FORMAL OPENING OF MED BUILDING SCHEDULED SOON

Noted Speakers Will Gather Here On December 4

The formal opening of the new building for the University's school of medicine and the division of public health will be held on Monday, December 4, it was announced yesterday.

Both the building and the new dormitory for medical students will be open for inspection throughout the day.

Exercises will begin at 10:45 in the medical school auditorium with Administrative Dean R. B. House presiding.

President Frank P. Graham will deliver an address of welcome, and Dean W. de MacNider of the medical school will respond.

Dr. E. K. Marshall, Jr., professor of pharmacology in Johns Hopkins University, will speak on medical research and "The Story of Sulfanilamide."

EXTEND GREETINGS

Greetings will be extended by Dr. L. H. Manning, former dean of the medical school and Kenan professor emeritus of physiology; Dr. William Allan, Charlotte, president of the North Carolina Medical Society; Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, secretary and state health officer of the North Carolina State Board of Health; Dr. C. C. Carpenter, dean of the Wake Forest medical school; and Dr. W. C. Davison, dean of the Duke University medical school.

Dr. MacNider will preside at exercises at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the auditorium.

Speakers will be Dr. David Riesenman, professor emeritus of clinical medicine and professor of the history of medicine in the University of Pennsylvania medical school who will discuss (Continued on page 4, column 2)

KOCH ANNOUNCES EXPERIMENTALS

Plays By Matthews, Spies, Guest Chosen

Selection of three new one-act plays for experimental production in the Playmakers theater December 9 was announced yesterday from the office of Dr. Frederick H. Koch, Playmaker director.

Chosen were: "Winter Parade," by Adrian Spies; "The Checkered Pants," by Evelyn Matthews; and "Four Black Tassels," by Frank Guess. These were selected from plays written this quarter in Dr. Koch's course in playwriting.

Casts for "Winter Parade" and "The Checkered Pants" will be assembled in Fayetteville, where a large group of Playmakers are appearing in Paul Green's historical drama, "The Highland Call." Tryouts for "Four Black Tassels" will be held within the next few days, but no definite date has been given yet.

Spies' play will be directed by Wieder Sievers, and the other two will be directed by their authors.

"Winter Parade" is the story of a boy and a girl who find hope of peace and happiness in their determination to meet life together. Their decision is an acceptance of reality after their symbol of security is shattered.

Miss Matthews' play, "The Checkered Pants," is a lively, humorous story of domestic troubles in the North Carolina mountains. The story centers about the purchase of a pair of new britches for Pa, who doesn't want to wear them.

"Four Black Tassels" is a play of Negro life in South Carolina.

Today Is Deadline

"Today at 2 o'clock is the deadline for registration for the excursion of the Freshman Friendship Council to Greensboro. The bus will leave the YMCA at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and we must have the number of boys going and the money by the deadline time," Charlie Putzel said yesterday.

"Children's Books"

James E. Tippet of Chapel Hill will speak on "Children's Books" at the Bull's Head tea this afternoon at 4:15. Tippet is the author of "Henry and the Farmer" and other books for children.

Musicians Composing University Symphony

Symphony Gives First Concert Tonight

Music Of Beethoven, Brahms And Wagner Will Be Presented

Duplicating the program given last Sunday in Greensboro at Bennett college and Palmer Memorial institute in Sedalia, the University symphony orchestra will give its first campus concert this year tonight at 8:30 in Hill Music hall.

The program will be: Overture to the Ballet "Prometheus" Op. 43, Beethoven; Symphony No. 11 in D major Op. 73, Allegretto grazioso Presto-ma no, Non Asisa, Allegro con spirito, Brahms; Eine kleine Nachtmusik K 525, Romanze, Andante, Menuetto, Allegretto, Rondo, Allegro, Mozart; and Siegfried's Rhine Journey, Wagner.

ANALOGIES

There are interesting analogies between the composers included in the program. Brahms's music shows arrested development when compared to that of the other composers. Wagner has more originality than Beethoven, although the former is considered the spiritual son of Beethoven. Wagner liked Beethoven and said, "The characteristic of the great compositions of Beethoven is that they are veritable poems, in which it is sought to bring a real subject to representation."

Wagner's "Siegfried" possesses every virtue but that of self-explanatory continuity.

Years of musical activity have gone toward making the present orchestra. The late University Controller, Charles T. Woollen, was one of the first Chapel Hill residents to organize local musicians and from the time he came here in 1905 he fostered musical interest among students and townspeople. He eventually formed an orchestra and band which furnished incidental music for pageants and plays, but it was not until the early twenties that independent programs were presented.

DEPARTMENT ESTABLISHED

Largely through the influence of Mr. Woollen the University established a music department.

Carl Wiegand, a law student, and Fred Hard, now a professor of English at Tulane University, once were directors of the combined band and orchestra. By 1924 the orchestra increased its size to 24.

