Symphony Orchestra To Open New Season In Raleigh Sunday

A concert at Shaw University in Raleigh Sunday will start the winter season for the University Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Benjamin Swain. This will be followed by an appearance in Chapel Hill on February 14, one at Winston-Salem on February 24, and a concert at Flora McDonald College shortly after.

The orchestra, which is made up of students, townspeople, faculty people from out-of-town, and high school students, has had a long, if rather erratic, history. There has always been some musical activity at the University; but it was never organized until after music was put in the public schools of the state and students with some previous musical preparation came to Chapel Hill.

Charles T. Woolen, comptroller of the University in 1905, was the most important organizer of the group. He was a violinist and clarinetist and started the group which grew into the orchestra and band. Its first public performances were furnishing incidental music for the Playmaker productions. Hall Kemp was playing clarinet with the orchestra when it made a hit at one of the productions playing "Song of India."

The next director of the group was Smith McCorkle, who is now at Southern Methodist University. He was followed by...

Glen Gray Will Broadcast On Bandwagon Next Sunday

Casa Loma Orchestra Will Play For Mid-Winter Dances Here February 16 and 17

Campus critics will be given an early audition of Glen Gray and the Casa Loma orchestra, which will play for the Mid-winter German dances February 16 and 17, when the band is featured over the Fitch Shampoo program at 7:30 Sunday night.

The band is today considered as one of the foremost in the country. Not only is it a "musician's band," because of its technical ability, but it is popular with a great number of radio listeners from coast to coast and recently was featured with George Burns and Gracie Allen programs.

Glen Gray and the Casa Lomas are an outstanding example of swing, a style they have played since 1929. The men combine the pulsating rhythm of the sepias with the suave finish of the expert white men. They sizzle in the hottest kind of jazz, blowing intricate...

Earl Carroll Selects Vanity Fair Section For Yackety Yack

To forestall all questions of partiality or prejudice, Earl Carroll, famous beauty judge, has selected the girls whose pictures are to appear in the Vanity Fair section of the Yackety Yack, Editor Jack Lynch announced yesterday.

Carroll's choices arrived in the mail yesterday. From photographs sent him by the Yackety Yack, he has picked the prettiest girl from each of eight schools: Duke, St. Mary's, WCUNC, Greensboro college, Salem, Randolph-Macon, Sweetbriar and Carolina.

Contrary to the stories carried in several state papers yesterday, six Duke girls will not have their pictures in the section.

REQUESTS SENT

The idea of an impartial judge was conceived last fall to replace the former practice of the editor's choosing the girls. Requests were sent to the eight schools mentioned above to select their five prettiest girls by contests or committees. A letter was sent to Carroll who consented to make the choices.

All the photographs were finally collected last week and sent to Hollywood where Carroll has his theater-restaurant.

The five best-looking Carolina coeds were chosen by a committee appointed by Melville Corbett, president of the Women's association. Their names have not yet been disclosed.

Tommy Crudup, class president, presided at the meeting at which the quorum of 410 was easily reached. The budget was read by George Adams, treasurer, and a verbal ballot was taken.

In officially confirming the budget drafting of the executive committee, led by Page Shamburger, chairman, the first-year men decided to allot $300 for their dance. Provision was also made for Yackety Yack appropriations and $1.25 was made available for pictures of the class officers. No photographs of the freshman committees will be printed in the annual this year.

After the proposed account was read yesterday the floor was opened for discussion on the bill. Freshman fees amount to 20 cents a person for...

STEERE SPEAKS TO FORUM GROUP

Address Subject Is 'Apostleship'

Following up his talk made Sunday night in Hill hall, Douglas Steere continued his discussion of apostleship last night when he spoke at the weekly student supper forum held at the Presbyterian Church.

Steere said that apostleship is something within each individual that doesn't concern intellectual power and that no one will take the way of apostleship unless he's dissatisfied with the life he's already living. "He won't start on this way unless something knocks the props out from under him," he said.

According to the speaker, one of the main ways to attain apostleship is through voluntarily-sought isolation during which the individual has a chance to take account of himself. This period of isolation is a period of prayer and is a way of getting a new dimension, a new perspective toward life.

Apostleship never springs from strenuous effort of will. It arises...
