Wallace begins experimental operations of a stamped plan to provide relief families with surplus cotton goods.

WASHINGTON—The house begins consideration of a $785,989,094 war department appropriation bill which was cut $67,357,660 below budget estimates in the face of warnings from top army officials that the United States must be prepared for any eventuality.

WASHINGTON—The senate votes to limit debate today on Senator O'Mahoney's amendment to require congressional ratification of all pacts negotiated under the administration's reciprocal state treaty program.

WASHINGTON—The house labor committee votes to end all forms of parliamentary strategy in an attempt to secure direct floor consideration of its four Wagner act amendments without sending them through the anti-labor board rules committee.

WASHINGTON—Commerce department statistics which reveal record-breaking gold imports in the week ending March 27 indicate that Great Britain is making huge additions to its accumulation of funds in this country to pay for large scale war purchases.

Yackety Yack Names

ical parties would be on the issue could not be determined yesterday. Preston Nisbet, chairman of the Student Party, which passed a motion in its last convention endorsing all staff nominees, said last night, that his party would probably decide what its action will be at tonight's convention.

LYNCH COMMENTS
Editor Jack Lynch, in a statement after the meeting, said, "The staff, in leaving this decision up to the campus, has set a precedent hoping that in the future all publications staffs will do the same if neither man has a two thirds majority of the staff votes."
"Staff nominations are respected because campus voters feel that the staff of a publication is in a better position to know what man is best. But if the staff is split in its decision, both candidates are probably equally good and should be given a chance to win," he said.

Next year will be Broadfoot's tenth consecutive year of working on year-book staffs, having worked four years on the Wilmington high school annual, two years on his prep school annual, and three at Carolina. In his senior year at high school he was managing editor and business manager of the annual as well as business manager of the school paper.

EDITS SECTION
At Carolina, he has arranged the snapshot pages of the Yackety Yack for the last three years, was editor of the senior section last year and of the photography section this year.

He has been a member of the monogram club, varsity lacrosse and wrestling teams, member of the student legislature as a representative of the interdormitory council, sergeant at arms of the Phi Assembly, assistant treasurer of the Phi, member of the executive committee of the University club, and member of the student entertainment committee. He has already completed all his required work for graduation with a 93 average.

His comment on the nomination was, "I appreciate the vote of confidence given me by the staff. I believe it is the most efficient staff the Yackety Yack has had in the last three years. There is no reason that we can't produce an All-American annual next year. Duke has and, if I am elected, I am determined that we shall."

MERRILL'S RECORD
Byrd Merrill has worked on annuals for the last five years. He was editor of his preparatory school annual at the Darlington school in Rome, Ga., and has been a member of the staff of the Yackety Yack during his three years at Carolina.

He was editor of the junior section of the Yackety Yack last year and is engraving editor this year. He is a member of the Alpha Epsilon Delta honorary premedical fraternity, and has been on the honor roll for the last eight quarters, having a scholastic average of 93.2. He was a member of the freshman friendship council.

Asked for a statement after the nomination, Merrill said, "I believe that the dual nomination was a wise and fair move on the part of the staff because of the conflicting and almost equally powerful opinions. Naturally I want to win, but I sincerely wish my opponent the best of luck, and promise him and the campus that I will put up a clean, hard race."

tution drawn up by the University students who live out in town. It provided that this vote be included on the general campus election ballots at Graham Memorial, the only precinct at which town students may vote.

In a statement from the council explaining the reason for their veto, Davis explained that the council is heartily in sympathy with the efforts put forth to establish a town students' organization and feels that these efforts are highly commendable. The council, however, believes that the primary responsibility of a student organization rests not on the student government in general, but instead on its members. It also believes that it is not the place of the student council to handle the vote or subsequent expense of a fraction of the student body. The council pointed out that such student government facilities have never been offered the Interdormitory council, University club or any other organization, and it does not see that this occasion warrants such a precedent.

The student legislature now has two alternatives—it can either override the council's veto by a two-thirds vote of the body, or leave out the provision granting the town students' vote.

noon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be in Carrboro cemetery.

The Ferrell child was trying to retrieve a piece of cork floating on the water when his hand, gripping a willow branch growing inside the reservoir, slipped and he fell into the water. A playmate, Theron Crittendon, summoned aid, but the body, submerged in ten feet of water, was not recovered for an hour. Artificial respiration failed to revive the youngster.

Surviving are: his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Ferrell; a brother, George Ferrell; and a grandfather, Paul Ferrell of Pittsboro.

employed, security for the unfortunate—Uncle Sam as the social guardian—that is where college approval falls greatest.

Personal interviewers asked this question of a sampling of all collegians in the country: "Regardless of which party wins the elections in November, what parts of the New Deal do you think should be continued?"

INTERVIEW RESULTS

Of the total number of times that different agencies were named:

- C. C. C. was mentioned 18%
- N. Y. A. was mentioned 15%
- W. P. A. was mentioned 7%
- Social security was mentioned 7%
- All others mentioned 44%
- Didn't know mentioned 9%

Only very few believe that the entire New Deal program should be discarded. Most students mentioned several agencies; approval by others covered entire fields, such as protection of natural resources, attempts to solve unemployment, etc. Opinion in different sections of the country is remarkably even, the survey shows, and comes from students of both Republican and Democratic leanings.

class to do its part toward orientating incoming freshmen. Full cooperation with the Student Council both before and during orientation week next fall is essential, if student government is to be maintained at its present high level.