Hal Kemp was just another clarinet player and Professor Fred B. McCall belonged to the orchestra when it made its tremendous hit playing "Song of India" between acts at a Carolina Playmaker's production.

Under its present organization the orchestra has been successively under the direction of Professor Smith McCorkle, now of Southern Methodist University in Texas; Harold Dyer, Professor Earl A. Slocum, now director of the University band and Dr. Swalin, present director.

The 50-piece orchestra, composed of students, faculty and townspeople, is constantly in demand for concerts in and around Chapel Hill and other sections of the state.

Mrs. Fannie Archer Dies In Charleston

Mrs. Fannie G. Archer, for whom the University faculty club was named, died early yesterday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Millie A. Ravenel, in Charleston, S. C.

For many years she ran a boarding house in the house now used for the faculty club and the name "Archer house" is still applied to the building.

Funeral services will probably be held in Chapel Hill Thursday.

WOOD WILL PLAY AT JUNIOR CLASS BUDGET MEETING

Kimball Expresses Belief That Group Will Obtain Quorum

Several members of Charlie Wood's swing aggregation will hold a jam session on the stage in Gerrard hall tomorrow at 10:30 for the juniors who will gather there at that time to vote on the 1939-40 class budget.

Balloting will be done in writing and a pledge will have to be signed on the ticket to make it valid.

324 VOTES ARE REQUIRED

To give the budget official sanction, 324 votes are required and Gates Kimball, third year president, expressed optimism and said he was sure that there would be a large attendance.

Kimball also announced that an official challenge had been issued to the senior class by the juniors for the annual tag football clash between the groups. Steve Foster will be in charge of the junior negotiations and team. The senior captain has not as yet been appointed.

WOOD'S BUNCH

Charlie Wood and his bunch did a complete job when they handed the rhapsody for the sophomore meetings and the hep-cats in the junior section are expected to flock to another of the bands rhythm sessions.

"Frosty" Snow, junior treasurer, will read the budget for the class' approval. The class executive and dance committees, meeting last week altered the budget slightly and then approved it for presentation to the members of the class. The dance allotment was raised to $1500, the miscellaneous appropriation was cut and a statement of class finances was made showing a balance of over $500 over the amount stated in the budget.

Rogerson Draws Up Concession System For Dormitory L

Steps were begun yesterday to set up a system to supply residents of L dormitory with refreshments and school supplies. The system was recommended to Assistant Controller L. B. Rogerson by the Student Advisory committee last week.

The committee was informed of the acceptance of its recommendation Monday.

PETITION

Attention to the need of a source of refreshments in the new med students' dormitory was brought to the advisory group by a petition signed by the residents asking that the owner of a nearby store be allowed to canvass the dorm to sell refreshments. The store was set up to supply the workers of the Carolina Inn annex and is only a temporary arrangement in accordance with an agreement made with the University.

Because of the many students in the University needing self-help, the committee felt that the opportunity of operating a dormitory store should be given to one of these rather than to someone outside the school. However, they believed that a store would present a source of noise not now in existence.

Twenty Nominees Are Chosen For Freshman Honor Council

Class Will Elect Seven Members Friday Morning

The student council of the University met last night, nominating 20 outstanding members of the freshman class, of which seven will be elected Friday in freshman chapel to serve throughout the year as members of the freshman honor council.

Friday the twenty men will be introduced to the class and the balloting will be held in chapel. The 7 elected will compose the honor council, with the vice-president of the freshman class acting as chairman of the group.

The honor council has jurisdiction over all honor cases which arise in the freshman class. The 20 men were elected by the student council in cooperation with the class president, Tommy Crudup.

They are as follows: Tom Badin, Bert Bennett, Bob Glenn, Lee Gravelly, Charlie Hancock, Sonny Harvey, James Heyward, Ed Hobbs, Harry Horton, Alston Lewis, Jim Lloyd, Hobart McKeever, Charlie Neaves, George Penick, Yates Poteat, Bill Sigler, Hal Sterling, Ike Taylor, Dan Thomason, and Sam Wright.

Don't Go Home, Folks — The Football Season Isn't All Over Yet!

Dusky Devastators from Orange County training school and the William Penn Negro high school in High Point will collide here Friday afternoon in the earliest of all the bowl games—Chapel Hill's annual "Chocolate Bowl."

Fetzer field will be the scene of the 12-year-old classic which yearly draws a surprisingly large crowd of fans, lured out by the possibility of seeing something decidedly unusual in this contest of might and meat usually called football.

The entire proceeds will be devoted to charity.

Favoring Campus Postoffice

Phi Votes 20-13 For Proposal

"Resolved: That the present mail delivery system should be replaced by a central postoffice in South building," was the bill passed by a majority of 20 to 13 at the meeting of the Phi assembly last night.

"The system works all right at Duke, and I'm in favor of it because it would mean that the mail would be put up more quickly," said Herbert McNairy. Phil Ellis explained that a central postoffice would keep the same hours as the one downtown and that the students probably would use it during chapel period.

