who accepted three memorial tablets in behalf of the University; President Frank P. Graham, who introduced Chancellor Harry W. Chase of New York university, the chief speaker; Ambassador Josephus Daniels; Chancellor Chase; Dr. R. B. House, dean of administration at Chapel Hill; Judge Francis D. Winston, oldest member of the board of trustees, and W. M. Dey, faculty marshal.

In his address, Dr. Chase predicted, "The United States will inevitably become the leading power on earth but the present war, if it continues for a long period, will result in a Europe crippled economically and an America distressed economically."

Despite a drizzling rain, a sizeable crowd attended and the University band provided music.—(Mat courtesy of The Durham Herald).