"3. Friendly rivalry in sports between the Junior and Senior classes throughout next year will do much to foster a better class spirit.

"4. The class is entitled to have some voice in choosing its Senior Week regalia, and this should be done by popular vote.

"5. Commencement Week in the past has been a big week for everyone except seniors. A Senior-Father-Mother picnic in Battle Park on the Sunday afternoon of commencement would go far toward filling this gap, and would mean much to the parents of seniors as well as to the class."

For the past three years, "Scoop" Morris has been a member of the DAILY TAR HEEL sports staff, gaining prominence in reporting intramural affairs. During the course of the year, he has named All-Campus teams, and has completely covered all dormitory and fraternity sports activity.

Running for member-at-large, Gennett has been prominent on both publications and in athletics. For the last three years he has worked on the business staff of the DAILY TAR HEEL, at various times holding both the Durham and local advertising manager's post. Considered one of the leading lightweights in the Southern conference, he was elected co-captain of the boxing team at the end of last quarter. Seeman, a rising junior, has been a leading contributor to the Buccaneer for the last two years, and served as art editor this year. In the Yackety Yack which will be published this June, he has drawn caricatures of 12 graduating campus leaders. At the last Student-Faculty Day carnival, he was in charge of the caricature booth. Seeman has maintained a 92 average during his two years at the University.

The Far Eastern Student Service Fund and the European Student Service Fund are acting as the intermediaries of these groups in the United States, and each of these organizations is raising $35,000.

Most of the expenses of foreign students are for food, as board is very cheap, and their universities have stopped charging tuition fees. A Chinese student can eat for one month on 75 cents American money, and the same amount will feed a European student for a week. Students in France, Rumania, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Finland, Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, China and Japan will be aided by the funds received.

DANCE RULES

Red Tape "De"-Meshed

It seems appropriate that sound, sensible dance regulations should be drawn up during a dance-mad spring quarter.

Briefly, the regulations put the entire dance schedule into the hands of Dr. E. L. Mackie, competent faculty chairman of the University dance committee, whose job it is to stop the numerous conflicts in dances here.

After being cleared through Dr. Mackie, the applicant gives a written order to the buildings department, at least seven days prior to the date of the affair. Such necessities as the piano, bandstand and decorations are all handled by P. L. Burch, C. Huggins, H. D. Williams and D. M. Horner of the buildings department.

The decorations phase is especially warranted. There have been some not-too-nice stories about some of the deals involving decorations. It is good to find someone regulating decorations. Dances—many, many dances—are a great institution at Carolina. The regulations adopted should make them more of a pleasure.

COUNCIL VETO

Squabble Over Article VI

It is understood the town students have passed a resolution condemning the Student Council. As was indicated in President Jim Davis' criticism of the amendment affecting the town students' new organization, the council vetoed the student legislature's election bill, specifically giving objections only to Article VI.

In using its veto power for the first time, the Student Council ruled that the new town students' organization was no different from the Interdormitory council, the Interfraternity council or the Town Girls association. The council commended the fine work of those instrumental in organizing this group, but at the same time expressed doubt that holding an election for the group—which would consider matter heretofore untouched or considered by the council or the legislature—is without the jurisdiction of either of these bodies.

Article VI, adopted only after longer-than-usual debate in the Monday night session by a 14-9 vote, would provide town students a "Yes-No" vote on the new constitution.

The sponsors of the amendment were endeavoring to weld together the rather unwieldy group of town students for social and recreational activity. The wide (residential) separation of most of these students has heretofore prevented much group activity.

Because of the small five-vote margin the amendment received Monday night, it is almost certain that the legislature will have to delete Article VI, for it will be virtually impossible for the sponsors to obtain the two-thirds majority necessary to override the council's veto.

Town students, don't be too hard on the "ten old men." They're probably legally right.

Gannett To Damn

pected to literally damn the present administration, and urge a "give business back to the businessmen" policy.

Inside political observers from Washington headquarters report that Gannett is being pushed for the GOP nomination in an effort to take away the New York state's vote from Thomas E. Dewey. The Rochester publisher came into the national limelight last winter when he was featured in a motion picture short, depicting his family life. Two weeks later, Washington columnists carried the story that Gannett had used make-up and had financed the film himself.

The story of Gannett's life has been one from "newsboy to publisher." As a youth, he had a newspaper route, and saved money he received from odd jobs he secured in Rochester to put himself through Cornell. At Cornell, he majored in journalism, and was a reporter for the Ithaca Journal, correspondent for newspapers in other cities, manager of the Cornell magazine, and in his senior year was elected editor of the Cornell Daily Sun.

Gannett will be the second speaker which the CPU has sponsored this quarter, New Hampshire's Styles Bridges opening the union's spring slate in a Memorial hall address March 26. On April 23, the union will celebrate its fourth anniversary by presenting Montana's Senator Burton K. Wheeler over a coast-to-coast hook-up. The birthday party which will feature the presence of a full Congressional delegation, will culminate in the union's 1939-'40 activities.