Of 30 votes cast, 22 were in favor of the motion, "Resolved: That every state university should install optional courses in aviation and military training."

Shirley Hobbs representing the girls of the Phi challenged the boys to a debate. She and Phil Ellis were delegated to arrange the details.

SECRETARY EURE TO ADDRESS YDC

Alumnus Prominent In State Politics

North Carolina's secretary of state, Thad Eure, will speak to the Young Democrats club of the University at its meeting tomorrow night at 9 o'clock in Gerrard hall, immediately following Coach Ray Wolf's football clinic.

Eure has been prominent in state politics since his election as mayor of Winton one year after receiving his law degree from the University in 1922. He served in this office from 1923 to 1928 when at the age of 29 he was elected to the North Carolina house of representatives by Hertford county.

During the sessions of 1931, 1933 and 1935 he was clerk of the house. He has also served as county attorney for Hertford.

While at the University he was a member of the Theta Phi fraternity, the Phi assembly, and the basketball, football and track teams. He is now escheats officer for the University. His duties in this office are to visit county seats and see about collecting money due the University under laws that provide that where death occurs with no heirs, the estate reverts to the state.

Entries Due Saturday For Progress Volume

Faculty members who have not submitted reports for the 1938-39 volume of "Research In Progress" should do so by Saturday. This is the final date for inclusion of copy. Any copy submitted after this date will be held for next year's bulletin.

Comprehensives

All students taking comprehensive examinations Saturday should see their departmental advisor before that time, the administration announced yesterday.

Di Passes Bill By 26-13 Majority

A bill proposing a central campus postoffice for the University was approved by the Di senate last night by a vote of 26-13.

In the discussion of the bill it was brought out that the postoffice proposed would be located in South or some other centrally located building. Lock boxes with keys for all students in the University would be located there instead of in the dormitories as they are now. Parcel post, stamp and money order windows would keep approximately the same hours as the town postoffice, and mail would be put out four to six times daily, including Sundays.

By a vote of 25 to 5, the senate approved a motion approving the student council's action on the Buccaneer issue which was carried over from last week's meeting. The group also passed a motion that the Di hold a "Love feast" just before the Christmas holidays.

HISTORICAL PLAY FEATURES EVENTS IN FAYETTEVILLE

150th Anniversary Of Chartering Is Commemorated

FAYETTEVILLE, Nov. 21.—Fayetteville, celebrating the 200th year of the landing of the Scotch in the Cape Fear section of North Carolina and its own centennial, took time off today to honor the 150th anniversary of the chartering of the University of North Carolina and watch a freshman football game between Duke and the Tar Babies.

Highlight of the day was a historical drama directed by John Parker, extension director of the Playmakers, telling of the ratification of the federal constitution by North Carolina in Fayetteville in 1789 and of the provisions made then for the founding of a state university. The pageant featured Governor Clyde R. Hoey, Federal Judge Isaac Meekins, Dean R. B. House of the University and Dr. Archibald Henderson of the math department among others.

HOEY AS FIRST GOVERNOR

Governor Hoey portrayed the first governor of the state and others took the parts of men prominent in its early history. The first scene was laid in Hillsboro, in 1788, telling of the first debate over the federal constitution and the adjourning of business until next year when the convention broke over the question of the Bill of Rights.

The Fayetteville convention passed the constitution with a Bill of Rights. Land was seceded in the west to the federal government and the state of Transylvania (Tennessee) founded. And the provisions were made for the founding of the University.

ORGANIZER LEAVES LOCAL DIES GROUP

Nickson And Lasker Elected To Offices

Bill Ward, organizer of a campus committee for the investigation of un-American activities, Monday night resigned at the initial meeting of the committee after impugning motives of the students present and accusing some of them of not being in sympathy with his principles.

Ward expressed himself as believing in capitalism and being opposed to socialism, communism, and the New Deal.

After Ward's resignation, the local Dies group selected Richard Nickson as president and Harry Lasker as temporary secretary.

Lee Wiggins, president of the ASU, said at the meeting, "We are not sure what our purposes are now, and we cannot organize until we know where we stand."

Nickson and Lasker will draw up a definition of un-American which will be made public, it was announced, and will hold a meeting in the near future for the reorganization of the investigation committee.

Dr. Graham Named On Med Council

Announcement has been made of the recent appointment of President Frank P. Graham to the American Council on Medical Education and Hospitals, sponsored by the American Medical Association. His appointment was for representation of the state universities of America.

Dr. Graham made a report for the council at a meeting of the American Association of State Universities the beginning of this week in Washington during two days of business in Washington and New York.

In Washington he conferred with PWA authorities on work for Carolina and for State college. He also attended a committee meeting of the American Council on Education.

YMCA Cabinet Meets This Morning

"With coats and ties, please," members of the Junior-Senior YMCA cabinet will meet on the front steps of South building this morning at 10:30 to have their "pitcher took" for the Yackety Yack.
